The King Kept His Word
A Man's Choice
What Might Have Been
May He Live Happily

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1936, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., International Copyright and all other rights reserved.)

MEN HAVE FOUGHT desperately, through the ages, risking death and torture, to gain or retain a throne. King Edward, wise, undoubtedly, in view of modern conditions and his own personality, gives up a throne that could be made by far the most powerful in the history of the world. He abandons forever, the hereditary right to rule over 500,000,000 human beings in his own empire, and will rule hereafter a valet, butler, cook, chauffeur, airplane pilot and an occasional head writer.

THE WORLD SAYS thoughtlessly, "he had to choose between the throne and the woman he loves and gave up the throne; how magnificent."

Magnificent, perhaps, but perhaps not necessary. Many in the past have kept "the woman they loved" and the throne also, sometimes several women that they loved. What has happened in England, demonstrates, as history has done over and over, a fact upon which rests the safety of the nations, from the dangers of permanent tyranny.

THE MASSES of people ceaselessly breed strong men, the throne and the life around it breeds weakness. Powerful French kings are followed by the rois faineants or "do nothing" kings.

The terrible Jenghiz Khan, conquers all the world, within reach, builds huge pyramids with the skulls of his enemies, dies and feebleness follows him on the throne.

While the throne and royalty of England were creating an early King George, the forests and unknown lands of America were building the young surveyor George Washington; and this has happened at intervals throughout all human history, shifting power gradually into the hands of the masses of mankind.

Those masses may demonstrate in the Spanish war, in European and Asiatic hatreds, in the inefficiency of United States government, that they are not yet ready for power or able to use it wisely. But they must learn to use it, and they will, as each child learns to walk.

IT IS NOT necessary to tell ambitious young American women, who take royalty and titles seriously, how Mrs. Simpson will feel when she marries what is left of the "King of England and Emperor of India."

No "Your Majesty," no courts, no garden party, not even an occasional visit to London; and no coronation. Grasping at the substance and seizing the shadow would be describing it feebly. The American girl who might have been "queen and empress," may not know at this moment what her married name will be. The former king will probably retain and use some one of his many titles, but not "king," not "His Royal and Imperial Majesty."

Mrs. Simpson will probably not be plain "Mrs. Windsor," which has been the king's family name, since the royal family, in the big war, gave up its real German name because Englishmen thought they would hate Germans forever.

THE KING will be respected because he chose to keep his word to Mrs. Simpson rather than keep his crown. His friends will wish that he had done both, and that Baldwin had not won the battle against the "Great danger of an American woman becoming queen of England."

The fact that the king chose to dis-

COMMITTEE OKAYS 2 PEACE PROJECTS

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Two projects for peace, security and non-intervention in the western world, unanimously sponsored by representatives of all 21 American republics, speeded through an inter-American conference committee tonight toward final approval by the full conference Tuesday.

The measures, approved by acclamation in a peace organization committee meeting, were:

1. A plan for maintenance of peace and security which provides for consultation in the event of war within the American continents or war abroad which menaces American peace.

2. A reiteration of the resolution of the 1933 Pan-American conference, for non-intervention by one nation in another's affairs. This carried also a Mexican amendment for consultation if intervention appears necessary.

Observers pointed out the amendment gives Latin-American approval of the plan advocated by President Roosevelt and United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull, under which intervention, if necessary, would be by joint action after consultation.

INSURGENTS DROP DRIVE TO SMASH MADRID DEFENSES

Capital, However, Rushes Program To Evacuate Women And Children

'SIEGE OF STARVATION' WILL BE TRIED INSTEAD

Ten Persons Killed And Score Wounded In Artillery Bombardment

By Alexander H. Uhl

MADRID, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Fascist insurgents have abandoned efforts to smash their way through Madrid's defenses and resorted to an encircling "siege of starvation," the capital's military leaders believed tonight.

Nevertheless, the capital rushed its program of evacuation of women and children. The evacuation committee estimated 300,000 persons had been escorted from the metropolitan area and that 200,000 more would go shortly.

Despite isolated pushes in the University City suburban sector which were repulsed, indications were that the Fascists' main objective was to surround the city and cut its communications with the south toward Valencia.

Ten persons were killed today and a score wounded by insurgent artillery bombardment, but this was regarded mainly as a screen for the more important attempt to enforce a siebe that by cutting off food supplies would force the city to surrender.

To accomplish this, Fascists launched today strong pushes near Aranjuez on the southwest; Gaudalajara on the northeast, and in the Pozuelo sector. Madrid defenses, likewise, ordered renewed effort to prevent surrounding of the capital.

"Each day appears to confirm more and more the idea that German-Italian general staff of General Francisco Franco's army has renounced a frontal attack in view of the strength of our defences and is planning an offensive which will permit isolation of Madrid from its rear guard," the newspaper Juventud theorized.

Enemy planes have been noticeably absent from the capital the past few days, confining their bombardments chiefly to sections where armed defenders of the city are stationed.

One man was killed, however, by shrapnel in the so-called neutral zone

TIME SHORT FOR POLL SIGNATURES

Many Ouachita Parish Voters Must Qualify Within Next 15 Days

Exclusive of holidays, 15 days remain in which 10,000 voters of Ouachita parish must go to the sheriff's office and sign the state poll books for 1936 if they expect to vote during the next two years.

The figures show that an average of approximately 666 voters must call at the sheriff's office each day and sign the books before they are closed at midnight on December 31.

Poll book receipts for two consecutive years must be held by a voter in order to be qualified to cast a ballot.

Saturday a steady stream of voters called at the sheriff's office in response to an urgent appeal to voters to sign the books at their earliest convenience. The response, while gratifying to the sheriff's office staff, must increase considerably each day if an unusually late rush is to be avoided, it was stated.

Early last week it was announced that more than 10,000 voters had not signed the poll books for 1936. Late yesterday it was estimated that approximately 10,000 voters have yet to sign the books.

AMBULANCE USED BY ROBBERS IN LOOTING

SHREVEPORT, La., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Police suspected that a robber gang used an ambulance to haul away $1,000 worth of shotguns, pistols, ammunition and other loot stolen last night from the Bacon and Edwards Sporting Goods store here.

Storekeepers found today that the frearms and goods were missing and an ambulance, believed stolen in Shreveport, was reported whizzing through DeSoto parish.

Officers down to New Orleans were asked to watch for the missing ambulance.

Former Gentleman-In-Waiting To Edward Denies He Will See Him

(By Associated Press)

CANNES, France, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Lord Brownlow, into whose care Edward, as king of England, entrusted "the woman I love," took his leave of Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson tonight, but denied he would see his former master.

He quit the Riviera villa where the American-born divorcee took refuge after the storm of a British constitutional crisis raged around her, and took the train for Paris.

The former gentleman-in-waiting to the resigned monarch insisted he was going to London, possibly stopping off en route for a holiday, and asserted he would not meet Edward, who was on his way across France on a Switzerland-bound train.

Lord Brownlow could catch a train for Switzerland by changing at Lyon. He drove to the station in the same automobile in which he escorted Mrs. Simpson across France to the Riviera—an automobile which is a duplicate of the one used by the former king.

Herman Rogers of New York, host to Mrs. Simpson and Lord Brownlow, accompanied Edward's former aide to the station along with two French detectives, one of whom went with him on the train.

PUBLIC WANTS END TO SHIPPING TIE-UP

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Amid growing public demands for an end to the shipping tie-up, strikers and employers moved a little closer to the peace table today and the unions took another step toward relief for isolated Hawaii.

Portland's Mayor J. K. Carson appointed a citizens' committee to act with the backing of the city. Mayor Angelo J. Rossi of San Francisco called a meeting "to find out where we stand."

Rossi told Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady "a lot of vitally interested persons are getting impatient." McGrady promised to continue his extended peacemaking efforts.

The Oregon Horticultural society went on record demanding the incorporation of labor unions, the submission of labor disputes to arbitration and the use of state police and militia to prevent "interference . . . with lawful business."

POPE ABLE TO SIT UP IN ARM CHAIR

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Pope Pius XI, stricken eight days ago by partial paralysis of the legs, was able to spend several hours today in an armchair. He heard mass recited from the private chapel adjoining his sickroom.

BABY WEIGHS 19 POUNDS

WAVERLY, O., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Dr. W. L. McCaleb of Beaver said today he had delivered as the 11th child of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Brigner a son weighing 19 pounds—only about two pounds less than the normal weight of a year-old baby. The mother, who weighs only 135 pounds, was recovering nicely, he said.

Hunted Man Is Captured In Georgia

A search for Houston Goulette, 27, wanted by the Ouachita parish sheriff's department to answer an eight-month-old charge of carnal knowledge involving a 15-year-old girl—a search in which peace officers of five states were unsuccessful in efforts to apprehend Goulette for the local authorities—was ended dramatically Friday in a remote, mountainous section of northern Georgia when Frank X. Cline, native of Georgia and veteran deputy sheriff of Ouachita parish, personally reached the end of the hunted man's trail and took him into custody.

The end of the hunted man's trail marked the close of a search which had extended over the entire south. Pence officers of Texas, Mississippi, Florida and Georgia had been unsuccessful in efforts to apprehend Goulette after the Ouachita parish sheriff's department, through methods known only to members of the department, had ascertained that he re-

BOY DELIVERING ORDER ATTACKED

Money And Merchandise Taken From Telegraph Company Messenger

Two men who made a fake telephone call last night to Stough's bar, 237 South Grand street, asking the delivery of some goods to a residence on Riverfront, and change for ten dollars, attacked and robbed the delivery boy who called at the address and left him lying, practically unconscious, on the levee opposite the address, it was learned from police.

The delivery boy, Alton Cooper, 16, employed by the Postal Telegraph company, was sent by Guy Causey, bartender at Stough's bar, to deliver a pint of whiskey and two packages of cigarettes at a residence in the 500 block of Riverfront, after the telephone call was received. The youth was also given the change for ten dollars, $8.40. Both the money and the merchandise were taken from him.

Recovering his senses after being attacked by the two men, the boy returned to the bar and told Mr. Causey that in answering the call he went to the residence of Morris Haas, 505 Riverfront, but was told there that no telephone call to the bar had been made from that home. As he was leaving the yard of the home the boy

EARLY RESIGNS STATE POSITION

Action Throws Welfare Commissioner's Place Wide Open

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 12.—(AP)—The selection of a commissioner of welfare to direct the Louisiana social security program was thrown wide open today when Harry J. Early, generally considered a sure choice for the post, severed his connection with the state government.

Early handed Governor Richard W. Leche his resignation as state emergency relief administrator and said he could not "continue longer in the employ of the state" because of future plans.

The state emergency relief administration will be supplanted by the state department of public welfare under the social security program.

Mr. Early said he was resigning because of "circumstances beyond his control" and extended the governor his "high regard."

The recently appointed state welfare board will meet Monday to organize, and in all probability name a commissioner of public welfare.

VENTURA, Calif., Dec. 12.—(AP)—A brush fire, well under way before it was sighted, swept out of control tonight and threatened a number of oil wells in the Ventura field.

FORMER MONARCH GIVEN TITLE OF DUKE OF WINDSOR

Says 'It May Be Some Time Before I Return To My Native Land'

CORONATION WILL TAKE PLACE AT TIME FIXED

Great Throngs Watch Pageantry Of Centuries Ago Re-Enacted

ABOARD ZURICH EXPRESS, France, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Edward David Windsor, who yesterday was king of England, sped across France tonight in quest of private life.

With a staff of five men and accompanied by his dog, the former monarch of the world's largest empire, occupied an ordinary pullman car of this fast express on its overnight trip to Switzerland.

Beyond Switzerland, Edward's plans were unrevealed.

He may stay somewhere in Switzerland and enjoy the winter sports of which he is fond, or he may go to Austria which some sources say he prefers for temporary retirement until he can wed Wallis Warfield Simpson after her divorce decree nisi from Ernest Simpson becomes final next April 27.

Accompanied by an aide, secretary, valet and two detectives, Edward remained in his car as the train chugged along the route from Boulogne, through Amiens, Reims, Mulhouse, Basel, en route to Basel and Zurich, Switzerland.

The train was filled with the usual assortment of passengers, who sat in compartment or dining car discussing excitedly the unexpected thrill of rid-

CITY'S CHRISTMAS LIGHTS TURNED ON

Brilliant Decorations To Illuminate Streets During Yule Holidays

Downtown Monroe bloomed into a blaze of Yuletide glory Saturday night when the Christmas decorations were first illuminated in the business district of the city.

DeSiard street became a veritable fairyland with its festoons of electric lights. Illuminated stars, punctuating the festoons at regular intervals the length of the street from the old traffic bridge to the Five Points, shed their radiance over the scene. High above the thoroughfare at the intersection of DeSiard and St. John, an enormous star, trailing brilliant lights to the tall buildings in the vicinity, was a conspicuous feature of the decorations.

The city hall was itself ablaze. The bell tower and the facade of the building were outlined in festive lights for the holiday season. All the illuminations will continue nightly until the new year is ushered in, it was announced by officials of the city power and light department, which arranged the display.

The display marks the official beginning of an elaborate program to make Ouachita parish the brightest spot in north Louisiana during the Christmas season.

Hundreds of homes as well as numbers of business houses are expected to join the general program during the coming week, through participa-

PICKETS USE FISTS TO ENFORCE STRIKE

PARK CITY, Utah, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Fighting pickets enforced with fists and feet today in a bloody 30-minute melee a strike tying up much of Utah's rich metal mining industry.

Tonight leaders of approximately 100 men who sought to penetrate 400 strikers choking the highway entrance to this mining camp said the next move was "up to Governor Henry R. Blood."

"It's up to the governor," said J. L. Johnson of Heber City as he commented on the rout of his followers. "We had no protection."

Between 30 and 40 men were beaten severely as the out-numbered volunteers from nearby Heber City were driven off. One youth appeared seriously injured, struck by a rock hurled by a woman bystander.

No clubs appeared. But, while wives and sweethearts of the strikers shrilled encouragement, the stronger picketing miners piled into the visitors with fists flying.

The King Kept His Word
A Man's Choice
What Might Have Been
May He Live Happily

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1936, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., International Copyright and all other rights reserved.)

MEN HAVE FOUGHT desperately, through the ages, risking death and torture, to gain or retain a throne. King Edward, wise, undoubtedly, in view of modern conditions and his own personality, gives up a throne that could be made by far the most powerful in the history of the world. He abandons forever, the hereditary right to rule over 500,000,000 human beings in his own empire, and will rule hereafter a valet, butler, cook, chauffeur, airplane pilot and an occasional head writer.

THE WORLD SAYS thoughtlessly, "he had to choose between the throne and the woman he loves and gave up the throne; how magnificent."

Magnificent, perhaps, but perhaps not necessary. Many in the past have kept "the woman they loved" and the throne also, sometimes several women that they loved. What has happened in England, demonstrates, as history has done over and over, a fact upon which rests the safety of the nations, from the dangers of permanent tyranny.

THE MASSES of people ceaselessly breed strong men, the throne and the life around it breeds weakness. Powerful French kings are followed by the rois faineants or "do nothing" kings.

The terrible Jenghiz Khan, conquers all the world, within reach, builds huge pyramids with the skulls of his enemies, dies and feebleness follows him on the throne.

While the throne and royalty of England were creating an early King George, the forests and unknown lands of America were building the young surveyor George Washington; and this has happened at intervals throughout all human history, shifting power gradually into the hands of the masses of mankind.

Those masses may demonstrate in the Spanish war, in European and Asiatic hatreds, in the inefficiency of United States government, that they are not yet ready for power or able to use it wisely. But they must learn to use it, and they will, as each child learns to walk.

IT IS NOT necessary to tell ambitious young American women, who take royalty and titles seriously, how Mrs. Simpson will feel when she marries what is left of the "King of England and Emperor of India."

No "Your Majesty," no courts, no garden party, not even an occasional visit to London; and no coronation. Grasping at the substance and seizing the shadow would be describing it feebly. The American girl who might have been "queen and empress," may not know at this moment what her married name will be. The former king will probably retain and use some one of his many titles, but not "king," not "His Royal and Imperial Majesty."

Mrs. Simpson will probably not be plain "Mrs. Windsor," which has been the king's family name, since the royal family, in the big war, gave up its real German name because Englishmen thought they would hate Germans forever.

THE KING will be respected because he chose to keep his word to Mrs. Simpson rather than keep his crown. His friends will wish that he had done both, and that Baldwin had not won the battle against the "Great danger of an American woman becoming queen of England."

COMMITTEE OKAYS 2 PEACE PROJECTS

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Two projects for peace, security and non-intervention in the western world, unanimously sponsored by representatives of all 21 American republics, speeded through an inter-American conference committee tonight toward final approval by the full conference Tuesday.

The measures, approved by acclamation in a peace organization committee meeting, were:

1. A plan for maintenance of peace and security which provides for consultation in the event of war within the American continents or war abroad which menaces American peace.

2. A reiteration of the resolution of the 1933 Pan-American conference, for non-intervention by one nation in another's affairs. This carried also a Mexican amendment for consultation if intervention appears necessary.

Observers pointed out the amendment gives Latin-American approval of the plan advocated by President Roosevelt and United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull, under which intervention, if necessary, would be by joint action after consultation.

INSURGENTS DROP DRIVE TO SMASH MADRID DEFENSES

Capital, However, Rushes Program To Evacuate Women And Children

'SIEGE OF STARVATION' WILL BE TRIED INSTEAD

Ten Persons Killed And Score Wounded In Artillery Bombardment

By Alexander H. Uhl

MADRID, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Fascist insurgents have abandoned efforts to smash their way through Madrid's defenses and resorted to an encircling "siege of starvation," the capital's military leaders believed tonight.

Nevertheless, the capital rushed its program of evacuation of women and children. The evacuation committee estimated 300,000 persons had been escorted from the metropolitan area and that 200,000 more would go shortly.

Despite isolated pushes in the University City suburban sector which were repulsed, indications were that the Fascists' main objective was to surround the city and cut its communications with the south toward Valencia.

Ten persons were killed today and a score wounded by insurgent artillery bombardment, but this was regarded mainly as a screen for the more important attempt to enforce a siebe that by cutting off food supplies would force the city to surrender.

To accomplish this, Fascists launched today strong pushes near Aranjuez on the southwest; Gaudalajara on the northeast, and in the Pozuelo sector. Madrid defenses, likewise, ordered renewed effort to prevent surrounding of the capital.

"Each day appears to confirm more and more the idea that German-Italian general staff of General Francisco Franco's army has renounced a frontal attack in view of the strength of our defences and is planning an offensive which will permit isolation of Madrid from its rear guard," the newspaper Juvantud theorized.

Enemy planes have been noticeably absent from the capital the past few days, confining their bombardments chiefly to sections where armed defenders of the city are stationed.

One man was killed, however, by shrapnel in the so-called neutral zone

Many Ouachita Parish Voters Must Qualify Within Next 15 Days

Exclusive of holidays, 15 days remain in which 10,000 voters of Ouachita parish must go to the sheriff's office and sign the state poll books for 1936 if they expect to vote during the next two years.

The figures show that an average of approximately 666 voters must call at the sheriff's office each day and sign the books before they are closed at midnight on December 31.

Poll book receipts for two consecutive years must be held by a voter in order to be qualified to cast a ballot.

Saturday a steady stream of voters called at the sheriff's office in response to an urgent appeal to voters to sign the books at their earliest convenience. The response, while gratifying to the sheriff's office staff, must increase considerably each day if an unusually late rush is to be avoided, it was stated.

Early last week it was announced that more than 10,000 voters had not signed the poll books for 1936. Late yesterday it was estimated that approximately 10,000 voters have yet to sign the books.

Officers down to New Orleans were asked to watch for the missing ambulance.

PUBLIC WANTS END TO SHIPPING TIE-UP

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Amid growing public demands for an end to the shipping tie-up, strikers and employers moved a little closer to the peace table today and the unions took another step toward relief for isolated Hawaii.

Portland's Mayor J. K. Carson appointed a citizens' committee to act with the backing of the city. Mayor Angelo J. Rossi of San Francisco called a meeting "to find out where we stand."

Rossi told Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady "a lot of vitally interested persons are getting impatient." McGrady promised to continue his extended peacemaking efforts.

WAVERLY, O., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Dr. W. L. McCaleb of Beaver said today he had delivered as the 11th child of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Brigner a son weighing 19 pounds—only about two pounds less than the normal weight of a year-old baby. The mother, who weighs only 135 pounds, was recovering nicely, he said.

Hunted Man Is Captured In Georgia

A search for Houston Goulette, 27, wanted by the Ouachita parish sheriff's department to answer an eight-month-old charge of carnal knowledge involving a 15-year-old girl—a search in which peace officers of five states were unsuccessful in efforts to apprehend Goulette for the local authorities—was ended dramatically Friday in a remote, mountainous section of northern Georgia when Frank X. Cline, native of Georgia and veteran deputy sheriff of Ouachita parish, personally reached the end of the hunted man's trail and took him into custody.

The end of the hunted man's trail marked the close of a search which had extended over the entire south. Peace officers of Texas, Mississippi, Florida and Georgia had been unsuccessful in efforts to apprehend Goulette after the Ouachita parish sheriff's department, through methods known only to members of the department, had ascertained that he re-

Money And Merchandise Taken From Telegraph Company Messenger

Two men who made a fake telephone call last night to Stough's bar, 237 South Grand street, asking the delivery of some goods to a residence on Riverfront, and change for ten dollars, attacked and robbed the delivery boy who called at the address and left him lying, practically unconscious, on the levee opposite the address, it was learned from police.

The delivery boy, Alton Cooper, 16, employed by the Postal Telegraph company, was sent by Guy Causey, bartender at Stough's bar, to deliver a pint of whiskey and two packages of cigarettes at a residence in the 500 block of Riverfront, after the telephone call was received. The youth was also given the change for ten dollars, $8.40. Both the money and the merchandise were taken from him.

Recovering his senses after being attacked by the two men, the boy returned to the bar and told Mr. Causey that in answering the call he went to the residence of Morris Haas, 505 Riverfront, but was told there that no telephone call to the bar had been made from that home. As he was leaving the yard of the home the boy

Action Throws Welfare Commissioner's Place Wide Open

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 12.—(AP)—The selection of a commissioner of welfare to direct the Louisiana social security program was thrown wide open today when Harry J. Early, generally considered a sure choice for the post, severed his connection with the state government.

Early handed Governor Richard W. Leche his resignation as state emergency relief administrator and said he could not "continue longer in the employ of the state" because of future plans.

The state emergency relief administration will be supplanted by the state department of public welfare under the social security program.

Mr. Early said he was resigning because of "circumstances beyond his control" and extended the governor his "high regard."

The recently appointed state welfare board will meet Monday to organize, and in all probability name a commissioner of public welfare.

FLAMES IN BRUSH MENACE OIL WELLS

VENTURA, Calif., Dec. 12.—(AP)—A brush fire, well under way before it was sighted, swept out of control tonight and threatened a number of oil wells in the Ventura field.

Rangers hastily assembled 50 fighters from CCC camps and stationed them at strategic positions in the mountains bordering the ocean. Strong ocean breezes were pushing the flames.

Great Throngs Watch Pageantry Of Centuries Ago Re-Enacted

ABOARD ZURICH EXPRESS, France, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Edward David Windsor, who yesterday was king of England, sped across France tonight in quest of private life.

With a staff of five men and accompanied by his dog, the former monarch of the world's largest empire, occupied an ordinary pullman car of this fast express on its overnight trip to Switzerland.

Beyond Switzerland, Edward's plans were unrevealed.

He may stay somewhere in Switzerland and enjoy the winter sports of which he is fond, or he may go to Austria which some sources say he prefers for temporary retirement until he can wed Wallis Warfield Simpson after her divorce decree nisi from Ernest Simpson becomes final next April 27.

Accompanied by an aide, secretary, valet and two detectives, Edward remained in his car as the train chugged along the route from Boulogne, through Amiens, Reims, Mulhouse, Basel, en route to Basel and Zurich, Switzerland.

The train was filled with the usual assortment of passengers, who sat in compartment or dining car discussing excitedly the unexpected thrill of rid-

CITY'S CHRISTMAS LIGHTS TURNED ON

Downtown Monroe bloomed into a blaze of Yuletide glory Saturday night when the Christmas decorations were first illuminated in the business district of the city.

DeSiard street became a veritable fairyland, with its festoons of electric lights. Illuminated stars, punctuating the festoons at regular intervals the length of the street from the old traffic bridge to the Five Points, shed their radiance over the scene. High above the thoroughfare at the intersection of DeSiard and St. John, an enormous star, trailing brilliant lights to the tall buildings in the vicinity, was a conspicuous feature of the decorations.

The city hall was itself ablaze. The bell tower and the facade of the building were outlined in festive lights for the holiday season. All the illuminations will continue nightly until the new year is ushered in, it was announced by officials of the city power and light department, which arranged the display.

The display marks the official beginning of an elaborate program to make Ouachita parish the brightest spot in north Louisiana during the Christmas season.

Hundreds of homes as well as numbers of business houses are expected to join the general program during the coming week, through participa-

PICKETS USE FISTS TO ENFORCE STRIKE

PARK CITY, Utah, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Fighting pickets enforced with fists and feet today in a bloody 30-minute melee a strike tying up much of Utah's rich metal mining industry.

Tonight leaders of approximately 100 men who sought to penetrate 400 strikers choking the highway entrance to this mining camp said the next move was "up to Governor Henry R. Blood."

"It's up to the governor," said J. L. Johnson of Heber City as he commented on the rout of his followers. "We had no protection."

Between 30 and 40 men were beaten severely as the out-numbered volunteers from nearby Heber City were driven off. One youth appeared seriously injured, struck by a rock hurled by a woman bystander.

No clubs appeared. But, while wives and sweethearts of the strikers shrilled encouragement, the stronger picketing miners piled into the visitors with fists flying.

GREAT PIPE ORGAN CONSUMED BY FIRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—With the destruction by fire recently of the famous London Crystal palace—huge exhibition hall of glass and steel—one of the world's finest pipe organs was forever silenced.

Gatty Sellars, English organist-composer, who played there only a short time before the fire to an audience of 50,000 persons, recalled today that the organ, a century old, had been played more than any instrument in the British isles.

"It had more than 200 miles of tubing," the organist said on his arrival here for his seventh American tour, "and despite the great size of the Crystal palace, the organ tones carried with great volume to every part of it.

"So great an organ it was that it defied every effort to broadcast its music. The broadcast technicians found it difficult to prevent 'blasting' because of the volume of tone it produced."

Sellars, who was organist for the national band festival at which more than 200 brass bands vied for a $10,000 trophy in the Crystal palace last September, believes there is a growing appreciation of organ music in England and in America as well.

The air circus which was postponed last Sunday on account of rain, will be held this afternoon if the weather is good, according to Irvin Davis, who is promoting the show at Selman field in conjunction with Barkdull Faulk post of the American Legion.

Davis announced that the show will start a half hour earlier than the schedule of last week with an air parade over the city being staged at 1 o'clock by Shirley Reitzel, Bob Gunn, Wat King, Hugh Mitchell and other local and visiting pilots.

Davis will start the air circus at 1:30 p.m., with a 10,000 foot jump from an airplane. He will plunge towards the earth for 9,000 feet before opening his parachute.

Reitzel will give an exhibition of inverted flying including "dead stick" stunting, barrel rolls, side-slips, loop-the-loops and "crazy flying."

A feature of the show will be Reitzel's attempt to pick up a handkerchief from the flying field with the wing tip of his speeding plane.

The other pilots will give exhibitions of daredevil stunting, serpentine cutting and bomb dropping.

During the intervals between stunts, two automobiles speeding at 70 miles an hour will stage a head-on collision on the field; a motorcycle polo contest will be held, and a motorcycle will be driven through a one-inch flaming board wall. The Ouachita Cycle club will participate in these events.

The climax of the air circus will be a spectacular "bat wing" jump by Davis, who will leave the plane from a height of 6,000 feet and will glide to earth on a pair of improvised canvas wings, opening his parachute when only a few hundred feet from the ground to break his fall. Davis is the originator of this stunt and is said to be the only man living who has performed it successfully, one other air ace having met death some months ago when he attempted the jump.

Although today is Sunday, the 13th of the month, the air aces will challenge the unlucky number and will hold nothing back in the way of death defying stunts.

Following the air circus, the visiting aces will carry passengers on flights over the Twin Cities.

Officials of the local American Legion post urge the public to attend the air circus which will provide lots of thrills and entertainment. Special buses will be run by the city authorities to Selman airport to provide ample transportation for those who wish to see the air circus.

Part of the proceeds from the show will be used by the local post to purchase a new emergency truck.

Gly-Cas Gives Her First Well Days In Twenty Years

Mrs. Galle's Arms And Hands Crippled With Rheumatism, Sharp Stabbing Neuritis Pains Awful; Now Like New; Entire System Toned By Gly-Cas

"Gly-Cas is the only medicine I have ever found that was deserving of the praise given it," said Mrs. Herman Galle, New Hope, Texas (near Abilene). "Gly-Cas drove the rheumatism out of my system and I am enjoying my first well days in years. My arms and hands swelled badly with this dreadful rheumatism, could not bend my fingers they would become so stiff and I was greatly hindered in my daily work. My whole arms and hands would have that 'dead' gone-to-sleep feeling and often had to hold my hands down to get the circulation started through them. Then to make me more miserable, neuritis pains, so sharp and stabbing were unbearable at times. Often severe sick headaches would put me right down in bed for days, was terribly nervous and could not sleep good. I lost my energy, had no appetite and was worn-out most of the time. But finally I was persuaded to try this new Gly-Cas and right then I began to show great improvement.

"I was actually surprised to see how Gly-Cas made my health troubles simply melt away," she continued. "It is almost unbelievable—but true—that every ache and pain of that awful rheumatism and neuritis has been driven from my system. The swelling has left too and even that dead, gone-to-sleep feeling has gone. My nerves are quieted, able to do my work with ease, sleep good and my former strength and energy has returned. Little did I realize that one medicine could be as wonderful. And Gly-Cas was not only for cases like mine but my husband having suffered with a disordered stomach for long put it to the test in his case. He too found it just what he had been needing and is never bothered with any suffering with gas, bloating or indigestion like he used to be. No wonder so many are praising Gly-Cas—it is one medicine that is deserving."

Gly-Cas is sold by Phoenix Drug Company, 348 DeSiard St., and by all leading drug stores in surrounding towns. (adv.)

AIR CIRCUS TO BE HELD TODAY

Show Postponed Last Sunday Will Be Staged This Afternoon

The air circus which was postponed last Sunday on account of rain, will be held this afternoon if the weather is good, according to Irvin Davis, who is promoting the show at Selman field in conjunction with Barkdull Faulk post of the American Legion.

Davis announced that the show will start a half hour earlier than the schedule of last week with an air parade over the city being staged at 1 o'clock by Shirley Reitzel, Bob Gunn, Wat King, Hugh Mitchell and other local and visiting pilots.

Davis will start the air circus at 1:30 p.m., with a 10,000 foot jump from an airplane. He will plunge towards the earth for 9,000 feet before opening his parachute.

Reitzel will give an exhibition of inverted flying including "dead stick" stunting, barrel rolls, side-slips, loop-the-loops and "crazy flying."

A feature of the show will be Reitzel's attempt to pick up a handkerchief from the flying field with the wing tip of his speeding plane.

The other pilots will give exhibitions of daredevil stunting, serpentine cutting and bomb dropping.

During the intervals between stunts, two automobiles speeding at 70 miles an hour will stage a head-on collision on the field; a motorcycle polo contest will be held, and a motorcycle will be driven through a one-inch flaming board wall. The Ouachita Cycle club will participate in these events.

The climax of the air circus will be a spectacular "bat wing" jump by Davis, who will leave the plane from a height of 6,000 feet and will glide to earth on a pair of improvised canvas wings, opening his parachute when only a few hundred feet from the ground to break his fall. Davis is the originator of this stunt and is said to be the only man living who has performed it successfully, one other air ace having met death some months ago when he attempted the jump.

Although today is Sunday, the 13th of the month, the air aces will challenge the unlucky number and will hold nothing back in the way of death defying stunts.

Following the air circus, the visiting aces will carry passengers on flights over the Twin Cities.

Officials of the local American Legion post urge the public to attend the air circus which will provide lots of thrills and entertainment. Special buses will be run by the city authorities to Selman airport to provide ample transportation for those who wish to see the air circus.

Part of the proceeds from the show will be used by the local post to purchase a new emergency truck.

Evil Communications Corrupt Good Manners

"You cannot fumigate against ideas nor build fences against thoughts," declares an editorial writer.

But you can. You can fumigate spiritually against ideas and build moral fences against thoughts. If you could not, you would be in a deplorable fix.

We do not realize how effectively we can fumigate against ideas and build fences against thoughts and how important it is that we do so.

Much is being said nowadays about how fine it is for the world that every section is in constant communication with every other section. Yes, and to that state of affairs can probably be attributed the fact that the whole world is today in greater disturbance than it ever was before.

Today, when somebody conceives a dramatic idea which appeals to the best or the worst in human nature, it is flashed by radio and wire from sea to sea and from land to land. Almost instantly the suggestion girdles the globe and is caught up by receptive minds.

We know the dangers of communicable physical diseases; so we have worked out a system of quarantining persons having such diseases. Yet unwholesome ideas and thoughts are more communicable and more deadly than physical diseases.

There was a day when the very meagerness of means of communication tended to confine injurious thoughts to the localities in which they originated. But today with our unlimited facilities for spreading ideas there is no possibility of quarantining harmful thoughts. They are broadcast along with good thoughts throughout the world.

Most constructive instrumentalities have destructive potentialities. The communication systems of the world are in that class.

If we are not to be infected and reinfected by harmful thoughts and ideas we must learn how to protect ourselves from them. We must learn thought control, thought purification. We must learn what constitutes good thoughts; how to sift the bad from the good, and how to keep and use the good. We must learn how to fill our minds with wholesome thoughts and ideas so that there will be no room for the lodgment of the other kind.

Every advance we make in science and invention calls on us for more wisdom, knowledge and understanding. It is for us to use these for our best good and not for base and unworthy purposes.

FATHERS' SONS

No one could have been more embarrassed by the cry, "Down with imperialism," which disturbed the amenities of the Inter-American Peace conference, than the father of the man who uttered it. The heckler was Liborio Justo, Communist son of President Augustin Justo of Argentina. And perhaps no one at the opening session of the conference had more sympathetic understanding for the harassed father than the gentleman to whom the heckling was addressed. For President Roosevelt is aware of the infinite capacity sons possess to embarrass illustrious fathers.

The contemporary scene abounds in historic examples. British solidity, as represented by that staunch oak, Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, quivered at the propensity of his own son Oliver for turning political handsprings. Herr Oliver enlisted with Sir Oswald Mosley's Black Shirts as a sequel to his early ventures in politics when, as a Socialist, he campaigned against pater, who is as conservative as Yorkshire pudding.

Closer to home there was the case of Corliss Lamont and his banker father, Thomas W. Lamont. While Lamont pere was attending strictly to business as a Morgan partner, son Corliss was getting himself locked up in Jersey City as a picket for striking employes of a manufacturing plant.

So the incident at Buenos Aires need not cause President Justo too many uneasy moments. Mr. Roosevelt seemed to have reached a fine understanding with him before son Liborio cut loose. As one father to another, and on the theory that one touch of foolishness makes all fathers kin, that understanding may have been enhanced. Who knows?

PRECARIOUS 'BANKS'

Americans as a rule haven't money to burn—but, according to the United States treasury, you'd never think it.

Every year, about this time, wails of woe come floating from throughout the United States. The burden of most of these laments is that mother or father had cached money in a stove, furnace, or hearth, and absentmindedly had started a fire. And could Mr. Uncle Sam please redeem their charred savings?

Just the other day, in Ottumwa, Ia., a waitress lighted a fire in a stove, to heat some food, and cremated $1,200 which the tavern owner had saved to purchase an automobile.

While treasury officials have been able to salvage a lot from the ashes, they probably wish citizens would use a little more forethought in their method of saving for a rainy day.

It isn't true that people won't trust a man unless they know what he stands for. Look at Borah.

Rhyme And Reason

By ANNE CAMPBELL

IF WE SHOULD MEET

If we should meet
Upon a city street,
The winter day
Would quickly fade away,
And in its place
Would shine spring's lovely face.

If, suddenly,
Your hand reached out to me,
The birds would sing
And happy tulips fling
Their golden store
Upon the earth's green floor.

If we should stand
Together, on the land
The sun would shine,
And this glad heart of mine
Would flood with light
Our parting's sudden night.

Forgotten Americans

By BRUCE CATTON

So many biographies are being printed these days that you'd hardly think any American of the slightest importance had been missed by the men who write life histories for the reading public.

But it does happen. Indeed, the biographers have barely scratched the surface. For proof, consider the fact that the twentieth volume of the Dictionary of American Biography has just been printed—an eight-year job, containing brief stories about more than 13,500 past and present Americans whose lives were significant enough to deserve preservation in history.

And it is an odd thing, considering the fact that each of these persons contributed his or her share to the shaping of the nation, to reflect that there are thousands of people in this vast dictionary of whom most of us never heard before.

Who, for instance, was Hannah Adams? Who was Ohio Columbus Barber, and what did he do that affects your life today? Who was William A. Bullock, and how does his life work influence your own existence? Who were Thomas Fitzpatrick and Leslie K. Keeley and Francois Prevost?

They're worth finding out about. Hannah Adams, for instance, was the first American woman to make writing a profession; she helped, in other words, to pave the way for people like Willa Cather and Edna Ferber and Dorothy Thompson and Edith Wharton.

Ohio Barber used to peddle hand-made matches from door to door; he wound up as founder of the great Diamond Match company, and the next time you strike a match to light a cigaret or start a fire on the hearth, you might reflect that Ohio Barber helped make the job easy for you.

William A. Bullock invented the high-speed printing press, and you can't escape from his influence if you read a newspaper. Fitzpatrick was a trapper and Indian agent whose name might well rank beside Kit Carson's. Keeley devised the method of treating and rehabilitating drunkards, which bears his name to this day. Prevost performed the first Caesarean sections in medical history.

These names are only a few random samples from this dictionary. And it is interesting to reflect how much of the important work of the world gets done by people like these—people whom fame somehow misses, who either are ignored entirely by the history books or cut down to a few lines, but who nevertheless helped to create a different world for the people who came after them.

Fame is capricious. Popular biographies go to the interesting persons, but not necessarily to the important ones. Of that great debt which we owe to the past, a substantial part—perhaps even a major part—is due to the unsung men and women who got no reward in history.

A BOOK REVIEW

CHRISTMAS BOOKS THAT WILL DELIGHT CHILDREN

Of course you're going to be buying a book, or books, for some child or other this Christmas. And the list of worth-while Christmas books is so very long that a reviewer can do no more than hit the high spots.

There follows, then, a much abbreviated list of books recommended for youngsters this Christmas.

For a child between 6 and 12, who wouldn't mind receiving entertainment and historical knowledge in the same dose, there is "Betsy Ross," by Helen Dixon Bates. This book puts biography and history on the child's level of comprehension, and makes a first-rate story.

A companion book by the same author is "Francis Scott Key." Both are good.

For that same age group there is "Paul Bunyan Swings His Axe," by Dell J. McCormick, a warm and sympathetic retelling of the great logging-camp saga that ought to keep any youngster round-eyed and alert long after bedtime.

And just incidentally, for this age group, don't forget the old favorites—the A. A. Milne "Pooh" books, and P. L. Travers' fine "Mary Poppins" tales. The "Lucretia Ann" books by Ruth Gipson Plowhead also are first-rate.

For children just over the 12-year mark, there are such books as "The Falcon Mystery," by S. S. Smith, a fine puzzler in a Hungarian setting; "Where Is Sylvia?" by Marguerite Aspinwall, a swift mystery story for girls; "The Will to Win" by Stephen Meader, a collection of red-blooded sports stories; "On the Golden Trail," by Hildegarde Hawthorne, an adventure story of California gold rush days; "Drums in the Forest," by Allan Dwight, a thrilling adventure story of the French and Indians in colonial Canada; and "The Fortunes of Captain Blood," by Rafael Sabatini, which brings a very popular adventurer back to the scene of his piratical triumphs.

This list, as I say, is incomplete. It is bound to be, unless one has a couple of columns at his disposal. But one final word:

In buying books for youngsters, don't overlook the excellent editions of the classics which many publishers are bringing out. You can buy old favorites, such as "Treasure Island," "The Water Babies," "Tom Sawyer," and so on in slick, illustrated editions that will delight any youngster.

Look over some of them before you make your selection.

NEW YORK Day by Day by O. O. McIntyre

One of the heartening lessons, out of the bitterly fought presidential election, was the excellent spirit of American tolerance after the storm blew over. Within 48 hours the entire population, caught in the ground swell of factional hate, had accepted the will of the majority and were anxious and willing to stand by the winner and be what we like to call "good sports."

Two nights after the Democratic victory, I was at a dinner whose guests were largely Republican. I had heard several express themselves vehemently about things at Washington. But here they were reconciled and convinced thoroughly such an enormous vote proved decisively the country was headed in the right direction and had been all the while.

I think, too, many were relieved over the insignificant showing by Communists in the ballot box. If it ever had a toe hold it would appear loosened. All in all, it strikes me, it's good for a people to grow wrathy over political creeds. They not only have the fun of "making up," but as in a violent electrical storm, the atmosphere is cleared, the clouds send by and the sun shines a bit brighter.

Such congealment after election also proves that 99 per cent are good Americans and that our disputes are chiefly because of our love of country.

Disraeli once said: "A nation that does not indulge in a flare of hot anger now and then over its fate is likely to go to seed." And the Average Man is grateful too for the return of the radio to the usual program. It was claimed the radio played important part in the election. This I do not believe. I think the mass mind was formed before the barrage of political bilge was unloosed.

Recently I inquired the whereabouts of Winnie Lightner, stage and screen star. Next day came this telegram: "You wanted to know what became of me. I am living in Beverly Hills and am very happy. I was born on 60th street and my area encompassed such landmarks as the St. Nicholas Skating rink, Durland's Riding academy, Healy's and the Marie Antoinette hotel. I was one if the youngsters who was a friend of the veteran Central Park shepherd Dan Conway. But if I go on with such memories I won't be so happy."

And this letter from Fort Worth: "I thought you might be interested in a 'local boy makes good' story. I am enclosing a recent page from Amon Carter's paper. Broadway and the Bible Belt were strange bed fellows. Broadway liked it—evidently they did too. Every so often you toss me a posey—a nice, red, fragrant one. I wish I knew how to toss one back without the gesture seeming phoney. Perhaps some day you will be able to jot in your diary something like this 'to dinner at the Billy Roses. Fanny was very amusing. Potato pan-cakes in the kitchen at dawn and so not to bed.'—Cordially, Billy Rose."

A number of requests to reprint the anonymous little sermon, "The Ship," has come because of its comfort to the bereaved. Here it is:

"I am standing upon the seashore. A ship at my side spreads her sails and starts for the blue ocean. She is an object of beauty and strength and I stand and watch her until at length she is only a ribbon of white cloud just where the sea and sky come to mingle with each other.

"Then someone at my side says: 'There! She's gone.' Gone where? gone from my sight—that is all. . . . and just at the moment when someone at my side says: 'There! She is gone,' there are other voices glad to take up the shout—'There! She comes!' "

Chic Sale was a friend of long standing and we have exchanged letters at intervals for years. In his last, written two weeks before his passing, he said: "Everything going along nicely. Do just enough picture work to keep out of mischief. About 50-50 business and golf with business a lot better than the golf. All of us in the family stay well and that's the big thing."

A press agent, as press agents will, sends in this bouffe bravura:

Sylvia Sidney, herself the proud possessor of a 1647 Shakespeare, has unearthed what may prove to be a source of rich material regarding the Bard, who even now, is pretty well swathed in mystery. Stratford, she says, has been drained of material and to small avail. Thus, during her recent film making visit to England, she did a little delving and spent much time in Actor, a Middlesex town, where she found new Shakespearian data through records concerning the poet's daughter, Susanna, eldest child, who married a doctor named John Hall. Sylvia, jealous of her discoveries, returns in the spring to verify and document each of them, before making her contribution to Shakespeariana.

N. B. The part of the p. a.'s yarn which we are constrained to credit is that Miss Sidney was in England.

Stamp News

By I. S. Klein

FOLLOWING the example of Luxemburg, in 1935, France has released four stamps, with surtaxes added, "for the relief of intellectuals." There are four in the series, with the pictures of the artist and engraver, Callot; the composer, Berlioz; the writer, Victor Hugo; and the scientist, Pasteur, distributed singly among them.

Family Health

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Doctors used to pay much more attention to the tongue than they now do. It once was customary for the doctor to look at a patient's tongue and to pay a great deal of attention to the kind of coating it had upon it, or to its color.

Scarlet fever victims frequently have what is called "strawberry tongue." When the tongue is furred and coated, there is usually some disturbance of digestion. A fever, or any other condition which causes dryness of the mouth, will be reflected very promptly in the appearance of the tongue.

The tissue of the tongue is fairly delicate, so that it responds promptly to irritations. Thus, the tongue may be suddenly inflamed by bites, burns, or by secondary infections while a patient is suffering from scarlet fever, typhoid, or smallpox.

Whenever the tongue is infected, the glands under the jaw and on the sides of the neck also become infected and swollen in the attempt to stop the spread of the infection.

Occasionally, the tissue which holds the tongue is too long at birth. This develops into some exceedingly unusual conditions.

If the tissue is abnormally long, the tongue may fall back in the throat, and be swallowed during sleep, asphyxiating the victim. This has happened in recorded cases.

The tissue which holds the tongue also may be so short as to cause tongue-tie, and consequent disturbance of speech.

There are instances in which the tongue overgrows so that it protrudes beyond the lips, and a condition has been described in which only one-half of the tongue develops properly, so that one-half is larger than the other.

When children have an insufficient amount of secretion of the thyroid gland, the tongue seems large; and it almost invariably protrudes from the mouth in the type of thyroid deficiency called cretinism or myxedema. As will be shown later, when there is deficient secretion of the thyroid gland, the child usually fails to develop, both mentally and physically.

When the tongue is chronically inflamed and red, a digestive disturbance or sensitivity to various foods may be responsible. In these cases there sometimes is found a deficiency in the important vitamins, particularly of vitamin B.

Teeth and tonsils should be studied for presence of any infection. It is customary to use some mild alkaline mouthwash and to feed irritating fluids through a straw. If the patient has rest and ordinary attention, these inflammations usually clear up satisfactorily.

Behind The Scenes In Washington

(Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON.—Any correspondent who didn't at some time turn his typewriter loose on the affair of Mrs. Simpson, King Edward VIII, and the British empire would be laying off one of the biggest stories of the century.

American statesmen spend all their time talking about that astonishing imbroglio instead of devoting themselves to their proper duty of giving a correspondent his quota of news tips.

Some newspapermen have it figured that the only dispatches they can write which will get any space in their newspapers will have to substitute the name of Mrs. Simpson for those of all the actual characters involved. So you mustn't be surprised any day to see a story from Washington reading more or less like this:

"The supreme court today held the Simpson act unconstitutional, deciding the case of Simpson versus Simpson, in another 5-to-4 decision which was immediately denounced by Senator Simpson of Idaho as a blow at human liberties. Five conservative members—Chief Justice Simpson and Justices Simpson, Simpson, Simpson and Simpson—lined up against the four liberals—Simpson, Simpson, Simpson and Simpson—to hold that the rights of Mrs. Simpson, the plaintiff, had been invaded under the due process clause.

"President Simpson, asked to comment at his regular White House press conference, said he would have nothing to say pending a conference with Attorney General Simpson and Secretaries Simpson and Simpson, the cabinet officers most directly concerned."

You can see what a lot of possibilities the idea has.

Fear Empire's Disruption

Presumably in common with most other world capitals where speech and press are still free, Washington is divided between the "Wally for Queen" and the "Stop Simpson" movements.

There is a heavy body of opinion, however, which holds that the British empire has been threatened with disruption and that anything which tends to weaken the British empire is all to the bad for the United States as well as for the rest of the world and the beleaguered institution of democracy.

Insiders of international politics, although they may sympathize with Edward and believe Stanley Baldwin made a mistake in bringing the Simpson issue to a head when it might have been staved off, say that in addition to the war danger factor, Baldwin knows some things about the empire which are not commonly realized over here.

Dominions Losing Faith

Confidential reports say some of the dominions are growing more doubtful about the value of the thin ties which hold them together with Britain, especially since England bowed to the fact of Italian aggression in Ethiopia and again to alleged German-Italian intervention in Spain.

If these reports are true, it is obvious that the constitutional explosion over the king's proposed marriage, with its repercussions through the seven seas, came at the worst possible time.

At the League of Nations session where the question of recognizing Ethiopia as a league member came up, representatives of New Zealand, Canada, South Africa and the Irish Free State protested strongly the British position that Ethiopia shouldn't be admitted.

The incident was said to be significant of the fact that some dominions, at least, are no longer as sure as they once were of British ability to provide naval and military help in time of war.

Important to United States

Doubts are said to be especially strong in Australia and New Zealand. The British government has recently been trying to dissolve these doubts.

If you realize that American foreign policy is postulated on the theory that the future virtually makes it mandatory on this country to be chummier with Great Britain than with any other major power, you'll see why the men who carry out that policy have been vitally interested as to the success with which the British solve their problem of a king and his friend.

The burden of most of these laments is that mother or father had cached money in a stove, furnace, or hearth, and absentmindedly had started a fire. And could Mr. Uncle Sam please redeem their charred savings?

Just the other day, in Ottumwa, Ia., a waitress lighted a fire in a stove, to heat some food, and cremated $1,200 which the tavern owner had saved to purchase an automobile.

While treasury officials have been able to salvage a lot from the ashes, they probably wish citizens would use a little more forethought in their method of saving for a rainy day.

Rhyme And Reason

By ANNE CAMPBELL

IF WE SHOULD MEET

If we should meet
Upon a city street,
The winter day
Would quickly fade away,
And in its place
Would shine spring's lovely face.

If, suddenly,
Your hand reached out to me,
The birds would sing
And happy tulips fling
Their golden store
Upon the earth's green floor.

If we should stand
Together, on the land
The sun would shine,
And this glad heart of mine
Would flood with light

Forgotten Americans

By BRUCE CATTON

So many biographies are being printed these days that you'd hardly think any American of the slightest importance had been missed by the men who write life histories for the reading public.

But it does happen. Indeed, the biographers have barely scratched the surface. For proof, consider the fact that the twentieth volume of the Dictionary of American Biography has just been printed—an eight-year job, containing brief stories about more than 13,500 past and present Americans whose lives were significant enough to deserve preservation in history.

And it is an odd thing, considering the fact that each of these persons contributed his or her share to the shaping of the nation, to reflect that there are thousands of people in this vast dictionary of whom most of us never heard before.

Who, for instance, was Hannah Adams? Who was Ohio Columbus Barber, and what did he do that affects your life today? Who was William A. Bullock, and how does his life work influence your own existence? Who were Thomas Fitzpatrick and Leslie K. Keeley and Francois Prevost?

They're worth finding out about. Hannah Adams, for instance, was the first American woman to make writing a profession; she helped, in other words, to pave the way for people like Willa Cather and Edna Ferber and Dorothy Thompson and Edith Wharton.

Ohio Barber used to peddle hand-made matches from door to door; he wound up as founder of the great Diamond Match company, and the next time you strike a match to light a cigaret or start a fire on the hearth, you might reflect that Ohio Barber helped make the job easy for you.

William A. Bullock invented the high-speed printing press, and you can't escape from his influence if you read a newspaper. Fitzpatrick was a trapper and Indian agent whose name might well rank beside Kit Carson's. Keeley devised the method of treating and rehabilitating drunkards, which bears his name to this day. Prevost performed the first Caesarean sections in medical history.

Those names are only a few random samples from this dictionary. And it is interesting to reflect how much of the important work of the world gets done by people like these—people whom fame somehow misses, who either are ignored entirely by the history books or cut down to a few lines, but who nevertheless helped to create a different world for the people who came after them.

Fame is capricious. Popular biographies go to the interesting persons, but not necessarily to the important ones. Of that great debt which we owe to the past, a substantial part—perhaps even a major part—is due to the unsung men and women who got no reward in history.

A BOOK REVIEW

CHRISTMAS BOOKS THAT WILL DELIGHT CHILDREN

Of course you're going to be buying a book, or books, for some child or other this Christmas. And the list of worth-while Christmas books is so very long that a reviewer can do no more than hit the high spots.

There follows, then, a much abbreviated list of books recommended for youngsters this Christmas.

For a child between 6 and 12, who wouldn't mind receiving entertainment and historical knowledge in the same dose, there is "Betsy Ross," by Helen Dixon Bates. This book puts biography and history on the child's level of comprehension, and makes a first-rate story.

A companion book by the same author is "Francis Scott Key." Both are good.

For that same age group there is "Paul Bunyan Swings His Axe," by Dell J. McCormick; a warm and sympathetic retelling of the great logging-camp saga that ought to keep any youngster round-eyed and alert long after bedtime.

And just incidentally, for this age group, don't forget the old favorites—the A. A. Milne "Pooh" books, and P. L. Travers' fine "Mary Poppins" tales. The "Lucretia Ann" books by Ruth Gipson Plowhead also are first-rate.

For children just over the 12-year mark, there are such books as "The Falcon Mystery," by S. S. Smith, a fine puzzler in a Hungarian setting; "Where Is Sylvia?" by Marguerite Aspinwall, a swift mystery story for girls; "The Will to Win," by Stephen Meader, a collection of red-blooded sports stories; "On the Golden Trail," by Hildegarde Hawthorne, an adventure story of California gold rush days; "Drums in the Forest," by Allan Dwight, a thrilling adventure story of the French and Indians in colonial Canada; and "The Fortunes of Captain Blood," by Rafael Sabatini, which brings a very popular adventurer back to the scene of his piratical triumphs.

This list, as I say, is incomplete. It is bound to be, unless one has a couple of columns at his disposal. But one final word:

In buying books for youngsters, don't overlook the excellent editions of the classics which many publishers are bringing out. You can buy old favorites, such as "Treasure Island," "The Water Babies," "Tom Sawyer," and so on in slick, illustrated editions that will delight any youngster.

Look over some of them before you make your selection.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON
ALL ITEMS SELF-EXPLANATORY
(Copyright, 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

One of the heartening lessons, out of the bitterly fought presidential election, was the excellent spirit of American tolerance after the storm blew over. Within 48 hours the entire population, caught in the ground swell of factional hate, had accepted the will of the majority and were anxious and willing to stand by the winner and be what we like to call "good sports."

Two nights after the Democratic victory, I was at a dinner whose guests were largely Republican. I had heard several express themselves vehemently about things at Washington. But here they were reconciled and convinced thoroughly such an enormous vote proved decisively the country was headed in the right direction and had been all the while.

I think, too, many were relieved over the insignificant showing by Communists in the ballot box. If it ever had a toe hold it would appear loosened. All in all, it strikes me, it's good for a people to grow wrathy over political creeds. They not only have the fun of "making up," but as in a violent electrical storm, the atmosphere is cleared, the clouds scud by and the sun shines a bit brighter.

Such congealment after election also proves that 99 per cent are good Americans and that our disputes are chiefly because of our love of country.

Disraeli once said: "A nation that does not indulge in a flare of hot anger now and then over its fate is likely to go to seed." And the Average Man is grateful too for the return of the radio to the usual program. It was claimed the radio played important part in the election. This I do not believe. I think the mass mind was formed before the barrage of political bilge was unloosed.

Recently I inquired the whereabouts of Winnie Lightner, stage and screen star. Next day came this telegram: "You wanted to know what became of me. I am living in Beverly Hills and am very happy. I was born on 66th street and my area encompassed such landmarks as the St. Nicholas Skating rink, Durland's Riding academy, Healy's and the Marie Antoinette hotel. I was one if the youngsters who was a friend of the veteran Central Park shepherd Dan Conway. But if I go on with such memories I won't be so happy."

And this letter from Fort Worth: "I thought you might be interested in a 'local boy makes good' story. I am enclosing a recent page from Amon Carter's paper. Broadway and the Bible Belt were strange bed fellows. Broadway liked it—evidently they did too. Every so often you toss me a posey—a nice, red, fragrant one. I wish I knew how to toss one back without the gesture seeming phoney. Perhaps some day you will be able to jot in your diary something like this 'to dinner at the Billy Roses. Fanny was very amusing. Potato pan-cakes in the kitchen at dawn and so not to bed.'—Cordially, Billy Rose."

A number of requests to reprint the anonymous little sermon, "The Ship," has come because of its comfort to the bereaved. Here it is:

"I am standing upon the seashore. A ship at my side spreads her sails and starts for the blue ocean. She is an object of beauty and strength and I stand and watch her until at length she is only a ribbon of white cloud just where the sea and sky come to mingle with each other.

"Then someone at my side says: 'There! She's gone.' Gone where? gone from my sight—that is all. . . . and just at the moment when someone at my side says: 'There! She is gone,' there are other voices glad to take up the shout—'There! She comes!'"

A press agent, as press agents will, sends in this bouffe bravura:

Sylvia Sidney, herself the proud possessor of a 1647 Shakespeare, has unearthed what may prove to be a source of rich material regarding the Bard, who even now, is pretty well swathed in mystery. Stratford, she says, has been drained of material and to small avail. Thus, during her recent film making visit to England, she did a little delving and spent much time in Actor, a Middlesex town, where she found new Shakespearian data through records concerning the poet's daughter, Susanna, eldest child, who married a doctor named John Hall. Sylvia, jealous of her discoveries, returns in the spring to verify and document each of them, before making her contribution to Shakespeariana.

N. B. The part of the p. a.'s yarn which we are constrained to credit is that Miss Sidney was in England.

Stamp News

By I. S. Klein

FOLLOWING the example of Luxemburg, in 1935, France has released four stamps, with surtaxes added, "for the relief of intellectuals." There are four in the series, with the pictures of the artist and engraver, Callot; the composer, Berlioz; the writer, Victor Hugo; and the scientist, Pasteur, distributed singly among them.

Christmas time also produces a run of "Charity" stamps in the countries of Europe. One of the most beautiful of this type is the set of eight stamps issued by Belgium and bearing the picture of the little Crown Prince Baudouin of Belgium, son of King Leopold III and the late Queen Astrid. It shows a plain photograph of the smiling crown prince in profile.

Family Health

Doctors used to pay much more attention to the tongue than they now do. It once was customary for the doctor to look at a patient's tongue and to pay a great deal of attention to the kind of coating it had upon it, or to its color.

Scarlet fever victims frequently have what is called "strawberry tongue." When the tongue is furred and coated, there is usually some disturbance of digestion. A fever, or any other condition which causes dryness of the mouth, will be reflected very promptly in the appearance of the tongue.

The tissue of the tongue is fairly delicate, so that it responds promptly to irritations. Thus, the tongue may be suddenly inflamed by bites, burns, or by secondary infections while a patient is suffering from scarlet fever, typhoid, or smallpox.

Whenever the tongue is infected, the glands under the jaw and on the sides of the neck also become infected and swollen in the attempt to stop the spread of the infection.

Occasionally, the tissue which holds the tongue is too long at birth. This develops into some exceedingly unusual conditions.

If the tissue is abnormally long, the tongue may fall back in the throat, and be swallowed during sleep, asphyxiating the victim. This has happened in recorded cases.

The tissue which holds the tongue also may be so short as to cause tongue-tie, and consequent disturbance of speech.

There are instances in which the tongue overgrows so that it protrudes beyond the lips, and a condition has been described in which only one-half of the tongue develops properly, so that one-half is larger than the other.

When children have an insufficient amount of secretion of the thyroid gland, the tongue seems large; and it almost invariably protrudes from the mouth in the type of thyroid deficiency called cretinism or myxedema. As will be shown later, when there is deficient secretion of the thyroid gland, the child usually fails to develop, both mentally and physically.

When the tongue is chronically inflamed and red, a digestive disturbance or sensitivity to various foods may be responsible. In these cases there sometimes is found a deficiency in the important vitamins, particularly of vitamin B.

Teeth and tonsils should be studied for presence of any infection. It is customary to use some mild alkaline mouthwash and to feed irritating fluids through a straw. If the patient has rest and ordinary attention, these inflammations usually clear up satisfactorily.

Behind The Scenes In Washington

(Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON.—Any correspondent who didn't at some time turn his typewriter loose on the affair of Mrs. Simpson, King Edward VIII, and the British empire would be laying off one of the biggest stories of the century.

American statesmen spend all their time talking about that astonishing imbroglio instead of devoting themselves to their proper duty of giving a correspondent his quota of news tips.

Some newspapermen have it figured that the only dispatches they can write which will get any space in their newspapers will have to substitute the name of Mrs. Simpson for those of all the actual characters involved. So you mustn't be surprised any day to see a story from Washington reading more or less like this:

"The supreme court today held the Simpson act unconstitutional, deciding the case of Simpson versus Simpson, in another 5-to-4 decision which was immediately denounced by Senator Simpson of Idaho as a blow at human liberties. Five conservative members—Chief Justice Simpson and Justices Simpson, Simpson, Simpson and Simpson—lined up against the four liberals—Simpson, Simpson, Simpson and Simpson—to hold that the rights of Mrs. Simpson, the plaintiff, had been invaded under the due process clause.

"President Simpson, asked to comment at his regular White House press conference, said he would have nothing to say pending a conference with Attorney General Simpson and Secretaries Simpson and Simpson, the cabinet officers most directly concerned."

You can see what a lot of possibilities the idea has.

Fear Empire's Disruption

Presumably in common with most other world capitals where speech and press are still free, Washington is divided between the "Wally for Queen" and the "Stop Simpson" movements.

There is a heavy body of opinion, however, which holds that the British empire has been threatened with disruption and that anything which tends to weaken the British empire is all to the bad for the United States as well as for the rest of the world and the beleaguered institution of democracy.

Insiders of international politics, although they may sympathize with Edward and believe Stanley Baldwin made a mistake in bringing the Simpson issue to a head when it might have been staved off, say that in addition to the war danger factor, Baldwin knows some things about the empire which are not commonly realized over here.

Dominions Losing Faith

Confidential reports say some of the dominions are growing more doubtful about the value of the thin ties which hold them together with Britain, especially since England bowed to the fact of Italian aggression in Ethiopia and again to alleged German-Italian intervention in Spain.

If these reports are true, it is obvious that the constitutional explosion over the king's proposed marriage, with its repercussions through the seven seas, came at the worst possible time.

At the League of Nations session where the question of recognizing Ethiopia as a league member came up, representatives of New Zealand, Canada, South Africa and the Irish Free State protested strongly the British position that Ethiopia shouldn't be admitted.

The incident was said to be significant of the fact that some dominions, at least, are no longer as sure as they once were of British ability to provide naval and military help in time of war.

Important to United States

Doubts are said to be especially strong in Australia and New Zealand. The British government has recently been trying to dissolve these doubts.

If you realize that American foreign policy is postulated on the theory that the future virtually makes it mandatory on this country to be chummier with Great Britain than with any other major power, you'll see why the men who carry out that policy have been vitally interested as to the success with which the British solve their problem of a king and his friend.

MEDICAL SOCIETY ELECTS OFFICERS

Dr. C. Prentice Gray, Jr., Heads Fifth District Association

The Fifth District Medical society elected Dr. C. Prentice Gray, Jr., president of the group for the ensuing year at the meeting in Hotel Frances Friday afternoon. Other officers named were Dr. Ralph King, of Winnsboro, vice-president; Dr. Morgan Simonton, secretary-treasurer. Scientific papers were read and plans outlined for the annual state convention here next April 26-28.

The scientific papers were by Dr. James K. Howles of New Orleans; Dr. Edward Knighton, Jr., of Shreveport; Dr. James E. Walsworth of Monroe; and Dr. Rosse Veal of New Orleans.

Dr. P. T. Talbot of New Orleans, secretary-treasurer of the Louisiana State Medical society, was present and outlined plans for the state convention.

Several public meetings will be held in some local auditorium large enough to accommodate a large assemblage and speakers of note in the medical profession will be here and take part on the program. It is said to be probable that Dr. Will Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., will attend and address the public. Other noted physicians from New Orleans and other cities of the north and east are expected.

The scientific and commercial displays will be larger than ever and will attract unusual interest in the profession, it is believed.

There will be many other novel plans worked out for the advancement of medical science. Entertainment will also be interspersed.

Gravel Company Operator Flies His Own Monoplane

H. C. Miller Has Flown Between Two Businesses For Five Years

About once a week a snappy monoplane rolled from a hangar on the west side of West Monroe taxies across its private landing field, easily takes the air and wings its way eastward towards the Mississippi river.

For five years this lone ship has flashed its way over the Twin Cities, so high that few people muster sufficient curiosity to look towards the skies in an effort to identify it.

This mystery plane, if they only knew it, merits the keenest curiosity, for it is the only plane in this section of the state that is used solely for private business purposes and is flown by a pilot who claims the distinction of being one of the 25 or perhaps 30 persons in the United States more than 50 years of age holding a pilot's license.

H. C. Miller, who owns and flies the plane, is 53 years old. He is owner of the Fair River Sand and Gravel company at Monticello, Miss., and part owner of the Monroe Sand and Gravel company, near West Monroe. He lives on the Brown Paper mill extension road off highway 80, and takes to the air with the same unconcern that most persons would show in stepping into an automobile.

Mr. Miller purchased his first ship five years ago after he decided that his business interests in Louisiana and Mississippi would be better served if he were in a position to visit the Monticello plant quickly.

Without further loss of time, he reported at Selman field as a student pilot. Officials of the field were surprised when the taciturn, heavily built business man with an irresponsible twinkle in his eye and the gray in his hair requested that he be assigned a pilot instructor.

Methodically he followed the course, attending the school at the aviation field and in a few weeks made his first successful solo flight, touching the ground in a perfect three-point landing and thus winning his wings.

A full-fledged pilot, Mr. Miller bought his first ship, a Curtis-Wright of the latest design, and after preparing a flying field on the ground of the Monroe Sand and Gravel company plant, discarded his automobile as a means of transportation and took to the air.

During the past five years he has flown more than 115,000 miles and has more than 1,200 flying hours to his credit. With few exceptions, he uses his plane entirely for business trips and spends an average of $1,700 a year for transportation purposes, exclusive of the initial cost of the plane, which is estimated at about $10,000.

About four months ago Mr. Miller bought his third plane, a Stinson five-passenger, cabin monoplane equipped with a nine-cylinder, 245-horsepower motor capable of a cruising speed of 140 miles an hour and a top speed of 150 miles an hour. The plane is fully equipped with the latest flying devices, including radio and night flying paraphernalia, which consists of side lights, landing lights and flares. The cost of the ship was $9,253 and Mr. Miller stated that he would probably swap it for a new one in three or four years because, he says, "airplanes become obsolete in that time."

The new ship is painted a dull red. Its lines are smart and compact and designed to minimize as much as possible the resistance to the air. It has a cruising range of 560 miles and consumes about 15 gallons of gasoline an hour.

During his five years of flying Mr. Miller has experienced two forced landings, both caused by dead engines, but in each case his cool nerve and dexterity in handling his ship prevented serious consequences.

His most thrilling experience occurred shortly after he got his pilot's license, when a ship which he had purchased in Buffalo and was flying to Monroe caught fire and was destroyed. Mr. Miller, aware of his imminent peril, sought a good place to land and brought the ship to earth just in time to step out of the cockpit and run to safety while the fire, fed from the fuel tanks, soon reduced the plane to a mass of burnt and twisted wreckage. Undeterred by the catastrophe, Mr. Miller ordered another plane.

Explaining his love for flying, Mr. Miller declared that ever since he was a boy he experienced the wish to own and operate an airplane. He remembers the first flight of the Wright brothers at Kitty Hawk, N. C., and this epochal event fired his imagination and crystallized his determination to own a plane of his own.

Mr. Miller states that by using a plane in his business he increases his earnings from five to seven thousand dollars a year.

"On a basis of time saved I find that the ownership of a plane and the use of a plane in my business is not expensive," Mr. Miller said. "The plant at Monticello is 202 miles from my headquarters at Monroe and before I bought a plane it took me about six hours of hard driving to get there. Now I can make the trip in an hour. Often important decisions must be made and require my presence at Monticello. With the plane I can fly over there, attend to all important matters and return home in a very short time."

Although Mr. Miller uses his plane primarily for business purposes, he does not forego the pleasures of flying which such ownership makes possible. Frequent trips to interesting parts of the country are made by Mr. Miller and his family, which includes several nieces and nephews and two grandsons, Junior Miller and Jackie. The boys, he says, take the keenest pleasure in flying and will often "rejieve" their granddaddy in the air.

Mr. Miller has flown from New York to San Francisco and from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico, visiting most of the important cities in the country.

His greatest pleasure, however, is his annual visit to the All-American airplane races held in Miami, Fla., and in which he usually takes part.

Mr. Miller left last Wednesday for the races at Miami and will enter in one of the events in which pilots flying stock model Stinson planes will participate. The course consists of five laps around a 15-mile course and calls for the greatest skill on the part of the pilots. Four years ago Mr. Miller won third place in the Miami races.

At the conclusion of the meeting in Florida, Mr. Miller plans to fly across the gulf to Havana, Cuba, where he will remain about a week, returning to Monroe just before Christmas.

"There is nothing to compare with flying," declares this gray-haired argonaut of the air. "Some day everybody will be using the air for business as well as pleasure. It has increased confidence in myself, and gives me an interest in life with which no other activity that I can think of can compare."

Scientific papers were read and plans outlined for the annual state convention here next April 26-28.

The scientific papers were by Dr. James K. Howles of New Orleans; Dr. Edward Knighton, Jr., of Shreveport; Dr. James E. Walsworth of Monroe; and Dr. Rosse Veal of New Orleans.

Dr. P. T. Talbot of New Orleans, secretary-treasurer of the Louisiana State Medical society, was present and outlined plans for the state convention.

Several public meetings will be held in some local auditorium large enough to accommodate a large assemblage and speakers of note in the medical profession will be here and take part on the program. It is said to be probable that Dr. Will Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., will attend and address the public. Other noted physicians from New Orleans and other cities of the north and east are expected.

The scientific and commercial displays will be larger than ever and will attract unusual interest in the profession, it is believed.

There will be many other novel plans worked out for the advancement of medical science. Entertainment will also be interspersed.

Brady, formerly chief cowboy at "101 Ranch," is ambassador of goodwill introducing Seagram's new low-priced Silver Dollar bourbon. He is scheduled to arrive in Monroe today, en route to California.

Gravel Company Operator Flies His Own Monoplane

H. C. Miller Has Flown Between Two Businesses For Five Years

About once a week a snappy monoplane rolled from a hangar on the west side of West Monroe taxies across its private landing field, easily takes the air and wings its way eastward towards the Mississippi river.

For five years this lone ship has flashed its way over the Twin Cities, so high that few people muster sufficient curiosity to look towards the skies in an effort to identify it.

This mystery plane, if they only knew it, merits the keenest curiosity, for it is the only plane in this section of the state that is used solely for private business purposes and is flown by a pilot who claims the distinction of being one of the 25 or perhaps 30 persons in the United States more than 50 years of age holding a pilot's license.

H. C. Miller, who owns and flies the plane, is 53 years old. He is owner of the Fair River Sand and Gravel company at Monticello, Miss., and part owner of the Monroe Sand and Gravel company, near West Monroe. He lives on the Brown Paper mill extension road off highway 80, and takes to the air with the same unconcern that most persons would show in stepping into an automobile.

Mr. Miller purchased his first ship five years ago after he decided that his business interests in Louisiana and Mississippi would be better served if he were in a position to visit the Monticello plant quickly.

Without further loss of time, he reported at Selman field as a student pilot. Officials of the field were surprised when the taciturn, heavily built business man with an irresponsible twinkle in his eye and the gray in his hair requested that he be assigned a pilot instructor.

Methodically he followed the course, attending the school at the aviation field and in a few weeks made his first successful solo flight, touching the ground in a perfect three-point landing and thus winning his wings.

A full-fledged pilot, Mr. Miller bought his first ship, a Curtis-Wright of the latest design, and after preparing a flying field on the ground of the Monroe Sand and Gravel company plant, discarded his automobile as a means of transportation and took to the air.

During the past five years he has flown more than 115,000 miles and has more than 1,200 flying hours to his credit. With few exceptions, he uses his plane entirely for business trips and spends an average of $1,700 a year for transportation purposes, exclusive of the initial cost of the plane, which is estimated at about $10,000.

About four months ago Mr. Miller bought his third plane, a Stinson five-passenger, cabin monoplane equipped with a nine-cylinder, 245-horsepower motor capable of a cruising speed of 140 miles an hour and a top speed of 150 miles an hour. The plane is fully equipped with the latest flying devices, including radio and night flying paraphernalia, which consists of side lights, landing lights and flares. The cost of the ship was $9,253 and Mr. Miller stated that he would probably swap it for a new one in three or four years because, he says, "airplanes become obsolete in that time."

The new ship is painted a dull red. Its lines are smart and compact and designed to minimize as much as possible the resistance to the air. It has a cruising range of 560 miles and consumes about 15 gallons of gasoline an hour.

During his five years of flying Mr. Miller has experienced two forced landings, both caused by dead engines, but in each case his cool nerve and dexterity in handling his ship prevented serious consequences.

His most thrilling experience occurred shortly after he got his pilot's license, when a ship which he had purchased in Buffalo and was flying to Monroe caught fire and was destroyed. Mr. Miller, aware of his imminent peril, sought a good place to land and brought the ship to earth just in time to step out of the cockpit and run to safety while the fire, fed from the fuel tanks, soon reduced the plane to a mass of burnt and twisted wreckage. Undeterred by the catastrophe, Mr. Miller ordered another plane.

Explaining his love for flying, Mr. Miller declared that ever since he was a boy he experienced the wish to own and operate an airplane. He remembers the first flight of the Wright brothers at Kitty Hawk, N. C., and this epochal event fired his imagination and crystallized his determination to own a plane of his own.

Mr. Miller states that by using a plane in his business he increases his earnings from five to seven thousand dollars a year.

"On a basis of time saved I find that the ownership of a plane and the use of a plane in my business is not expensive," Mr. Miller said. "The plant at Monticello is 202 miles from my headquarters at Monroe and before I bought a plane it took me about six hours of hard driving to get there. Now I can make the trip in an hour. Often important decisions must be made and require my presence at Monticello. With the plane I can fly over there, attend to all important matters and return home in a very short time."

Although Mr. Miller uses his plane primarily for business purposes, he does not forego the pleasures of flying which such ownership makes possible. Frequent trips to interesting parts of the country are made by Mr. Miller and his family, which includes several nieces and nephews and two grandsons, Junior Miller and Jackie. The boys, he says, take the keenest pleasure in flying and will often "relieve" their granddaddy in the air.

Mr. Miller has flown from New York to San Francisco and from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico, visiting most of the important cities in the country.

His greatest pleasure, however, is his annual visit to the All-American airplane races held in Miami, Fla., and in which he usually takes part.

Mr. Miller left last Wednesday for the races at Miami and will enter in one of the events in which pilots flying stock model Stinson planes will participate. The course consists of five laps around a 15-mile course and calls for the greatest skill on the part of the pilots. Four years ago Mr. Miller won third place in the Miami races.

At the conclusion of the meeting in Florida, Mr. Miller plans to fly across the gulf to Havana, Cuba, where he will remain about a week, returning to Monroe just before Christmas.

"There is nothing to compare with flying," declares this gray-haired argonaut of the air. "Some day everybody will be using the air for business as well as pleasure. It has increased confidence in myself, and gives me an interest in life with which no other activity that I can think of can compare."

WHEAT REACHES SEVEN-YEAR PEAK

Rise Attributed To War Threatens And Anticipated Short Crop

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Clerks chalked the highest wheat prices in seven years on board of trade blackboards today after the market shot up almost three cents a bushel.

Soaring to $1.28 5-8 to 3-4, wheat deliverable this month eclipsed the high established in the "bull" market of July, 1933, the previous peak since 1929 when wheat was quoted as high as $1.63. The price of the cereal has advanced 10 cents a bushel in two weeks. It was 28 cents higher than a year ago.

Traders attributed today's sharp rise to heavy buying stimulated by reports indicating the possibility of subnormal United States wheat production in the coming season because of drouth threats in many sections, particularly in the southwest.

In the background, however, were additional bullish factors. Among these was the undercurrent of war gossip, linked, many traders said, with the rush of European countries in the last few weeks to buy wheat.

The world's wheat bins are being scraped to meet the demand from Europe, traders said. The United States, usually an exporter of wheat, was among the nations buying grain in the foreign market. Canada, which a few years ago complained because its big surplus of wheat was holding prices down, Argentina and Australia are the countries supplying the world's needs now, they said.

A survey of the dust bowl in the heart of the winter wheat district southwest indicated that the total surface area subject to actual or potential soil blowing because of lack of moisture was six million acres. July wheat, representing the 1937 crop, made the broadest jump in the market today. Selling at $1.12 1-4 at the close, this contract was 16 cents higher than it was when trading in July wheat began last August and 22 cents higher than a year ago.

CENTRAL FIGURES IN PAGEANT

'COURTESY FIRST' IS MOTTO OF AUTOISTS

DETROIT, Mich.—(AP)—Four auto drivers who won Michigan State Automobile association awards for safe driving agree that "courtesy" is their first rule of the road.

"Give the other driver the same kind of break you expect him to give you," says William H. Thoms, major award winner who has driven trucks and passenger cars for 24 years.

This rule also has the backing of Elmer C. Bischoff, coach driver who has driven 400,000 miles in 21 years without a mishap; Daniel J. Smith, truck driver, and Milton R. Knight of Port Huron, bus driver, both of whom have driven more than 400,000 miles without an accident.

AVERAGE PRICE OF COTTON INCREASES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(AP)—An advance in the average price of cotton at ten spot markets to 12.64 cents a pound, 21 points higher than a week ago, was reported today by the agriculture department.

It said announcement of the 1937 federal farm program, with respect to cotton, had been interpreted by the trade to indicate cotton acreage would remain about the same next year.

Sales were 132,000 bales for the week, a seasonal decline from 183,000 bales the previous week, but larger than the 119,000 bales for the same week last year.

The ten market average price of 12.64 for middling 7.8 inch cotton compared with 12.43 cents on December 4 and 11.73 a year ago.

PARISIAN POLICE PROTECT CABARETS

PARIS—(AP)—Frenchmen, avid consumers of American books and films on racketeering, have discovered that Parisian gangsters have been running well-organized rackets for more than a year.

Chief of Police Roger Langeron formed a special squad to protect proprietors of cabarets and nightclubs who have been paying from $70 to $350 a month for "protection."

The murder of a bar proprietor in the Champs-Elysees district led to the discovery of the gangs.

MANY SHEEP ARE BEING SLAIN BY STRAY DOGS

WAYNESBURG, Pa.—(AP)—The sheep-raising industry in Pennsylvania's two best wool-producing counties is going to the dogs.

At least that's the fear of herd owners in Greene and Washington counties, where the menace of raids by stray dogs at night has become so great that a ban on all found running loose is demanded.

W. R. Tustin, Pine Creek sheep owner, reported 21 of his flock killed recently and other farmers said from one to a dizen had been lost from their herds in the same manner.

HEAD OF CHINESE STATE PRISONER

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek Captured By Mutinous Troops

TOKYO, Dec. 13.—(Sunday)—(AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, hitherto all-powerful military and administrative head of the Chinese state, was a prisoner today at Sian-Fu, capital of Shensi province, of mutinous troops commanded by Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang, one-time warlord of Manchuria, said Domei (Japanese) news agency dispatches from Shanghai and Nanking.

Domei said the Chinese foreign office at Nanking officially admitted that the generalissimo was "detained" by mutineers. With him were captured several of his highest generals.

General Chang, leader of the uprising, said Domei, issued a circular telegram demanding, first, immediate military operations against Japan; second, restoration of Manchuria to China; third, re-acceptance by the Chinese government of the policy of the late Sun Yat-Sen, "father of the Chinese revolution," of recognizing Communism.

He issued a proclamation calling the nation to join him in a war against Japan.

With the executive Yuan of the Nanking government in emergency session to deliberate on the crisis, and a state of alarm declared throughout the country, the government refused to accept these demands until General Chiang was released.

Marshal Chiang was ruler of Manchuria's four provinces until the Japanese army in 1931 drove him from his domain and established therein the "independent state" of Manchoukuo under Japanese protection. Recently he has been in command of forces in northwestern China operating against Chinese Communist concentrations in northern Shensi and Kansu provinces. Marshal Chang has vowed to regain Manchuria for China before he died, friends have said.

From Nanking Domei reported that the mutineers, about 3,000 strong, part of Marshal Chang's "northwestern frontier Communist suppression army," first rose at Sian-Fu, then marched to Huanchengchi, a hot springs about 20 miles from Sian-Fu where the head of the Nanking government was staying, and seized him. Then they marched back with him to Sian-Fu, where he was reported held incommunicado.

COYOTES VALUE MELONS OVER MEAT OF TURKEY

SAN DIEGO.—(AP)—Almost any old turkey will satisfy a coyote, but he is quite choosey about his watermelons.

This was brought out by R. R. McLean, county agricultural commissioner, when farmers in the Ramona and Julian area sought a county appropriation to curb the "varmints."

"If a coyote ate his fill and then went his way, few farmers would complain," said McLean. "But the animal becomes too particular and frequently will destroy 50 or more melons in a single night, taking a bite or two out of each one. A pack of coyotes can ruin a patch."

MAJOR DECISIONS AWAIT PRESIDENT

Roosevelt Must Act On Many Momentous Matters On Return

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Momentous decisions that may shape the course of his second administration face President Roosevelt on his return next week from South America.

Primarily, they involve interpreting the mandate given by the American people in reelecting him by a plurality of more than 11,000,000.

Did the voters call for a constitutional amendment? Did they ask for a new NRA, a new AAA, a balanced budget, or continued expenditures? These are some of the questions awaiting the chief executive's decision.

Many of the groups which supported the president during the campaign have placed their own interpretations on the outcome. In many cases their expressions have been in conflict. It will be up to the president to make the choice.

High on the list of his problems is the selection of a method to carry out his pledged purpose of gaining the objectives of NRA. Many plans have been proposed. Labor, which supported him in the campaign, is clamoring for action.

One of the chief executive's first callers probably will be Senator O'Mahoney, Democrat, Wyoming, with a plan to require all corporations doing interstate business to get charters from the federal government. These charters would require them to live up to certain minimum standards.

Some farm spokesmen are demanding an agricultural program even broader than the old AAA.

City mayors and relief workers already have petitioned for liberal spending.

Business is calling for a balanced budget.

A congress ready, in the main, to do the president's bidding will meet only three weeks after he gets back. His budget for the year beginning next July 1, must be ready by that time. Two weeks later he will be inaugurated, and will have an opportunity in his address at that time to outline his program.

Two major issues are involved in the budget problem. How much will be spent for relief next year? Will there be a revision of the tax laws?

FAVORABLE FARMING YEAR SEEN IN 1937

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(AP)—A forecast of a favorable year for farmers in 1937 was coupled by federal economists today with a warning that "there are fundamental weaknesses in the position of agriculture that will require vigor—and action."

A. G. Black, chief of the bureau of agricultural economics, presented these views to Secretary Wallace in an annual report which said drouth and increases in farm prices and income were outstanding factors in the farm situation this year.

Despite the drouth, Black said, cash income of farmers will mount to $7,850,000,000 this year, the fourth consecutive annual advance from the 1932 low of $4,328,000,000. He figured this would be a gain of 11 per cent over last year and 81 per cent above 1932.

However, the dry weather was said to have "left scars that will require time, careful planning, and much labor to erase."

ORLEANS SHIP BLAZE PROBED

Fine Spray Of Paint Sparks Blamed For Causing Nine Deaths

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Testimony that a "fine spray of paint sparks" fell from an overhead welding job in the hold of the S. S. Scantic was given today before a federal board of inquiry into the fire aboard the ship November 25 which took lives of nine workmen.

The board, headed by Lucian Y. Ray, special assistant to the United States attorney in admiralty, completed the inquiry and will forward its findings on responsibility for the fire to Washington.

The workmen died in hold No. 2 where the fire broke out and dock officials testified yesterday that live steam to smother the flames was not poured into the hatch until about two hours and a half after the fire was discovered.

The hatch was opened the next day, water pumped out and the bodies of the ill-fated men recovered.

William P. Loughlin, general labor foreman for the Todd-Johnson Drydocks, Inc., where the ship was being repaired, told of the sparks.

He said he saw them falling from a point between decks where a welder was at work and that he rushed up the ladder, tapped the welder's shoulder and stopped him.

As he started up another ladder, Loughlin said, he heard the shout of "fire" and said it "all happened in a minute or two."

Witnesses testified there was a pile of sacking in the path of the sparks, but they were unable to say whether the sparks actually touched the sacks.

Two negroes testified that the blaze was "to the left of the ladder from three to five feet" and not burning sufficiently high to prevent their escape.

Those who died were among 50 to 75 men engaged in installing a refrigeration plant in the ship at the time the fire broke out.

The 3-Minute VapoRub Massage

Massage VapoRub briskly on the throat, chest and back (between and below the shoulder blades). Then spread it thick over the chest and cover with warmed cloth.

Almost before you finish rubbing, VapoRub starts to bring relief two ways at once—two direct ways:

2. Medicated Vapors. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by body heat, are breathed in for hours—about 18 times a minute—direct to the irritated air-passages of the nose, throat and chest.

WHEAT REACHES SEVEN-YEAR PEAK

The world's wheat bins are being scraped to meet the demand from Europe, traders said. The United States, usually an exporter of wheat, was among the nations buying grain in the foreign market. Canada, which a few years ago complained because its big surplus of wheat was holding prices down, Argentina and Australia are the countries supplying the world's needs now, they said.

A survey of the dust bowl in the heart of the winter wheat district southwest indicated that the total surface area subject to actual or potential soil blowing because of lack of moisture was six million acres. July wheat, representing the 1937 crop, made the broadest jump in the market today. Selling at $12.12 1-4 at the close, this contract was 16 cents higher than it was when trading in July wheat began last August and 22 cents higher than a year ago.

CENTRAL FIGURES IN PAGEANT

'COURTESY FIRST' IS MOTTO OF AUTOISTS

DETROIT, Mich.—(AP)—Four auto drivers who won Michigan State Automobile association awards for safe driving agree that "courtesy" is their first rule of the road.

"Give the other driver the same kind of break you expect him to give you," says William H. Thoms, major award winner who has driven trucks and passenger cars for 24 years.

This rule also has the backing of Elmer C. Bischoff, coach driver who has driven 400,000 miles in 21 years without a mishap; Daniel J. Smith, truck driver, and Milton R. Knight of Port Huron, bus driver, both of whom have driven more than 400,000 miles without an accident.

AVERAGE PRICE OF COTTON INCREASES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(AP)—An advance in the average price of cotton at ten spot markets to 12.64 cents a pound, 21 points higher than a week ago, was reported today by the agriculture department.

It said announcement of the 1937 federal farm program, with respect to cotton, had been interpreted by the trade to indicate cotton acreage would remain about the same next year.

Sales were 132,000 bales for the week, a seasonal decline from 183,000 bales the previous week, but larger than the 119,000 bales for the same week last year.

The ten market average price of 12.64 for middling 7.8 inch cotton compared with 12.43 cents on December 4 and 11.73 a year ago.

PARISIAN POLICE PROTECT CABARETS

PARIS—(AP)—Frenchmen, avid consumers of American books and films on racketeering, have discovered that Parisian gangsters have been running well-organized rackets for more than a year.

Chief of Police Roger Langeron formed a special squad to protect proprietors of cabarets and nightclubs who have been paying from $70 to $350 a month for "protection."

The murder of a bar proprietor in the Champs-Elysees district led to the discovery of the gangs.

MANY SHEEP ARE BEING SLAIN BY STRAY DOGS

WAYNESBURG, Pa.—(AP)—The sheep-raising industry in Pennsylvania's two best wool-producing counties is going to the dogs.

At least that's the fear of herd owners in Greene and Washington counties, where the menace of raids by stray dogs at night has become so great that a ban on all found running loose is demanded.

W. R. Tustin, Pine Creek sheep owner, reported 21 of his flock killed recently and other farmers said from one to a dizen had been lost from their herds in the same manner.

HEAD OF CHINESE STATE PRISONER

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek Captured By Mutinous Troops

TOKYO, Dec. 13.—(Sunday)—(AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, hitherto all-powerful military and administrative head of the Chinese state, was a prisoner today at Sian-Fu, capital of Shensi province, of mutinous troops commanded by Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang, one-time warlord of Manchuria, said Domei (Japanese) news agency dispatches from Shanghai and Nanking.

Domei said the Chinese foreign office at Nanking officially admitted that the generalissimo was "detained" by mutineers. With him were captured several of his highest generals.

General Chang, leader of the uprising, said Domei, issued a circular telegram demanding, first, immediate military operations against Japan; second, restoration of Manchuria to China; third, re-acceptance by the Chinese government of the policy of the late Sun Yat-Sen, "father of the Chinese revolution," of recognizing Communism.

He issued a proclamation calling the nation to join him in a war against Japan.

With the executive Yuan of the Nanking government in emergency session to deliberate on the crisis, and a state of alarm declared throughout the country, the government refused to accept these demands until General Chiang was released.

Marshal Chang was ruler of Manchuria's four provinces until the Japanese army in 1931 drove him from his domain and established therein the "independent state" of Manchoukuo under Japanese protection. Recently he has been in command of forces in northwestern China operating against Chinese Communist concentrations in northern Shensi and Kansu provinces. Marshal Chang has vowed to regain Manchuria for China before he died, friends have said.

From Nanking Domei reported that the mutineers, about 3,000 strong, part of Marshal Chang's "northwestern frontier Communist suppression army," first rose at Sian-Fu, then marched to Huanchengchi, a hot springs about 20 miles from Sian-Fu where the head of the Nanking government was staying, and seized him. Then they marched back with him to Sian-Fu, where he was reported held incommunicado.

COYOTES VALUE MELONS OVER MEAT OF TURKEY

SAN DIEGO.—(AP)—Almost any old turkey will satisfy a coyote, but he is quite choosey about his watermelons.

This was brought out by R. R. McLean, county agricultural commissioner, when farmers in the Ramona and Julian area sought a county appropriation to curb the "varmints."

"If a coyote ate his fill and then went his way, few farmers would complain," said McLean. "But the animal becomes too particular and frequently will destroy 50 or more melons in a single night, taking a bite or two out of each one. A pack of coyotes can ruin a patch."

MAJOR DECISIONS AWAIT PRESIDENT

Roosevelt Must Act On Many Momentous Matters On Return

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Momentous decisions that may shape the course of his second administration face President Roosevelt on his return next week from South America.

Primarily, they involve interpreting the mandate given by the American people in reelecting him by a plurality of more than 11,000,000.

Did the voters call for a constitutional amendment? Did they ask for a new NRA, a new AAA, a balanced budget, or continued expenditures? These are some of the questions awaiting the chief executive's decision.

Many of the groups which supported the president during the campaign have placed their own interpretations on the outcome. In many cases their expressions have been in conflict. It will be up to the president to make the choice.

High on the list of his problems is the selection of a method to carry out his pledged purpose of gaining the objectives of NRA. Many plans have been proposed. Labor, which supported him in the campaign, is clamoring for action.

One of the chief executive's first callers probably will be Senator O'Mahoney, Democrat, Wyoming, with a plan to require all corporations doing interstate business to get charters from the federal government. These charters would require them to live up to certain minimum standards.

Some farm spokesmen are demanding an agricultural program even broader than the old AAA.

City mayors and relief workers already have petitioned for liberal spending.

Business is calling for a balanced budget.

A congress ready, in the main, to do the president's bidding will meet only three weeks after he gets back. His budget for the year beginning next July 1, must be ready by that time. Two weeks later he will be inaugurated, and will have an opportunity in his address at that time to outline his program.

Two major issues are involved in the budget problem. How much will be spent for relief next year? Will there be a revision of the tax laws?

FAVORABLE FARMING YEAR SEEN IN 1937

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(AP)—A forecast of a favorable year for farmers in 1937 was coupled by federal economists today with a warning that "there are fundamental weaknesses in the position of agriculture that will require vigor—and action."

A. G. Black, chief of the bureau of agricultural economics, presented these views to Secretary Wallace in an annual report which said drouth and increases in farm prices and income were outstanding factors in the farm situation this year.

Despite the drouth, Black said, cash income of farmers will mount to $7,850,000,000 this year, the fourth consecutive annual advance from the 1932 low of $4,328,000,000. He figured this would be a gain of 11 per cent over last year and 81 per cent above 1932.

However, the dry weather was said to have "left scars that will require time, careful planning, and much labor to erase."

ORLEANS SHIP BLAZE PROBED

Fine Spray Of Paint Sparks Blamed For Causing Nine Deaths

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Testimony that a "fine spray of paint sparks" fell from an overhead welding job in the hold of the S. S. Scantic was given today before a federal board of inquiry into the fire aboard the ship November 25 which took lives of nine workmen.

The board, headed by Lucian Y. Ray, special assistant to the United States attorney in admiralty, completed the inquiry and will forward its findings on responsibility for the fire to Washington.

The workmen died in hold No. 2 where the fire broke out and dock officials testified yesterday that live steam to smother the flames was not poured into the hatch until about two hours and a half after the fire was discovered.

The hatch was opened the next day, water pumped out and the bodies of the ill-fated men recovered.

William P. Loughlin, general labor foreman for the Todd-Johnson Drydocks, Inc., where the ship was being repaired, told of the sparks.

He said he saw them falling from a point between decks where a welder was at work and that he rushed up the ladder, tapped the welder's shoulder and stopped him.

As he started up another ladder, Loughlin said, he heard the shout of "fire" and said it "all happened in a minute or two."

Witnesses testified there was a pile of sacking in the path of the sparks, but they were unable to say whether the sparks actually touched the sacks.

Two negroes testified that the blaze was "to the left of the ladder from three to five feet" and not burning sufficiently high to prevent their escape.

Those who died were among 50 to 75 men engaged in installing a refrigeration plant in the ship at the time the fire broke out.

The 3-Minute VapoRub Massage

Massage VapoRub briskly on the throat, chest and back (between and below the shoulder blades). Then spread it thick over the chest and cover with warmed cloth.

Almost before you finish rubbing, VapoRub starts to bring relief two ways at once—two direct ways:

2. Medicated Vapors. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by body heat, are breathed in for hours—about 18 times a minute—direct to the irritated air-passages of the nose, throat and chest.

This combined poultice-and-vapor action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation—helps break congestion.

Avoids Risk of Stomach Upsets
This safe, external treatment cannot possibly upset the stomach, as constant internal "dosing" is so apt to do. It can be used freely, as often as needed, even on the youngest child.

FORMER MONARCH

ing with the first monarch ever voluntarily to renounce the British throne.

NEW MONARCH GETS ACCLAIM OF PEOPLE
By Frank H. King

LONDON, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Under dreary skies, Britain proclaimed George VI king today while Edward VIII sought in a foreign land the solace of the love that cost him the throne.

As golden-uniformed heralds moved through the foggy London streets in medieval pageantry which twice within a year has heralded a new sovereign, the crisis of Edward's abdication passed into history.

With unruffled calm the British peoples accepted the melodramatic change of sovereigns and turned from the prince-king they loved so well to his tall, family-loving brother George—but with deep sympathy and God-speed to him who found the burden of kingdom too heavy without "the woman I love."

Before the musty battlements of St. James' palace, proud heralds mailed the new king. Trumpets shrilled as throngs watched the pageantry of centuries ago re-enacted.

Sir Gerald Wollaston, the Garter principal king of arms, proclaimed "our only lawful and rightful liege lord, George the Sixth, by the grace of God, king of Great Britain, Ireland and the British dominions beyond the seas, defender of the faith, emperor of India, to whom we do acknowledge all faith and constant obedience with all hearty and humble affection, beseeching God, by whom kings and queens do reign, to bless the royal Prince George VI with long and happy years of reign over us."

So tonight the British people were anchored safely in a new allegiance to the second son of the revered George V and his plump little Scottish commoner wife will grace the golden throne which the American-born Wallis Warfield Simpson might have held had other fates prevailed.

And at Boulogne-Sur-Mer, France, Edward who henceforth will be his royal highness, the Duke of Windsor, arrived aboard the destroyer Fury to begin self-exile.

"It may be some time before I return to my native land," he told the far-flung British realm in a radio adieu last night before he sped to Portsmouth to speed from England.

At Cannes, Mrs. Simpson kept in seclusion. Through a spokesman she intimated Edward would not come there.

"There is no reason why the former king should come here," the spokesman said. "There is every reason why he cannot come"—Her divorce decree nisi does not become final until April 27.

In Dublin, the Irish Free State rushed legislation to accept Edward's abdication and become the last dominion to accept the new monarch—but only in the conduct of foreign affairs. A measure passed last night established the free state's independence of Britain in the conduct of internal affairs.

As in London, so in other empire capitals—the wayward Dublin belatedly—George's accession was officially announced. Parliament has sworn fealty to the new monarch. And already two golden throne chairs grace the dais of the house of lords, where for the past ten months there had been only one—for the bachelor ruler.

Through the blue gray mists blanketing London 40,000 troops marched to line the route from old St. James to the royal exchange in the heart of the city where the pageant of heralds moved amid cheers and cries "God save the king."

It was a repetition of the ceremonial January 22, when Edward was acclaimed and the woman he loves went unobserved by the crowds into St. James itself to peer through the ancient window at the scene.

Today's was a different crowd.

Last winter there was visible mourning for George V, dead but two days. Today there may have been sorrow in the hearts of the crowds but it was the new king's day and he was given full homage.

Everywhere Britain closed her ranks in answer to Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's appeal to commons when Edward's abdication became known, and rallied around the second son of Queen Mother Mary.

One of King George's first acts was to agree no change will occur for the coronation and that it will be held as scheduled May 12.

SHERIFF RETURNS NEGRO FOR THEFT

Arrested near Athens, Tex., a week ago for theft of a motorcycle here, Tom Lewis, negro, 26, was returned here early yesterday morning by the Ouachita parish sheriff's department and placed in jail.

The negro was arrested by a justice of the peace whose suspicions were aroused when he saw a motorcycle bearing a Louisiana license parked by the roadside. The justice of the peace found Lewis in a negro's home nearby, and placed him under arrest when Lewis showed him a crude bill of sale for the motorcycle which the justice correctly judged was a fake. Further evidence against the negro was some papers found in the motorcycle "saddlebag" bearing the name "Slim" Curry of Monroe, owner of the motorcycle.

The motorcycle was stolen on the night of November 28 from Howard Griffin's motorcycle and outboard motor shop on South Grand street.

Lewis was not immediately returned here because he resembled a negro wanted for a murder at Snyder, Tex., recently. The sheriff's department here established that Lewis was in Monroe at the time of the murder, and the negro was then released to the authorities here.

INDIAN SKELETONS LOCATED ON FARM

An Indian grave in which between 10 and 15 skeletons were buried was uncovered recently on the farm of G. D. Hogg in Lincoln parish, according to information brought to Monroe by Percy J. LeBlanc, Lincoln parish representative of the News-Star—World. Mr. Hogg's farm is located between Mineral Springs and Dubach.

All of the skeletons except one were found lying with the skulls at the south end of the grave, and the skull of the remaining skeleton was lying in the opposite direction, it was reported.

About 10 bowls, made of clay, were found in the grave. There were no war implements with the skeletons.

The grave was uncovered as soil erosion control work was being performed with a plow. Located about one and one-half feet below the top soil, the grave was in a tract of land which had been cultivated for 30 years.

DR. GUERRIERO TELLS OF EIGHT HOUR PLAN

Dr. William Guerriero was the principal speaker at the monthly meeting of the Monroe District Nurses' association held in St. Francis sanitarium. He took for the subject of his talk, "The Eight Hour System of Nursing," pointing out many benefits to the patient and the nurse on duty where the eight-hour system is employed. He said that some of the districts in the state are using the system successfully, and that the New Orleans Charity hospital uses the eight-hour system of employment.

The president of the association, Miss Edith Farris, presided at the meeting, and gave a report on the state convention of nurses held recently in Lake Charles. She said that the convention went on record as favoring the eight-hour plan.

Mrs. P. E. Weldon is secretary of the Monroe district nurses and stated that some of the physicians in this district are now using the eight-hour plan with success.

FORMER MONARCH

ing with the first monarch ever voluntarily to renounce the British throne.

NEW MONARCH GETS ACCLAIM OF PEOPLE
By Frank H. King

LONDON, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Under dreary skies, Britain proclaimed George VI king today while Edward VIII sought in a foreign land the solace of the love that cost him the throne.

As golden-uniformed heralds moved through the foggy London streets in medieval pageantry which twice within a year has heralded a new sovereign, the crisis of Edward's abdication passed into history.

With unruffled calm the British peoples accepted the melodramatic change of sovereigns and turned from the prince-king they loved so well to his tall, family-loving brother George—but with deep sympathy and godspeed to him who found the burden of kingdom too heavy without "the woman I love."

Before the musty battlements of St. James' palace, proud heralds mailed the new king. Trumpets shrilled as throngs watched the pageantry of centuries ago re-enacted.

Sir Gerald Wollaston, the Garter principal king of arms, proclaimed "our only lawful and rightful liege lord, George the Sixth, by the grace of God, king of Great Britain, Ireland and the British dominions beyond the seas, defender of the faith, emperor of India, to whom we do acknowledge all faith and constant obedience with all hearty and humble affection, beseeching God, by whom kings and queens do reign, to bless the royal Prince George VI with long and happy years of reign over us."

So tonight the British people were anchored safely in a new allegiance to the second son of the revered George V and his plump little Scottish commoner wife will grace the golden throne which the American-born Wallis Warfield Simpson might have held had other fates prevailed.

And at Boulogne-Sur-Mer, France, Edward who henceforth will be his royal highness, the Duke of Windsor, arrived aboard the destroyer Fury to begin self-exile.

"It may be some time before I return to my native land," he told the far-flung British realm in a radio adieu last night before he sped to Portsmouth to speed from England.

At Cannes, Mrs. Simpson kept in seclusion. Through a spokesman she intimated Edward would not come there.

"There is no reason why the former king should come here," the spokesman said. "There is every reason why he cannot come"—Her divorce decree nisi does not become final until April 27.

In Dublin, the Irish Free State rushed legislation to accept Edward's abdication and become the last dominion to accept the new monarch—but only in the conduct of foreign affairs. A measure passed last night established the free state's independence of Britain in the conduct of internal affairs.

As in London, so in other empire capitals—the wayward Dublin belatedly—George's accession was officially announced. Parliament has sworn fealty to the new monarch. And already two golden throne chairs grace the dais of the house of lords, where for the past ten months there had been only one—for the bachelor ruler.

Through the blue gray mists blanketing London 40,000 troops marched to line the route from old St. James to the royal exchange in the heart of the city where the pageant of heralds moved amid cheers and cries "God save the king."

It was a repetition of the ceremonial January 22, when Edward was acclaimed and the woman he loves went unobserved by the crowds into St. James itself to peer through the ancient window at the scene.

Today's was a different crowd.

Last winter there was visible mourning for George V, dead but two days. Today there may have been sorrow in the hearts of the crowds but it was the new king's day and he was given full homage.

Everywhere Britain closed her ranks in answer to Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's appeal to commons when Edward's abdication became known, and rallied around the second son of Queen Mother Mary.

One of King George's first acts was to agree no change will occur for the coronation and that it will be held as scheduled May 12.

SHERIFF RETURNS NEGRO FOR THEFT

Arrested near Athens, Tex., a week ago for theft of a motorcycle here, Tom Lewis, negro, 26, was returned here early yesterday morning by the Ouachita parish sheriff's department and placed in jail.

The negro was arrested by a justice of the peace whose suspicions were aroused when he saw a motorcycle bearing a Louisiana license parked by the roadside. The justice of the peace found Lewis in a negro's home nearby, and placed him under arrest when Lewis showed him a crude bill of sale for the motorcycle which the justice correctly judged was a fake. Further evidence against the negro was some papers found in the motorcycle "saddlebag" bearing the name "Slim" Curry of Monroe, owner of the motorcycle.

The motorcycle was stolen on the night of November 28 from Howard Griffin's motorcycle and outboard motor shop on South Grand street.

Lewis was not immediately returned here because he resembled a negro wanted for a murder at Snyder, Tex., recently. The sheriff's department here established that Lewis was in Monroe at the time of the murder, and the negro was then released to the authorities here.

INDIAN SKELETONS LOCATED ON FARM

An Indian grave in which between 10 and 15 skeletons were buried was uncovered recently on the farm of G. D. Hogg in Lincoln parish, according to information brought to Monroe by Percy J. LeBlanc, Lincoln parish representative of the News-Star—World. Mr. Hogg's farm is located between Mineral Springs and Dubach.

All of the skeletons except one were found lying with the skulls at the south end of the grave, and the skull of the remaining skeleton was lying in the opposite direction, it was reported.

About 10 bowls, made of clay, were found in the grave. There were no war implements with the skeletons.

The grave was uncovered as soil erosion control work was being performed with a plow. Located about one and one-half feet below the top soil, the grave was in a tract of land which had been cultivated for 30 years.

RESERVE OFFICERS WILL MEET MONDAY

FIRE BURNS OUTHOUSE

Fire reported to have been started by children playing with matches yesterday afternoon destroyed an outhouse at the residence of Mrs. W. G. Cabville, 418 Reed street, in Terminal heights. The building was owned by the Monroe Building and Loan company. Firemen made a run to the fire, and during the day made one other run, answering a call to 2609 South Grand street in the morning to take a cat from a tree. The animal had become afraid to attempt climbing down from the tree.

DR. GUERRIERO TELLS OF EIGHT HOUR PLAN

Dr. William Guerriero was the principal speaker at the monthly meeting of the Monroe District Nurses' association held in St. Francis sanitarium. He took for the subject of his talk, "The Eight Hour System of Nursing," pointing out many benefits to the patient and the nurse on duty where the eight-hour system is employed. He said that some of the districts in the state are using the system successfully, and that the New Orleans Charity hospital uses the eight-hour system of employment.

The president of the association, Miss Edith Farris, presided at the meeting, and gave a report on the state convention of nurses held recently in Lake Charles. She said that the convention went on record as favoring the eight-hour plan.

Mrs. P. E. Weldon is secretary of the Monroe district nurses and stated that some of the physicians in this district are now using the eight-hour plan with success.

GOOD FELLOWS

the proceeds of the advance ticket sale have been received an additional contribution will be made.

This is the largest single donation that has been made to the fund this year. Members of the Missouri Pacific organization have always been in the forefront of efforts to aid the Good Fellows movement, and this year that endeavor took the form of sponsoring a minstrel show, which was largely attended Thursday night in the parish high school auditorium. Hearty thanks are due the ladies of the Missouri Pacific organization for their interest and cooperation.

Total contributions to the fund thus far, with little more than a week remaining before the Christmas holidays will be here, are barely at the $500 mark. This represents less than half the amount that will be needed to fulfill the cash requirements of the fund this year. Enough will be needed to provide 300 baskets of food, with additions of clothing, fruits, nuts, candy and the other essentials of Christmas giving in such a program as the Good Fellows are sponsoring.

The task can be well done with full and hearty cooperation of the public as it has been given in past years.

Plans have been announced for Good Fellows benefit entertainments of different kinds during the next 10 days. The most noteworthy thus far announced will be a band concert next Sunday afternoon at the Neville High school auditorium. Bands of the city and parish schools will participate in the program. There will be no fixed admission to the concert, but a voluntary contribution for the Good Fellows will be invited from the audience. The program promises to be exceptionally interesting, and as it will be the first time this season that the various school bands will appear in concert it should attract a large number of parents, teachers and citizens generally, especially as it will be given Sunday afternoon.

Individual contributions to the fund should be made promptly as possible this week, so that the committee need not be hampered in its work of preparing the baskets that are to go out early next week. Send all donations to the Good Fellows Fund to the World and News-Star, 110 North Second street, Monroe.

DON'T LET IT BE JUST ANOTHER DAY

It can be another dismal winter day, or it can be a joyous Christmas for this little group. Thousands, more fortunate, will sit down to their dinners, thankful that they have been so well remembered. But these children and their mother will have only a prospect of loneliness, without even the bare comforts of life, unless you share with them by contributing to the World—News-Star Good Fellows fund.

tion in the illumination contest sponsored by the Monroe Garden club, Chamber of Commerce, Electrical Association of Monroe, the World and News-Star and the Ouachita Citizen.

Electric decorations for the Yule season are making their appearance in all parts of the two cities in preparation for the awarding of prizes which will amount to $400 for the best displays of electrically-lighted windows and doorways, outdoor Christmas trees and commercial decorations. Especial interest is being observed in the grand prize of $100 for the most outstanding display in the contest.

Participants in the contest must fill out blank forms provided for the purpose, and may be obtained at the Chamber of Commerce or clipped from the columns of this paper. West Monroe entrants may obtain the forms at the office of the Ouachita Citizen. Entries close on the night of December 21.

EARLY RESIGNS

There has been no indication as to who will be chosen.

Early's resignation is not effective until December 31 but he asked to be relieved of his duties Monday so he could attend to personal affairs.

Early, formerly of Birmingham, Ala., was at one time federal emergency relief administrator for Louisiana, but was replaced by Frank H. Peterman in April, 1935, when the federal government took over state relief operations.

He was appointed state ERA administrator last February 18 by former Governor James A. Noe when the state relief operations were revived, and was reappointed by Governor Leche.

HUNTED MAN

sided in each of the states, under assumed names, since leaving Monroe about eight months ago.

On one occasion, two months after Goulette left Monroe, the local sheriff's department learned that he was working at Borger, Tex., Sheriff Coverdale revealed. Two deputies from the department went to Borger to apprehend him, but Goulette eluded capture.

On another occasion, peace officers in Mississippi were reported to have narrowly missed capturing Goulette. The relentless search of the law went on and again Goulette was located, this time in Florida, but again he escaped, it was revealed by Sheriff Coverdale.

Finally, Goulette was recently located in the mountainous section of northern Georgia, where he was reported to be living under the name of John Roberts. About this time a brother of Deputy Cline, Hugh T. Cline, 62, prominent resident of Milledgeville, Ga., died at his home there. Deputy Cline left here last Tuesday to attend the funeral, and to take up the newest trail of the hunted man after the funeral was held.

Goulette, the deputy learned in following the trail, was working on a road building project involving the tearing down of a mountain, in a section of country located between Rome, Ga., and Chattanooga, Tenn., 190 miles from Milledgeville.

Accompanied by two deputies from the sheriff's department at Rome, and using an automobile with Georgia license plates, Deputy Cline went to the place where Goulette was working. It happened that rain was falling and work had been suspended for the day. The officers went to a general store, where some of the workmen were loitering, and walked inside. Goulette was in the store. He recognized Deputy Cline and fled for the rear door of the store. The deputy overtook him a short distance from the store and arrested him.

On the return trip to Monroe, the prisoner sat beside the deputy on the front seat of the latter's car, with handcuffs on his wrists and his arms belted to his side.

Goulette, at the time his alleged offense was committed here, was working on the levee project on Riverfront immediately east of the old municipal natatorium. He was employed as a truck driver. In Georgia he was employed as a mechanic in repairing vehicles used on the road building project.

The carnal knowledge charge was sworn out by the father of the young girl.

In 1934, the Ouachita parish sheriff's department arrested Goulette for the Union parish sheriff's department. Goulette served a sentence of a year in the state penitentiary for breaking and entering in Union parish.

Arrest of Goulette is but one instance of the relentless work of the Ouachita parish sheriff's department, a work which has gained the department a reputation as being one of the best in the south. This is a work which remains in the background, as far as the public is concerned, until the end of another hunted man's trail is reached.

regard Mrs. Simpson's generous offer to release him from any obligation is greatly to his credit.

Many would have been better pleased had the king said to Baldwin, "I am going to marry the lady, and retain the throne, that I inherited, and you are going back to raising thoroughbred pigs on your farm."

Had he said it, Baldwin would have gone; the pigs and the British empire would have gained by it.

HOWEVER, it was for the king to choose; he chose honorably, and the world respects him, wishes him a long and happy life.

After all, to be king of a people, fickle and ungrateful, with responsibility for an empire so vast, is not an easy task.

From a lesser task Charles the Fifth, who built up an empire of many European countries, retired wearily to rest in a monastery. May the king live happily and the photographers not worry him too much.

TENSAS PLANTER INJURED IN CRASH

FERRIDAY, La., Dec. 12.—(Special)—J. T. McDade, Tensas parish plantation owner, was seriously injured Friday night when the truck in which he was riding collided with a truck occupied by four negroes on the Ferriday-Waterproof highway. Frank Dix, negro, was fatally injured and the other three received serious abrasions. They were brought to Ferriday for medical attention.

According to Sheriff Elliott D. Coleman of St. Joseph, who investigated the accident, the two trucks collided on a narrow bridge after Mr. McDade was blinded by the lights of the negroes' vehicle.

INSURGENTS DROP

300 yards from the American embassy today.

There was a brief exchange of rifle and machine gun fire in the Moncloa district at early dawn but no important changes in positions resulted.

Cloudy skies grounded aviation forces.

Newspapers displayed prominently reports attributed to Moscow that 6,000 Germans and 2,500 Italians had reinforced Franco's army and cited this as proof the insurgent chieftain was running short of troops.

The press charged also that German volunteers were receiving 1,000 marks ($400) as an enlistment bonus and a salary of 800 marks $(320) monthly.

The newspaper Juventad reported workers in mountain regions behind the Fascist lines were in revolt, thereby causing the insurgents much difficulty.

SUBMARINE C-3 TORPEDOED AND SUNK

VALENCIA, Spain, Dec. 12.—(AP)—The ministry of marine of the Spanish Socialist government issued a communique tonight declaring its submarine C-3 was torpedoed and sunk.

The C-3, the ministry claimed, was torpedoed by another submarine, "evidently foreign."

The Spanish underwater ship was said to have gone down with all its crew of 47 men aboard.

The announcement said that the C-3 was sunk off Malaga, seaport on the southern coast of Spain near the Straits of Gibraltar.

As far as was known, officials said, only the submarine's captain, Augustin Garcia, and two seamen were saved.

They were reported picked up later by the vessel Artabro.

QUICK END SOUGHT FOR SPANISH WAR

GENEVA, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Unanimously backed by the League of Nations council, France and Great Britain will concentrate their energies toward bringing to a quick end the Spanish civil war, it became apparent tonight.

The general impression among league officials, after the council's adoption of a resolution urging a halt to the war because it endangers international peace, was that all nations concerned, including Italy and Germany, would rally in principle to a strengthened non-intervention accord designed to keep foreign soldiers and munitions out of Spain, and perhaps to the Franco-British mediation proposal.

The Valencia-Madrid socialist government, which appealed to the league after recognition of the Spanish Fascists, by Italy and Germany got the satisfaction of council justifying its action—while avoiding mention of Germany and Italy, and resolution declares the present situation threatens international peace and endorsed the Franco-British mediation proposal to the European neutrality committee at London.

The resolution urges the committee to make efforts "as stringent as possible and to take appropriate measures to insure forthwith that fulfillment of said undertakings is effectively supervised."

And as the league agreed to seek isolation of the Spanish war, a new trouble arose—serious dispute between Turkey and France over Turkish Syrian border clashes. Correspondence between the Turkish and French governments was published at the Nzjiicnmwon of Turkey.

BOY DELIVERING

said two men standing on the Ouachita river levee, opposite the residence, called to him, stating they had made the telephone call and asking him to come to them with the goods and change.

The boy complied with the request and was attacked, one of the men striking him a severe blow on the head with a heavy rock or brick bat.

Mr. Causey notified police of the robbery.

In connection with the robbery, C. R. Tidwell, superintendent of police, issued a statement in which he asked Monroe merchants to telephone the police department whenever they are in doubt as to whether a telephone request for merchandise and change is genuine.

Superintendent Tidwell asked the merchants to verify, whenever possible, the authenticity of telephone calls for such deliveries. If the authenticity of the calls cannot be substantiated over the telephone, the police department stands ready to give prompt assurance that boys making the deliveries will not be attacked and robbed, the superintendent said.

Mr. Tidwell said that such robberies as the one committed last night are more likely to occur at this season of the year than during other seasons. Merchants and their employes are unusually busy, but a moment taken to verify a telephone call or to notify police may prevent a repetition of last night's robbery, he said.

The program promises to be exceptionally interesting, and as it will be the first time this season that the various school bands will appear in concert it should attract a large number of parents, teachers and citizens generally, especially as it will be given Sunday afternoon.

Individual contributions to the fund should be made promptly as possible this week, so that the committee need not be hampered in its work of preparing the baskets that are to go out early next week. Send all donations to the Good Fellows Fund to the World and News-Star, 110 North Second street, Monroe.

There has been no indication as to who will be chosen.

Early's resignation is not effective until December 31 but he asked to be relieved of his duties Monday so he could attend to personal affairs.

Early, formerly of Birmingham, Ala., was at one time federal emergency relief administrator for Louisiana, but was replaced by Frank H. Peterman in April, 1935, when the federal government took over state relief operations.

He was appointed state ERA administrator last February 18 by former Governor James A. Noe when the state relief operations were revived, and was reappointed by Governor Leche.

sided in each of the states, under assumed names, since leaving Monroe about eight months ago.

On one occasion, two months after Goulette left Monroe, the local sheriff's department learned that he was working at Borger, Tex., Sheriff Coverdale revealed. Two deputies from the department went to Borger to apprehend him, but Goulette eluded capture.

On another occasion, peace officers in Mississippi were reported to have narrowly missed capturing Goulette. The relentless search of the law went on and again Goulette was located, this time in Florida, but again he escaped, it was revealed by Sheriff Coverdale.

Finally, Goulette was recently located in the mountainous section of northern Georgia, where he was reported to be living under the name of John Roberts. About this time a brother of Deputy Cline, Hugh T. Cline, 62, prominent resident of Milledgeville, Ga., died at his home there. Deputy Cline left here last Tuesday to attend the funeral, and to take up the newest trail of the hunted man after the funeral was held.

Goulette, the deputy learned in following the trail, was working on a road building project involving the tearing down of a mountain, in a section of country located between Rome, Ga., and Chattanooga, Tenn., 190 miles from Milledgeville.

Accompanied by two deputies from the sheriff's department at Rome, and using an automobile with Georgia license plates, Deputy Cline went to the place where Goulette was working. It happened that rain was falling and work had been suspended for the day. The officers went to a general store, where some of the workmen were loitering, and walked inside. Goulette was in the store. He recognized Deputy Cline and fled for the rear door of the store. The deputy overtook him a short distance from the store and arrested him.

On the return trip to Monroe, the prisoner sat beside the deputy on the front seat of the latter's car, with handcuffs on his wrists and his arms belted to his side.

Goulette, at the time his alleged offense was committed here, was working on the levee project on Riverfront immediately east of the old municipal natatorium. He was employed as a truck driver. In Georgia he was employed as a mechanic in repairing vehicles used on the road building project.

The carnal knowledge charge was sworn out by the father of the young girl.

In 1934, the Ouachita parish sheriff's department arrested Goulette for the Union parish sheriff's department. Goulette served a sentence of a year in the state penitentiary for breaking and entering in Union parish.

Arrest of Goulette is but one instance of the relentless work of the Ouachita parish sheriff's department, a work which has gained the department a reputation as being one of the best in the south. This is a work which remains in the background, as far as the public is concerned, until the end of another hunted man's trail is reached.

Many would have been better pleased had the king said to Baldwin, "I am going to marry the lady, and retain the throne, that I inherited, and you are going back to raising thoroughbred pigs on your farm."

Had he said it, Baldwin would have gone; the pigs and the British empire would have gained by it.

HOWEVER, it was for the king to choose; he chose honorably, and the world respects him, wishes him a long and happy life.

After all, to be king of a people, fickle and ungrateful, with responsibility for an empire so vast, is not an easy task.

From a lesser task Charles the Fifth, who built up an empire of many European countries, retired wearily to rest in a monastery. May the king live happily and the photographers not worry him too much.

300 yards from the American embassy today.

There was a brief exchange of rifle and machine gun fire in the Moncloa district at early dawn but no important changes in positions resulted.

Cloudy skies grounded aviation forces.

Newspapers displayed prominently reports attributed to Moscow that 6,000 Germans and 2,500 Italians had reinforced Franco's army and cited this as proof the insurgent chieftain was running short of troops.

The press charged also that German volunteers were receiving 1,000 marks ($400) as an enlistment bonus and a salary of 800 marks $(320) monthly.

The newspaper Juventad reported workers in mountain regions behind the Fascist lines were in revolt, thereby causing the insurgents much difficulty.

SUBMARINE C-3 TORPEDOED AND SUNK

VALENCIA, Spain, Dec. 12.—(AP)—The ministry of marine of the Spanish Socialist government issued a communique tonight declaring its submarine C-3 was torpedoed and sunk.

The C-3, the ministry claimed, was torpedoed by another submarine, "evidently foreign."

The Spanish underwater ship was said to have gone down with all its crew of 47 men aboard.

The announcement said that the C-3 was sunk off Malaga, seaport on the southern coast of Spain near the Straits of Gibraltar.

As far as was known, officials said, only the submarine's captain, Augustin Garcia, and two seamen were saved.

They were reported picked up later by the vessel Artabro.

QUICK END SOUGHT FOR SPANISH WAR

GENEVA, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Unanimously backed by the League of Nations council, France and Great Britain will concentrate their energies toward bringing to a quick end the Spanish civil war, it became apparent tonight.

The general impression among league officials, after the council's adoption of a resolution urging a halt to the war because it endangers international peace, was that all nations concerned, including Italy and Germany, would rally in principle to a strengthened non-intervention accord designed to keep foreign soldiers and munitions out of Spain, and perhaps to the Franco-British mediation proposal.

The Valencia-Madrid socialist government, which appealed to the league after recognition of the Spanish Fascists, by Italy and Germany got the satisfaction of council justifying its action—while avoiding mention of Germany and Italy, and resolution declares the present situation threatens international peace and endorsed the Franco-British mediation proposal to the European neutrality committee at London.

The resolution urges the committee to make efforts "as stringent as possible and to take appropriate measures to insure forthwith that fulfillment of said undertakings is effectively supervised."

And as the league agreed to seek isolation of the Spanish war, a new trouble arose—serious dispute between Turkey and France over Turkish Syrian border clashes. Correspondence between the Turkish and French governments was published at the Nzjicicnmwon of Turkey.

BOY DELIVERING

said two men standing on the Ouachita river levee, opposite the residence, called to him, stating they had made the telephone call and asking him to come to them with the goods and change.

The boy complied with the request and was attacked, one of the men striking him a severe blow on the head with a heavy rock or brick bat.

Mr. Causey notified police of the robbery.

In connection with the robbery, C. R. Tidwell, superintendent of police, issued a statement in which he asked Monroe merchants to telephone the police department whenever they are in doubt as to whether a telephone request for merchandise and change is genuine.

Superintendent Tidwell asked the merchants to verify, whenever possible, the authenticity of telephone calls for such deliveries. If the authenticity of the calls cannot be substantiated over the telephone, the police department stands ready to give prompt assurance that boys making the deliveries will not be attacked and robbed, the superintendent said.

Mr. Tidwell said that such robberies as the one committed last night are more likely to occur at this season of the year than during other seasons. Merchants and their employes are unusually busy, but a moment taken to verify a telephone call or to notify police may prevent a repetition of last night's robbery, he said.

BY GEO. V. LOFTON

IT'S SETTLED

Although both colleges seem to treat it as a deep, dark secret, Louisiana Tech and Centenary will resume football relations next season. They'll play on December 4, 1937, at Ruston.

We have it from a source close—yea, very close—to the Centenary athletic department that all the articles are signed and sealed. The two old rivals are going to meet again on the gridiron and it's going to be the last game for both teams next season.

It will be the football classic of north Louisiana. These two teams can be depended upon to put up a whale of a battle when they meet, and Tech's athletic department might as well be warned right now that they'd better put some seats in the end zones, because the present capacity is too small to handle the crowd.

An effort was made to schedule a post-season game between the two clubs this season, but there wasn't a chance. Frankly, the powers-that-be at both institutions weren't any too anxious to play the game. Tech challenged and Centenary turned it down. If there had been enough guarantee involved the challenge would have been accepted but it was figured that there had been too much football in this section already—and rightly so—and so the game didn't materialize.

Tech and Centenary last played in 1930 and, if our memory serves us torrectly, Centenary won by one touchdown. Two Tech touchdown passes fell incomplete after the receiver apparently had snagged 'em in the end zone, and thus the Bulldogs lost an opportunity to score a victory over their old rivals. That was the last game between the two clubs.

Now they're going to tie up again. Both teams will be stronger than they were this season. Tech's juniors will be seniors next fall, and there are some promising frosh coming up to the varsity for 1937. Centenary's sophs will be juniors and the Gents, too, have some fine freshman talent to bolster the 1937 varsity. So no matter who else plays at Ruston next season, the "big game" will be on December 4.

BERNIE CLICKS

The announcement that Bernie Moore's contract as head football coach at L. S. U. had been extended to 1940 met with general approval throughout the state. Bernie has more than measured up to his job at Baton Rouge and he deserves a big hand—as well as a boost in his pay envelope—for the success he has had with the Tiger football machine.

When Coach Moore was given the head-man's assignment after the famous row between Biff Jones and Huey Long during the half at the Tennessee game a couple of years ago, there were many who predicted a collapse of L. S. U.'s football set-up. Instead, the Tigers won the Southeastern championship last year and then repeated during the past campaign. In 1935 those who thought that a "big name" coach should be hired, attributed Moore's success to the stars developed by Jones. Mickal, Fatherree, Brown, Helveston, Barrett and the others who received their training under the renowned Biffer were responsible for Moore's success. When these stars graduated, it would be a different story.

Well, it wasn't a different story. Moore took the juniors and sophomores and filled the gaps commendably. He turned out an even stronger team than the one which brought the championship to Baton Rouge in 1935, and now the Tigers are rated the second strongest club in the country.

We concede, of course, that "Ears" Whitworth, Ben Enis, Joel Hunt and the other assistants under Moore were important cogs in building the machine which will meet Santa Clara in the Sugar Bowl game New Year's day; the team which copped the Southeastern championship for the second consecutive year. But still we doff our battered head-piece to Bernie Moore, the guy who was put on the spot and came through like a champion.

The goofiest football season known to man ended appropriately yesterday when T. C. U. trimmed Santa Clara, until then the only undefeated and untied major team in the nation. Those who picked Santa Clara to win were tempting the fates. This has been a season of upsets, and there wasn't anything to do but to pick the Frogs to knock the Broncos from the top perch that they had occupied through a tough schedule.

Now if Santa Clara will only beat L. S. U. in the Sugar Bowl and Pitt trim Washington in the Rose Bowl, everything will be lovely. The Tigers are easily favorites in the Orleans classic and the Huskies, who handpicked the Panthers in an attempt to win at least ONE Rose Bowl game, should be 3-5 at least to wallop the Pittsburghers.

Read the statistics on the Santa Clara-T. C. U. battle and you'll see that the Broncos should have fared better than they did. If ever a team got tough breaks, Santa Clara got 'em yesterday. It looked as if the officials were out there trying to make the Rose Bowl selection look good. Of course, the officials were just a bit closer to the plays than we were and what with our eyes failing us as we approach the dangerous age of 40, we can't expect our cheaters to make up the difference between Monroe and San Francisco.

Be that as it may, Santa Clara's defeat yesterday shouldn't hurt the Sugar Bowl gate. After all, grid fans have learned to "take it" this season and they expect anything to happen when they enter the gate of a football stadium.

SPORTSMANSHIP

Ed Walker, halfback on the Northeast Center team this fall, was awarded a sportsmanship trophy by the Kiwanis club last Wednesday.

Walker didn't figure on the headlines this year but nevertheless, he was in there battling all the season and the award shows that all the glory doesn't go to the back who makes the long runs or the touchdowns. There are other things that go to make a star, and Walker had it.

Walker is popular with his teammates and the award met with the approval of every man on the squad. That speaks volumes for Ed's character. He's a clean player, a real sportsman and a fellow who can take it or give it on the football field and still remember that there are certain requirements necessary to success other than an ability to overpower one's opponent.

The Kiwanis club made no mistake when it recognized Ed Walker as a worthy recipient for its sportsmanship trophy.

COCHRAN BEATS DENTON IN THREE-CUSHION MEET

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Welker Cochran of San Francisco eliminated Tiff Denton from the world's three-cushion billiards championship playoff tonight, defeating the Kansas City expert, 50 to 27, in 51 innings. Cochran's victory sent him against Kinrey Matsuyama of Japan in the final game of the evening for the world's title.

The three players had tied at the end of regular tourney play. This afternoon, Denton lost to Matsuyama and Cochran's victory over the Kansas City player set the stage for a deciding match.

Cochran was erratic tonight in comparison to the form he displayed yesterday in two victories. He was missing easy shots and Denton's extremely poor form was largely responsible for his decisive defeat.

The San Francisco star led through the game, getting a cluster of four points in the first inning. Cochran's high run was five to three for Denton.

TECH BASKETBALL SCHEDULE OPENS ON FRIDAY NIGHT

Bulldogs Start Intercollegiate Card Against Illinois College Five

RUSTON, La., Dec. 12.—(Special)—Louisiana Tech's basketball team, composed almost entirely of new players, will open the intercollegiate season here in a game with Illinois college of Jacksonville, Ill., at 8 p.m., Friday, December 18.

Of the 13 Tech candidates reporting to Assistant Coach Herb Duggins for the past several days, Fred Miller of Waterproof is the only returning letterman. Homer Coody of Coushatta and S. X. Lewis of Minden, squad men of last year, are the only other two who have had varsity experience.

Billy Mitchell of Ruston, a star performer with the Tech quintet last year, has been advised by Coach Eddie McLane not to participate in basketball this year, owing to a recent operation for appendicitis. Coach McLane, however, is counting upon Mitchell for service in baseball again next spring.

Frank Smith of Lillie, a tall and valuable center on the Bulldog cage squad last season, who is not in school here this semester, may return to Tech when the spring session begins in February, Coach Duggins stated.

New members of the local quintet are as follows:

Ollie J. Breclaw, Hammond, Ind.; Earl Cole, Ruston; Rupert Flake, Coal Hill, Ark.; Elmer Henslee, Urania; J. M. Nicholson, Jena; Thomas Humble, Kelly; Clayton Kirksey, Oak Grove; Brooks Bradford, Ruston; W. A. Jones, Mangham, and "Mississippi" Gordon.

Definite positions the candidates will occupy are not ready for announcement at present. Beginning Monday, the cagemen will receive attention from Coach McLane as well as Coach Duggins. For the past several days, Coach McLane has been attending conferences in the interests of making sports schedules and has not had the opportunity to work with the basketeers.

Besides Mitchell and Smith, three graduating members of last year's Tech quintet will be missed this year. They are Allan Barham, Madison Brooks and Will Cotten.

During the past week, the Techmen played two practice games with the Hodge Paper Mill five, winning the first tilt and losing the second.

Although the prospects for the Techsters are unknown, the Bulldogs have the advantage of getting started at practice earlier this season than last. Because the football season for Tech did not end until the middle of

RIVERSIDE RAIDERS WHIP AUBURN TIGERS, 78 TO 6

The Riverside Raiders, a team of north side youngsters who have swept through every team they've met this season, continued victorious yesterday when they trounced the Auburn Tigers, 78 to 6.

Auburn scored first, pushing over a touchdown in the first few minutes of play, but from then on out the Raiders ran roughshod over the Tigers.

The Raiders' 13 touchdowns were divided among Joseph Newcomer, Allen Jones, Harry Frazer, Mark Kennedy and Bobby Holt. No effort is made to kick the extra point in the Raiders' games for the very good reason that there are no goal posts on the youngsters' field.

Rudolph Vandenburg, picked yesterday on the all-Southern prep school football selections, has been an outstanding lineman of the Ouachita Parish High school squad for the past three years. Vandenburg is a center.

The Ouachita star was 20 years old last October and is a junior at the local high school. He is rated one of the best linemen ever developed at the parish school and a brilliant future in college football is predicted for him.

LOUIS ENDS WORK FOR SIMMS BATTLE MONDAY

CLEVELAND, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Looks like it may be a battle of punchers, drawled stoical Joe Louis, leathery hued Detroit sensation, as he worked out lightly today for his 10-round bout with Eddie Simms, Cleveland heavyweight, Monday night on the Cleveland News' Christmas fund show.

"I know he's a dangerous puncher and an improving fighter," commented Louis on Simms. "Ahm hittin' pretty good mahself, but Ah ain't pickin' the round."

"I've seen Simms fight three times. He's too tough a hitter to bide any time with. Joe will be out to nail him the first chance he gets. We never underestimated Simms."

Louis said in reply to a question that he would "pick a Schmeling fight first, of course," over one with heavyweight champion Jim Braddock.

Small-School Grid Stars On 'Little All-America'

Two Southern Luminaries Picked On Annual Selection By Associated Press

By Alan Gould

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—This year's "Little All-America," selected by Associated Press survey from the small-college footballers who romp the gridirons from coast to coast, presents an aggregation of talent that belies its designation.

With a line averaging 200 pounds and 6 feet 2 inches, from end to end, clearing the way for a quartet of unusually versatile ball-handlers, the team's manpower qualifies for competition in any league.

The selections represent the pick of players who annually perform without benefit of ballyhoo or headlines, except for such recognition they get in their own bailiwicks or when they tackle the bigger fellows. From their ranks each year professional teams gather talent that often steals the big league show from more illustriously built-up all-America performers.

With the exception of Norman Cooper, captain of the Howard (Alabama) team and choice for center on the 1936 "Little All-America" the selections have been made from colleges with a student body well under the 1,000 mark. Most players represent schools with less than 500 undergraduates.

Dividing lines, however, have become increasingly difficult to draw, on the basis of either the size of the student body or the competitive class involved. For "Little All-America" purposes Western Reserve, although not playing in a major conference, has been omitted because of the size of its enrollment, exceeding 9,000. On the other hand colleges like Colgate and Gonzaga, with less than 1,000 students, compete in the so-called big leagues and likewise have been passed up in the accompanying selections.

Kicking off, we find the east, back in power after many mediocre seasons, filling four places on the "Little All-America" eleven. The south, middlewest and far-west occupy two places, the southwest one.

Lone repeater is Trinity's Mickey Kobrosky, powerhouse back of this Hartford (Connecticut) college. Mickey is rated tops as an all-around back by New England observers. His running mates are: Dick Riffle, another versatile backfielder at Albright (Pennsylvania) college; Douglas Locke, diminutive but spectacular performer for St. Mary's of Texas; and Dick Weisgerber of Williamette college (Salem, Ore.) 215 pounds of ball-carrying dynamite who has picked up the "Little All-America" trail where his team-mate, Johnny Oravec, left off.

Riffle, in rugged small-college company, averaged around 130 yards from scrimmage per game, while also doing heavy duty on defense. Weisgerber was on a scoring spree all season in the Pacific northwest, passing for long gains between his touchdown dashes. Locke, a 60-minute player despite his size, has electrified observers from Washington, D. C., to San Francisco with his elusive ball-carrying. Locke gained 1,571 yards from scrimmage in eight games.

In the southern California sector, Howard Yeager of Santa Barbara was a terror, averaging 10.6 yards per crack from scrimmage. Elvin Hutchison of Red Oak, Iowa, tallied 84 points for Whittier college.

The eastern crop of stars included Fred King of Hobart, Roger Keith of Tufts, Joe Szur of Canisius, and Tex Mazza of Moravian.

In the south, Jud Hudson starred for the unbeaten and untied Tennessee Wesleyan team. Mercer's Allan Bloodworth was hailed as the "mighty mite" by Georgia writers. George Miller of Rollins (Florida) turned in a flock of dazzling performances.

Pro league scouts already have had their attention called to exploits by "Little All-America" linemen. Henry Hammond of Southwestern at Memphis, which upset Vanderbilt, is rated next to Louisiana State's Gaynell Tinsley by many southern observers. Leo Deutsch, giant St. Benedicts (Kansas) wingman, captained an unbeaten-untied team by doing everything the books calls for and, a la Larry Kelley, adding a few touches of his own.

By being classed "among the best tackles in the Pittsburgh district," George Mike of West Virginia Wesleyan needs no further recommendation. They don't come any tougher-fibred, in any part of the country. Mike was the No. 1 reason for Wesleyan's upset of Duquesne, conqueror of Pittsburgh.

To make room for Ralph Niehaus, giant tackle playing for Dayton, Ohio, Doublas Oldershaw of Santa Barbara State was moved to one of the guard positions. Oldershaw, a coast standout, can handle either job. George Anderson of the undefeated Middlebury (Vermont) team, picked for guard, is the tallest "Little All-American," towering 6 feet 4 1-2 inches.

TWIN CITY CAGE LEAGUE TO MEET

Rules And Schedule To Be Discussed At City Hall Wednesday Night

Final steps toward the organization of the Twin City basketball league will be taken Wednesday night at a general meeting of members of the organization at the Monroe city hall at 7:30 o'clock, it has been announced.

The league was officially organized last Wednesday with the election of officers and the enrollment of seven teams. One other team is desired to round out an eight-team circuit and persons desiring to sponsor or enter teams are requested to be present at this week's meeting.

Carroll Royce is president of the league; Bill Ross is vice president, and Leo Hartman is secretary-treasurer.

A rules committee, composed of Ross, Hartman, "Peanut" Hudnall and Buck Brown, has been drawing up rules for the organization and the principal reason for Wednesday's session will be to present these rules to the members for ratification.

Teams already given membership in the loop have been working out regularly the past few days and competition is expected to begin soon. Plans for a playing schedule will also be made Wednesday. All games will be played at the gymnasium at Northeast Center of L. S. U.

BAUGH'S PASSES WRECK BRONCOS' PERFECT RECORD

By Russell J. Newland

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Led by the greatest passer this football-mad section ever has seen—cool and courageous Sammy Baugh—Texas Christian handed University of Santa Clara its first defeat of the season today, 9 to 0.

Forty thousand cheering fans watched the last unbeaten and untied major team in the United States crumble before Baugh's deadly effective aerials.

"Slingin' Sammy" pitched, punted and ran with the ball occasionally for 60 minutes of a bitterly fought battle. He was the big gun in the Texans' terrific attack.

Behind the clever quarterbacking of this rangy field general, the Horned Frogs levelled the once proud gridiron fortress built up by Santa Clara during a season which brought it seven victories and an invitation to meet Louisiana State in the New Year's day Sugar Bowl game at New Orleans.

Glenn Roberts, 170-pound fullback from Fort Worth, opened the way for a touchdown, when he snagged a pass on his own 32.

The scoring march, good for 68 yards, went like this:

Baugh passed to Sub Half Montgomery for two yards; Baugh passed to Right End Roach who lateraled to Roberts, who ran 16 yards to Santa Clara's 48.

While the shocked Broncos were trying to muster a shattered defense, Baugh whipped one to Left Half McCall, who was downed on the 9-yard line—a gain of 39.

Then Baugh crossed up the boys—he smacked the line for four yards. The befuddled Santa Clarans then watched Baugh shoot a low swift pass to Roach over the line.

He redeemed himself later. With Texas Christian on Santa Clara's 13, Meyer dropped back for a field goal try. The ball split the uprights from the 22-yard line.

That ended the scoring.

Just before the Texas touchdown Santa Clara crossed the visitors goal on a pass interception by Sug Half Seramin and Referee C. M. Price called it a touchdown. But the referee had not seen a clipping violation spotted by his colleagues.

It was the third successive annual triumph of Texas Christian over Santa Clara.

After the game fans scuffled with police and exchanged blows among themselves but in the end, battered the goalposts into bits.

Schmeling Comes Back To U. S. To Protect His Interests

By John J. Romano

Max Schmeling denied a request to appoint an attorney to sign his name to a contract which was to assure him a match with champion James J. Braddock next June. The German has been advised of what is going on during the past month and undoubtedly agrees with the suspicion entertained by his friends that a concerted effort to shelve him in favor of Joe Louis gathered momentum with the display of ten $10,000 bills by Muggsy Taylor.

Max allows no one to do his penmanship for him, so he grabbed the first available boat from the other side and has just steamed in. His presence "has poured oil on the fire" and the wrangling over who should have the right to meet Jimmy Braddock, the champion, first—regardless of "exhibition" or championship match—has become more involved.

Schmeling is powerless to prevent a match between Braddock and Louis unless he takes the matter to the courts. The German signed a contract to meet Braddock in the event he won from the Detroit negro. The outcome of the battle so upset those who confidently looked forward to a million-dollar gate between Braddock and Louis that ways and means were thought out to deprive the German of the chance he had rightfully earned. The former champion was confident his contract would be fulfilled to the letter. The first inkling he had that something was wrong was when a suit to set aside an award for the motion pictures of the fight was threatened. Joe Gould, Braddock's manager, sealed the entire matter by appearing before the New York State Athletic commission and refused to permit the champion to keep the date because of an arthritis attack on the little finger of Braddock's hand. His complaint was backed up by competent medical authorities and the fight was postponed.

Max A Cagy Article

Schmeling has been accused of plenty of things since coming to this country eight years ago. True or otherwise, no one can rightfully say the German is dumb. Every move has been marked by carefully thought out plans before being put into action. He has not always acted with the approval of his American representative but, having made what were called errors at the time, the fact exists that Schmeling reaped a heavy reward in purses and is the outstanding contender for the heavyweight crown.

After his victory over Jack Sharkey in 1930 the new champion went on tour. It was a flop. The German was not impressive in exhibitions and, added to his reluctance to "shine" up with noisy characters—who know what is considered the proper thing to do in the fight racket—it was a foregone conclusion the entire schedule would not be carried out.

Schmeling refused to defend his title against Sharkey in 1931. Young Stribling was his choice. They met in Cleveland, instead of New York where a million dollar gate was assured, and the German came out on top. The promoters took a financial licking, but not Schmeling.

Sharkey caught up with Schmeling in 1932 and took his title. Later Max was knocked out by Max Baer. His failure to stop Paolino Uzcudun and a loss to Steve Hamas pointed to his decadence as a topnotch fighter, and fans thought they had seen the last of the first European to capture the world's heavyweight crown.

In this and other things, as later events proved, the fans, experts and what have you, reckoned without the determination of the German.

Schmeling's inaugural fight in his comeback was not impressive. Doughty Paolino took everything the German handed out and fought back with wild swinging fists. It was called a draw after twelve rounds. Walter Neusel, who had been hurling challenges at Schmeling for two years, was next on the list. The fight was stopped in the eighth round, with Neusel suffering from a badly cut eye. Steve Hamas made the journey to Hamburg to repeat his earlier victory over Schmeling. The German again confounded his critics by beating the American so badly that the fight was halted in the ninth round. Schmeling was put to one more test before he was accepted as a likely victim of the hard fists of Joe Louis. Since that night last June Schmeling's annoyances have multiplied.

Can Take Care Of Himself

Max Schmeling needs no defender. He is capable of protecting his interests. That, at the present time, chances to be the legally drawn document now reposing in the safe of the Madison Square Garden corporation. If it is not good enough to stand the scrutiny and approval of the highest court, then no fight contract is worth the paper it is written on.

A sound argument is advanced by those advocating a no-decision contest between Jim Braddock and Joe Louis. The latter is a better card than Schmeling. This much was proven when Louis stopped the washed-up Jack Sharkey and hapless Al Ettore. The German against either of that pair would not have drawn sufficient money to pay his training expenses and round-trip ticket across the ocean.

The catch in the no-decision match which annoys Schmeling exceedingly is that a knockout by Joe Louis would leave him out in the cold. He has no contract with Louis. The name James J. Braddock is plainly written in as his opponent. Schmeling refused $300,000 to meet Louis a second time, and there is no telling but what the negro would resent the German's refusal to give him a return match by paying him back in his own coin.

The Braddock - Schmeling - Louis controversy has stirred up more arguments than any other heavyweight embroglio in years and has kept the hot stove steaming with such good effect that a million-dollar gate is assured no matter who are the principals in the next heavyweight titular event.

IT'S SETTLED

Although both colleges seem to treat it as a deep, dark secret, Louisiana Tech and Centenary will resume football relations next season. They'll play on December 4, 1937, at Ruston.

We have it from a source close—yea, very close—to the Centenary athletic department that all the articles are signed and sealed. The two old rivals are going to meet again on the gridiron and it's going to be the last game for both teams next season.

It will be the football classic of north Louisiana. These two teams can be depended upon to put up a whale of a battle when they meet, and Tech's athletic department might as well be warned right now that they'd better put some seats in the end zones, because the present capacity is too small to handle the crowd.

An effort was made to schedule a post-season game between the two clubs this season, but there wasn't a chance. Frankly, the powers-that-be at both institutions weren't any too anxious to play the game. Tech challenged and Centenary turned it down. If there had been enough guarantee involved the challenge would have been accepted but it was figured that there had been too much football in this section already—and rightly so—and so the game didn't materialize.

Tech and Centenary last played in 1930 and, if our memory serves us correctly, Centenary won by one touchdown. Two Tech touchdown passes fell incomplete after the receiver apparently had snagged 'em in the end zone, and thus the Bulldogs lost an opportunity to score a victory over their old rivals. That was the last game between the two clubs.

Now they're going to tie up again. Both teams will be stronger than they were this season. Tech's juniors will be seniors next fall, and there are some promising frosh coming up to the varsity for 1937. Centenary's sophs will be juniors and the Gents, too, have some fine freshman talent to bolster the 1937 varsity. So no matter who else plays at Ruston next season, the "big game" will be on December 4.

BERNIE CLICKS

The announcement that Bernie Moore's contract as head football coach at L. S. U. had been extended to 1940 met with general approval throughout the state. Bernie has more than measured up to his job at Baton Rouge and he deserves a big hand—as well as a boost in his pay envelope—for the success he has had with the Tiger football machine.

When Coach Moore was given the head-man's assignment after the famous row between Biff Jones and Huey Long during the half at the Tennessee game a couple of years ago, there were many who predicted a collapse of L. S. U.'s football set-up. Instead, the Tigers won the Southeastern championship last year and then repeated during the past campaign. In 1935 those who thought that a "big name" coach should be hired, attributed Moore's success to the stars developed by Jones, Mickal, Fatherree, Brown, Helveston, Barrett and the others who received their training under the renowned Biffer were responsible for Moore's success. When these stars graduated, it would be a different story.

Well, it wasn't a different story. Moore took the juniors and sophomores and filled the gaps commendably. He turned out an even stronger team than the one which brought the championship to Baton Rouge in 1935, and now the Tigers are rated the second strongest club in the country.

We concede, of course, that "Ears" Whitworth, Ben Enis, Joel Hunt and the other assistants under Moore were important cogs in building the machine which will meet Santa Clara in the Sugar Bowl game New Year's day; the team which copped the Southeastern championship for the second consecutive year. But still we doff our battered head-piece to Bernie Moore, the guy who was put on the spot and came through like a champion.

SCRAMBLED

The goofiest football season known to man ended appropriately yesterday when T. C. U. trimmed Santa Clara, until then the only undefeated and untied major team in the nation. Those who picked Santa Clara to win were tempting the fates. This has been a season of upsets, and there wasn't anything to do but to pick the Frogs to knock the Broncos from the top perch that they had occupied through a tough schedule.

Now if Santa Clara will only beat L. S. U. in the Sugar Bowl and Pitt trim Washington in the Rose Bowl, everything will be lovely. The Tigers are easily favorites in the Orleans classic and the Huskies, who handpicked the Panthers in an attempt to win at least ONE Rose Bowl game, should be 3-5 at least to wallop the Pittsburghers.

Read the statistics on the Santa Clara-T. C. U. battle and you'll see that the Broncos should have fared better than they did. If ever a team got tough breaks, Santa Clara got 'em yesterday. It looked as if the officials were out there trying to make the Rose Bowl selection look good. Of course, the officials were just a bit closer to the plays than we were and what with our eyes failing us as we approach the dangerous age of 40, we can't expect our cheaters to make up the difference between Monroe and San Francisco.

Be that as it may, Santa Clara's defeat yesterday shouldn't hurt the Sugar Bowl gate. After all, grid fans have learned to "take it" this season and they expect anything to happen when they enter the gate of a football stadium.

SPORTSMANSHIP

Ed Walker, halfback on the Northeast Center team this fall, was awarded a sportsmanship trophy by the Kiwanis club last Wednesday.

Walker didn't figure on the headlines this year but nevertheless, he was in there battling all the season and the award shows that all the glory doesn't go to the back who makes the long runs or the touchdowns. There are other things that go to make a star, and Walker had it.

Walker is popular with his teammates and the award met with the approval of every man on the squad. That speaks volumes for Ed's character. He's a clean player, a real sportsman and a fellow who can take it or give it on the football field and still remember that there are certain requirements necessary to success other than an ability to overpower one's opponent.

COCHRAN BEATS DENTON IN THREE-CUSHION MEET

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Welker Cochran of San Francisco eliminated Tiff Denton from the world's three-cushion billiards championship playoff tonight, defeating the Kansas City expert, 50 to 27, in 51 innings. Cochran's victory sent him against Kinrey Matsuyama of Japan in the final game of the evening for the world's title.

The three players had tied at the end of regular tourney play. This afternoon, Denton lost to Matsuyama and Cochran's victory over the Kansas City player set the stage for a deciding match.

Cochran was erratic tonight in comparison to the form he displayed yesterday in two victories. He was missing easy shots and Denton's extremely poor form was largely responsible for his decisive defeat.

The San Francisco star led through the game, getting a cluster of four points in the first inning. Cochran's high run was five to three for Denton.

TECH BASKETBALL SCHEDULE OPENS ON FRIDAY NIGHT

Bulldogs Start Intercollegiate Card Against Illinois College Five

RUSTON, La., Dec. 12.—(Special)—Louisiana Tech's basketball team, composed almost entirely of new players, will open the intercollegiate season here in a game with Illinois college of Jacksonville, Ill., at 8 p.m., Friday, December 18.

Of the 13 Tech candidates reporting to Assistant Coach Herb Duggins for the past several days, Fred Miller of Waterproof is the only returning letterman. Homer Coody of Coushatta and S. X. Lewis of Minden, squad men of last year, are the only other two who have had varsity experience.

Billy Mitchell of Ruston, a star performer with the Tech quintet last year, has been advised by Coach Eddie McLane not to participate in basketball this year, owing to a recent operation for appendicitis. Coach McLane, however, is counting upon Mitchell for service in baseball again next spring.

Frank Smith of Lillie, a tall and valuable center on the Bulldog cage squad last season, who is not in school here this semester, may return to Tech when the spring session begins in February, Coach Duggins stated.

New members of the local quintet are as follows:

Ollie J. Breclaw, Hammond, Ind.; Earl Cole, Ruston; Rupert Flake, Coal Hill, Ark.; Elmer Henslee, Urania; J. M. Nicholson, Jena; Thomas Humble, Kelly; Clayton Kirksey, Oak Grove; Brooks Bradford, Ruston; W. A. Jones, Mangham, and "Mississippi" Gordon.

Definite positions the candidates will occupy are not ready for announcement at present. Beginning Monday, the cagemen will receive attention from Coach McLane as well as Coach Duggins. For the past several days, Coach McLane has been attending conferences in the interests of making sports schedules and has not had the opportunity to work with the basketeers.

Besides Mitchell and Smith, three graduating members of last year's Tech quintet will be missed this year. They are Allan Barham, Madison Brooks and Will Cotten.

During the past week, the Techmen played two practice games with the Hodge Paper Mill five, winning the first tilt and losing the second.

Although the prospects for the Techsters are unknown, the Bulldogs have the advantage of getting started at practice earlier this season than last. Because the football season for Tech did not end until the middle of

RIVERSIDE RAIDERS WHIP AUBURN TIGERS, 78 TO 6

The Riverside Raiders, a team of north side youngsters who have swept through every team they've met this season, continued victorious yesterday when they trounced the Auburn Tigers, 78 to 6.

Auburn scored first, pushing over a touchdown in the first few minutes of play, but from then on out the Raiders ran roughshod over the Tigers.

The Raiders' 13 touchdowns were divided among Joseph Newcomer, Allen Jones, Harry Frazer, Mark Kennedy and Bobby Holt. No effort is made to kick the extra point in the Raiders' games for the very good reason that there are no goal posts on the youngsters' field.

GREEN BAY PLAYS BOSTON FOR TITLE

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—The Green Bay Packers and the Boston Redskins will meet here tomorrow for the championship of the National professional football league.

The Packers, who went through the 12-game season with ten victories, one defeat and one tie, are 2 to 1 favorites to whip the young and rugged Redskins for the third time this season.

LOUIS ENDS WORK FOR SIMMS BATTLE MONDAY

CLEVELAND, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Looks like it may be a battle of punchers, drawled stoical Joe Louis, leathery hued Detroit sensation, as he worked out lightly today for his 10-round bout with Eddie Simms, Cleveland heavyweight, Monday night on the Cleveland News' Christmas fund show.

"I know he's a dangerous puncher and an improving fighter," commented Louis on Simms. "Ahm hittin' pretty good mahself, but Ah ain't pickin' the round."

"I've seen Simms fight three times. He's too tough a hitter to bide any time with. Joe will be out to nail him the first chance he gets. We never underestimated Simms."

Louis said in reply to a question that he would "pick a Schmeling fight fir..., of course," over one with heavyweight champion Jim Braddock.

Two Southern Luminaries Picked On Annual Selection By Associated Press

By Alan Gould

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—This year's "Little All-America," selected by Associated Press survey from the small-college footballers who romp the gridirons from coast to coast, presents an aggregation of talent that belies its designation.

With a line averaging 200 pounds and 6 feet 2 inches, from end to end, clearing the way for a quartet of unusually versatile ball-handlers, the team's manpower qualifies for competition in any league.

The selections represent the pick of players who annually perform without benefit of ballyhoo or headlines, except for such recognition they get in their own bailiwicks or when they tackle the bigger fellows. From their ranks each year professional teams gather talent that often steals the big league show from more illustriously built-up all-America performers.

With the exception of Norman Cooper, captain of the Howard (Alabama) team and choice for center on the 1936 "Little All-America" the selections have been made from colleges with a student body well under the 1,000 mark. Most players represent schools with less than 500 undergraduates.

Dividing lines, however, have become increasingly difficult to draw, on the basis of either the size of the student body or the competitive class involved. For "Little All-America" purposes Western Reserve, although not playing in a major conference, has been omitted because of the size of its enrollment, exceeding 9,000. On the other hand colleges like Colgate and Gonzaga, with less than 1,000 students, compete in the so-called big leagues and likewise have been passed up in the accompanying selections.

Kicking off, we find the east, back in power after many mediocre seasons, filling four places on the "Little All-America" eleven. The south, middle-west and far-west occupy two places, the southwest one.

Lone repeater is Trinity's Mickey Kobrosky, powerhouse back of this Hartford (Connecticut) college. Mickey is rated tops as an all-around back by New England observers. His running mates are: Dick Riffle, another versatile backfielder at Albright (Pennsylvania) college; Douglas Locke, diminutive but spectacular performer for St. Mary's of Texas; and Dick Weisgerber of Willamette college (Salem, Ore.) 215 pounds of ball-carrying dynamite who has picked up the "Little All-America" trail where his team-mate, Johnny Oravec, left off.

Riffle, in rugged small-college company, averaged around 130 yards from scrimmage per game, while also doing heavy duty on defense. Weisgerber was on a scoring spree all season in the Pacific northwest, passing for long gains between his touchdown dashes. Locke, a 60-minute player despite his size, has electrified observers from Washington, D. C., to San Francisco with his elusive ball-carrying. Locke gained 1,571 yards from scrimmage in eight games.

In the southern California sector, Howard Yeager of Santa Barbara was a terror, averaging 10.6 yards per crack from scrimmage. Elvin Hutchison of Red Oak, Iowa, tallied 84 points for Whittier college.

The eastern crop of stars included Fred King of Hobart, Roger Keith of Tufts, Joe Szur of Canisius, and Tex Mazza of Moravian.

In the south, Jud Hudson starred for the unbeaten and untied Tennessee Wesleyan team. Mercer's Allan Bloodworth was hailed as the "mighty mite" by Georgia writers. George Miller of Rollins (Florida) turned in a flock of dazzling performances.

Pro league scouts already have had their attention called to exploits by "Little All-America" linemen. Henry Hammond of Southwestern at Memphis, which upset Vanderbilt, is rated next to Louisiana State's Gaynell Tinsley by many southern observers. Leo Deutsch, giant St. Benedicts (Kansas) wingman, captained an unbeaten-untied team by doing everything the books calls for and, a la Larry Kelley, adding a few touches of his own.

By being classed "among the best tackles in the Pittsburgh district," George Mike of West Virginia Wesleyan needs no further recommendation. They don't come any tougher-fibred, in any part of the country. Mike was the No. 1 reason for Wesleyan's upset of Duquesne, conqueror of Pittsburgh.

To make room for Ralph Niehaus, giant tackle playing for Dayton, Ohio, Doublas Oldershaw of Santa Barbara State was moved to one of the guard positions. Oldershaw, a coast standout, can handle either job. George Anderson of the undefeated Middlebury (Vermont) team, picked for guard, is the tallest "Little All-American," towering 6 feet 4 1-2 inches.

BAUGH'S PASSES WRECK BRONCOS' PERFECT RECORD

By Russell J. Newland

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Led by the greatest passer this football-mad section ever has seen—cool and courageous Sammy Baugh—Texas Christian handed University of Santa Clara its first defeat of the season today, 9 to 0.

Forty thousand cheering fans watched the last unbeaten and untied major team in the United States crumble before Baugh's deadly effective aerials.

"Slingin' Sammy" pitched, punted and ran with the ball occasionally for 60 minutes of a bitterly fought battle. He was the big gun in the Texans' terrific attack.

Behind the clever quarterbacking of this rangy field general, the Horned Frogs levelled the once proud gridiron fortress built up by Santa Clara during a season which brought it seven victories and an invitation to meet Louisiana State in the New Year's day Sugar Bowl game at New Orleans.

Glenn Roberts, 170-pound fullback from Fort Worth, opened the way for a touchdown, when he snagged a pass on his own 32.

The scoring march, good for 68 yards, went like this:

Baugh passed to Sub Half Montgomery for two yards; Baugh passed to Right End Roach who lateraled to Roberts, who ran 16 yards to Santa Clara's 48.

While the shocked Broncos were trying to muster a shattered defense, Baugh whipped one to Left Half McCall, who was downed on the 9-yard line—a gain of 39.

Then Baugh dressed up the boys—he smacked the line for four yards. The befuddled Santa Clarans then watched Baugh shoot a low swift pass to Roach over the line.

He redeemed himself later. With Texas Christian on Santa Clara's 13, Meyer dropped back for a field goal try. The ball split the uprights from the 22-yard line.

That ended the scoring.

Just before the Texas touchdown Santa Clara crossed the visitors goal on a pass interception by Sug Half Scramin and Referee C. M. Price called it a touchdown. But the referee had not seen a clipping violation spotted by his colleagues.

It was the third successive annual triumph of Texas Christian over Santa Clara.

After the game fans scuffled with police and exchanged blows among themselves but in the end, battered the goalposts into bits.

Schmeling Comes Back To U. S. To Protect His Interests

By John J. Romano

Max Schmeling denied a request to appoint an attorney to sign his name to a contract which was to assure him a match with champion James J. Braddock next June. The German has been advised of what is going on during the past month and undoubtedly agrees with the suspicion entertained by his friends that a concerted effort to shelve him in favor of Joe Louis gathered momentum with the display of ten $10,000 bills by Muggsy Taylor.

Max allows no one to do his penmanship for him, so he grabbed the first available boat from the other side and has just steamed in. His presence "has poured oil on the fire" and the wrangling over who should have the right to meet Jimmy Braddock, the champion, first—regardless of "exhibition" or championship match—has become more involved.

Schmeling is powerless to prevent a match between Braddock and Louis unless he takes the matter to the courts. The German signed a contract to meet Braddock in the event he won from the Detroit negro. The outcome of the battle so upset those who confidently looked forward to a million-dollar gate between Braddock and Louis that ways and means were thought out to deprive the German of the chance he had rightfully earned. The former champion was confident his contract would be fulfilled to the letter. The first inkling he had that something was wrong was when a suit to set aside an award for the motion pictures of the fight was threatened. Joe Gould, Braddock's manager, sealed the entire matter by appearing before the New York State Athletic commission and refused to permit the champion to keep the date because of an arthritis attack on the little finger of Braddock's hand. His complaint was backed up by competent medical authorities and the fight was postponed.

Max A Cagy Article

Schmeling has been accused of plenty of things since coming to this country eight years ago. True or otherwise, no one can rightfully say the German is dumb. Every move has been marked by carefully thought out plans before being put into action. He has not always acted with the approval of his American representative but, having made what were called errors at the time, the fact exists that Schmeling reaped a heavy reward in purses and is the outstanding contender for the heavyweight crown.

After his victory over Jack Sharkey in 1930 the new champion went on tour. It was a flop. The German was not impressive in exhibitions and, added to his reluctance to "shine" up with noisy characters—who know what is considered the proper thing to do in the fight racket—it was a foregone conclusion the entire schedule would not be carried out.

Schmeling refused to defend his title against Sharkey in 1931. Young Stribling was his choice. They met in Cleveland, instead of New York where a million dollar gate was assured, and the German came out on top. The promoters took a financial licking, but not Schmeling.

Sharkey caught up with Schmeling in 1932 and took his title. Later Max was knocked out by Max Baer. His failure to stop Paolino Uzcudun and a loss to Steve Hamas pointed to his decadence as a topnotch fighter, and fans thought they had seen the last of the first European to capture the world's heavyweight crown.

In this and other things, as later events proved, the fans, experts and what have you, reckoned without the determination of the German.

Schmeling's inaugural fight in his comeback was not impressive. Doughty Paolino took everything the German handed out and fought back with wild swinging fists. It was called a draw after twelve rounds. Walter Neusel, who had been hurling challenges at Schmeling for two years, was next on the list. The fight was stopped in the eighth round, with Neusel suffering from a badly cut eye. Steve Hamas made the journey to Hamburg to repeat his earlier victory over Schmeling. The German again confounded his critics by beating the American so badly that the fight was halted in the ninth round. Schmeling was put to one more test before he was accepted as a likely victim of the hard fists of Joe Louis. Since that night last June Schmeling's annoyances have multiplied.

Can Take Care Of Himself

Max Schmeling needs no defender. He is capable of protecting his interests. That, at the present time, chances to be the legally drawn document now reposing in the safe of the Madison Square Garden corporation. If it is not good enough to stand the scrutiny and approval of the highest court, then no fight contract is worth the paper it is written on.

A sound argument is advanced by those advocating a no-decision contest between Jim Braddock and Joe Louis. The latter is a better card than Schmeling. This much was proven when Louis stopped the washed-up Jack Sharkey and hapless Al Ettore. The German against either of that pair would not have drawn sufficient money to pay his training expenses and round-trip ticket across the ocean.

The catch in the no-decision match which annoys Schmeling exceedingly is that a knockout by Joe Louis would leave him out in the cold. He has no contract with Louis. The name James J. Braddock is plainly written in as his opponent. Schmeling refused $300,000 to meet Louis a second time, and there is no telling but what the negro would resent the German's refusal to give him a return match by paying him back in his own coin.

The Braddock-Schmeling-Louis controversy has stirred up more arguments than any other heavyweight embroglio in years and has kept the hot stove steaming with such good effect that a million-dollar gate is assured no matter who are the principals in the next heavyweight titular event.

Both Max And Jim Prohibited From Meeting Negro Until After Title Go

Almost before the gallery realized what was going on, the New York State Athletic commission got the two fighters together and signed them for a 15-round championship battle in Madison Square Garden's Long Island bowl next June 3.

The Garden and the 20th Century Sporting club will be joint promoters. The contracts call for Braddock to receive 37 1-2 per cent and Schmeling 12 1-2 per cent of the gate, but private agreements will raise these figures to 42 and 20 per cent, respectively.

In sharp contrast of Friday's bitter wrangling, today's session was a love feast. It required less than an hour to reach an agreement.

Braddock and his manager, Joe Gould, made the match possible by turning their backs on Atlantic City and promising not to fight Joe Louis prior to June 3.

The champion's flat refusal to do this brought about Friday's squabble.

Mike Jacobs, 20th Century club promoter, who was to have been associated with Herman Taylor of Philadelphia in staging the show, said today's developments automatically cancel Braddock's proposed no-decision meeting with the Brown Bomber in February.

A clause that neither Braddock nor Schmeling is to meet Louis before the June fight was inserted in the contracts signed today, in addition to a stipulation that the winner must post $25,000 as a guarantee to defend his title here within six months.

There was much speculation as to what caused the overnight right-about-face of Braddock and Gould.

One report was that Mike Jacobs, feeling an indoor show between Braddock and Louis would mean little or no profit, was ready to toss the Atlantic City idea out of the window and that he promised Schmeling last night he would not let Louis, whom he controls, meet Braddock.

According to the same source, Schmeling communicated this promise to Chairman John J. Phelan in private today. When Gould heard of it, he gave in.

Gould said he figured there was nothing to be gained by delaying longer if Jacobs was weakening on a Braddock-Louis go for which the champ had been guaranteed $300,000.

SILAS WINNER OF ORLEANS FEATURE

Franzheim Star Cops $1,500 Jefferson Park Handicap, Pays $8.20

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Silas, 3-year-old son of Crucifixion owned by Mrs. B. Franzheim, won the Jefferson Park Handicap by a head here today at the Fair Grounds and rewarded his backers $8.20 for $2 in the mutuels.

Silas came from behind under a rousing ride by Porter Roberts in the $1,500 added feature and was forced to race to the outside rail to pass and wear down Reelon, Coward and Coffee Filly. The drive was an exciting one and thrilled a large Saturday afternoon crowd.

The winner paid $4.40 to show and $3.40 to place. Reelon paid $11.80 to place and $7.00 to show.

Mrs. Nick Burger's Bon Centime came in a well-beaten third and paid $3.60 to show. Mrs. Ed Haughton's Cascapedia was fourth.

Marcabala, owned by B. Hernandez, set the pace, closely pursued by Reelon, Bon Centime and Ste. Louise. Silas was far back in the early running, but made up for lost ground while swimming the rail.

Entering the stretch Roberts pulled wide to avoid the soft footing near the rail, rounded the stragglers and set sail for Reelon, which seemed to have opened up a safe lead over Marcabala.

Silas proved equal to the occasion and slowly but surely bore down Reelon. Ben Centime raced in the running all the way, but returned to third after making a mild bid to get to the front.

The race was a one-mile event.

Cards Furnish Executives As Well As Playing Talent

Rickey's Disciples Head Rival Baseball Clubs And Minor Leagues

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—The farflung St. Louis Cardinal organization furnishes other major league clubs with executives as well as players. It develops league presidents and places its products high in the councils of baseball. It has made its director, Branch Rickey, the biggest figure in the business. No piece of baseball legislation is passed without the approval of "the boss."

One graduate of the Cardinal farm system succeeded another when Warren Crandall Giles replaced Leland Stanford MacPhail as vice president and general manager of the Cincinnati Reds.

The Cardinal influence is felt in both major wheels. It was Rickey who straightened out the sad American league situation in St. Louis.

Branch Rickey largely was responsible for the introduction of Donald L. Barnes and the finest setup that the junior wheel ever has had in St. Louis. Working with Barnes, head of an investment company, as general manager and secretary, is William O. DeWitt, who spent 17 years with the Red Birds, rising from a vendor of peanuts and popcorn to be assistant general manager and Rickey's right-hand man.

It was Rickey who took Rogers Hornsby back into the Cardinal organization when he was dismissed by the Chicago Cubs and who drew up his contract as manager of the Browns under the late Philip de Catesby Ball.

When the veteran Thomas Jefferson Hickey retired, George Millard Trautman stepped from the presidency of the Cardinals' Columbus farm to the presidency of the American association.

Trautman succeeds Giles as chairman of the executive committee of the National association, which replaced the old national board of arbitration. Giles served in that capacity for three years and also acted as president of the International league following the death of Charles H. Knapp of Baltimore last July. Giles met with great success as president of the Cardinals' Rochester farm.

Phil Barthleme, who was director of athletics at the University of Michigan when Rickey coached baseball there, went from the Cardinal office to the presidency of the Sacramento Coasters.

It naturally follows that an organization controlling many clubs and hundreds of players turns out capable executives.

Old Joe Carr, chief of the promotional or new business bureau of the National association; Trautman, and Bill Griffith, the Columbus club's publicity man, organized a school of instruction and clinic which saw many a minor league owner taking notes at the Montreal meeting.

Griffith first trotted out a promotional display at the minor league meeting of four years ago. It consisted of 36 exhibits last year. There were 60 this winter.

It may be true that independent minor league owners no longer can compete with any degree of success against major league chains originated by Rickey, but the fact remains that the Cardinals organization did more toward holding smaller circuits together during the depression than any other.

It staked little fellows when the going was roughest. In return the Cardinals got the pick of the athletes at the end of the campaign. These arrangements were not always profitable. But Rickey and his partner, Sam Breadon, realized that baseball could not survive on a major scale without minor league feeders and were the first big league magnates to do something about it.

The chain-store idea was a matter of self-preservation when Rickey took over a poverty-stricken franchise and club in 1919. As he points out, if near monopolies exist now, there were worse ones in the majors when the Cardinals were just another of the weaker arrays which could not compete with the bankrolls of the Giants, Yankees, Tigers, and White Sox.

The National league wanted Rickey as president when John A. Heydler resigned. Rickey would do a whale of a job as baseball commissioner. His talent, energy, and progressiveness should be all baseball's instead of being devoted to one organization.

MILLERS TO MEET CENTENARY HERE ON TUESDAY NIGHT

Safety Firsts Play Two League Games On The Road This Week-End

Brown Paper mill's basketball team, youngest member of the Missouri Valley A. A. U. league, will open its bid for recognition in the world's fastest cage organization next Friday night in a game with the powerful Bartlesville aggregation at Bartlesville.

Before leaving for Oklahoma, the Brownies will meet the Centenary Gentlemen, annual opponents, in a game at Brown gym Tuesday night, starting at 8 o'clock.

With victories over Hodge, Hunt Oilers of Arp, Tex., and the Bogalusa Gaylords, Southern A. A. U. champions, under their belts, the Brownies are favored to take Centenary in stride and then depart for Bartlesville Thursday morning with hopes of putting up a strong fight against the Oklahomans, the team which is listed first in pre-season doping of the Missouri Valley race.

Although Brown is favored to whip the Gents, Coach Curtis Parker always turns out a strong team at Centenary and this year should be no exception. The Gents beat the Brownies last year and Coach Parker and his charges would like nothing better than to stop the fast club Brown has this season. Centenary will miss Jimmy Serra and one or two other members of the fast 1935-36 quintet but Coach Parker, who visited Monroe a week ago en route to the S. I. A. A. conference meeting, said he would have a good team again this season. The Gents have been working out for about three weeks now and although they won't reach their peak for several weeks, Centenary fans believe their favorites have a good chance to upset the Brownies.

The local Millers continue to improve, as their showing against Bogalusa demonstrated, and Manager Cary Phillips believes the club will romp over the Gents and then depart for Bartlesville in good shape to give the Oklahomans a battle.

Bartlesville has a star-studded lineup which includes such outstanding performers as Tom Pickell, Chuck Hyatt and George Willis, former members of the Tulsa Diamond Oilers, winner of the National A. A. U. championship two years ago; Joe Fortenberry and Jack Ragland, stars with the champion McPherson quintet last year; Jack Allenstrom, all-America choice last year with Kansas City, and Ray Stephenson, ex-Wichita Henrys flash.

Besides this array of talent, Bartlesville has Ray Ebling, all-Big Six forward at Kansas, and Dave Perkins, former Phillips university star. These two youngsters are rated tops among the young collegians in the Missouri Valley organization this season.

Following their game at Bartlesville Friday night, the Brownies continue on to Kansas City Saturday, where they tackle the strong entry that includes such stars as Herman Fischer, Pansy Ratzlaff, Jack Ozburn, Murray Brown and Dick Ransom. Monroe fans have seen Ratzlaff and Ozburn in action here and they know what they can do. Besides these veterans, Kansas City has four Wyoming university cagers, Les Witte, John McGinty, John Kimball and Hamon. These collegians sent Wyoming to the Olympic tournament last year.

The first league home game for Brown will be played on December 30 when St. Louis comes here.

SOUTHEASTERN TO STUDY BOWL PLAN

Co-Sponsorship Of Orleans Classic Up To Two Conference Committees

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Two Southeastern conference committees had authorities today to study the question of official conference co-sponsorship of the annual New Year's day football game in the New Orleans Sugar Bowl.

The football committee was asked to study the proposal, and the executive committee was authorized to receive its report, at the direction of Dr. R. L. Menuet, acting president of Tulane university, and new head of the conference.

Joseph M. Cousins, president of the New Orleans Mid-winter Sports association, informed conference delegates of plans to increase the seating capacity for Sugar Bowl games to 70,000.

If a previously discussed plan is adopted, the Southeastern would designate its champions to play an opponent to be selected by the sports association in each contest.

Officers for 1937, besides Dr. Menuet, are:

Vice Chancellor B. F. Finney of the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., vice president.

Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, University of Kentucky, Lexington, secretary-treasurer.

The three officers will be ex-officio members of the executive committee, with Herbert Martin of Alabama Polytechnic institute and President G. D. Humphrey of Mississippi State as other members.

CHOCTAW ELEVEN CARDS TWO GAMES IN FLORIDA

September 25, Southwestern of Louisiana at Clinton; October 1, Chattanooga at Chattanooga; October 9, Tulane at New Orleans; October 15, Millsaps at Jackson; October 23, Murray Teachers at Murray, Ky.; November 13, Oglethorpe at Atlanta; November 20, Millsaps at Jackson; November 25, Stetson at Deland, Fla.; November 29, Tampa at Tampa.

One other opponent will probably be scheduled for October 30.

DAWSON TO GET 'BRIDIE'

Winning Golf

By Lawson Little

NASSAU, Dec. 12.—It was not until the other day that I knew that Donald Ross had constructed over 600 golf courses in the United States. . . . Concentrate on each shot, forgetting the bad holes, and your score will be lower. . . . A proper grip is a fundamental in a proper golfing method. Try to use a proper grip, paying particular attention to having plenty of gripping pressure in the last three fingers of the left hand. The "V's" formed between the thumb and first finger of each hand should point over the right shoulder. . . .

Indoor School Still in Use

The first indoor golf school was established by Donald Ross in the Boston Athletic club in 1899. With but few changes, it remains practically the same. . . . Always try to hit the ball downward, never try to lift it, let the loft of the club get the ball up.

Hits Four With One Swing

Joe Ezar, the trickshotster, says he can hit four balls with one swing hooking one, slicing one, hitting another straight and catching the fourth? But Joe usually makes good his boasts. . . . Did you know that most golfers are left-eyed? . . . It is absolutely essential to keep your head absolutely still when putting. . . . Did you know that Leo Diegel injured his foot during a championship and played one round standing on his one good foot for every shot, and he holed the layout in 66 for a new course record?

Keep Putter Head Close

In putting the head of the club should be kept close to the ground throughout the putting stroke. . . . Did you know that Bobby Jones has never been under 30 for nine holes in tournament play in his life? . . . When your chip or approach putt is strong, watch how it breaks after it passes the hole. . . . This will give you a line for the return putt. Did you know that Bobby Jones has had but one hole-in-one in his life? . . . The knees are not very important in golf. . . . The movement of the body can be made correctly by concentrating upon the hips.

Did you know that Chick Evans' record of 286 for the United States Open championship stood for 20 years until Harry Cooper broke at Baltusrol last June by shooting 284? . . . He did not win however, because Tony Manero came in 15 minutes later with a 67 for a total of 282.

Did Not 'Ride Rails'

Did you know that Johnny Goodman did not go to the Amateur championship in a box-car, or "riding the rails"? . . . Nor has he gone anywhere that way. . . . Did you know that golf is an easy game to play well, but by well I don't mean tournament caliber, I consider 85 good for the average? . . . Did you know that the professionals will play for about $200,000 in 1937, and it will cost them about $925,000 in expenses to play in these tournaments? . . . Did you know that there is a great deal of talk both in this country and in Great Britain about limiting the number of clubs one may carry in his bag? . . . And lastly trite but necessary, "keep your eye on the ball."

T. C. U. EXTENDED COTTON BOWL BID

Dallas Promoters Invite Frogs To Play Marquette New Year's Day

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Texas Christian university, which defeated Santa Clara, 9 to 0, at San Francisco today, was invited to meet Marquette in the Cotton Bowl here January 1.

Curtis Sanford, oil man who is promoting the post-season contest, said he did not expect to have an answer from T. C. U. until tomorrow. Arkansas university has been definitely dropped from consideration as an opponent for Marquette, he said.

E. W. McDiermid, president of the Southwest conference and chairman of the T. C. U. athletic council, told Sanford he would ask the T. C. U. faculty committee for approval. If the committee approves, the next step would be to submit the matter to the conference faculty committee.

Sam Baugh, ace Christian back and outstanding pass heaver, has been selected to play in another game on the same date. He was picked to play with the West team in the annual East-West game in San Francisco January 1.

NASSAU, Bahamas, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Bushy-haired Henry Picard took a four stroke lead today in the $4,000 Nassau golf open with a 63 that was five under par.

Par on the short course is 68.

The field of 95 golfers will play 36 more holes tomorrow and finish the 72-hole tournament Monday in quest of the $800 top money.

Except for a lapse on one hole, Picard's chipping and putting were deadly.

Eight golfers finished the day even with par 68. John Bulla of Chicago, Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va., Dick Metz of Chicago, Willie MacFarlane of Hollywood, Fla., Harry Cooper of Chicago, Pat Sawyer of Minneapolis, Sam Parks, Jr., of Pittsburgh, and Joe Belfore of Detroit were five strokes off the pace.

Almost before the gallery realized what was going on, the New York State Athletic commission got the two fighters together and signed them for a 15-round championship battle in Madison Square Garden's Long Island bowl next June 3.

The Garden and the 20th Century Sporting club will be joint promoters. The contracts call for Braddock to receive 37 1-2 per cent and Schmeling 12 1-2 per cent of the gate, but private agreements will raise these figures to 42 and 20 per cent, respectively.

In sharp contrast of Friday's bitter wrangling, today's session was a love feast. It required less than an hour to reach an agreement.

Braddock and his manager, Joe Gould, made the match possible by turning their backs on Atlantic City and promising not to fight Joe Louis prior to June 3.

The champion's flat refusal to do this brought about Friday's squabble.

Mike Jacobs, 20th Century club promoter, who was to have been associated with Herman Taylor of Philadelphia in staging the show, said today's developments automatically cancel Braddock's proposed no-decision meeting with the Brown Bomber in February.

A clause that neither Braddock nor Schmeling is to meet Louis before the June fight was inserted in the contracts signed today, in addition to a stipulation that the winner must post $25,000 as a guarantee to defend his title here within six months.

There was much speculation as to what caused the overnight right-about-face of Braddock and Gould.

One report was that Mike Jacobs, feeling an indoor show between Braddock and Louis would mean little or no profit, was ready to toss the Atlantic City idea out of the window and that he promised Schmeling last night he would not let Louis, whom he controls, meet Braddock.

According to the same source, Schmeling communicated this promise to Chairman John J. Phelan in private today. When Gould heard of it, he gave in.

Gould said he figured there was nothing to be gained by delaying longer if Jacobs was weakening on a Braddock-Louis go for which the champ had been guaranteed $300,000.

SILAS WINNER OF ORLEANS FEATURE

Franzheim Star Cops $1,500 Jefferson Park Handicap, Pays $8.20

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Silas, 3-year-old son of Crucifixion owned by Mrs. B. Franzheim, won the Jefferson Park Handicap by a head here today at the Fair Grounds and rewarded his backers $8.20 for $2 in the mutuels.

Silas came from behind under a rousing ride by Porter Roberts in the $1,500 added feature and was forced to race to the outside rail to pass and wear down Reelon, Coward and Coffee Filly. The drive was an exciting one and thrilled a large Saturday afternoon crowd.

The winner paid $4.40 to show and $3.40 to place. Reelon paid $11.80 to place and $7.00 to show.

Mrs. Nick Burger's Bon Centime came in a well-beaten third and paid $3.60 to show. Mrs. Ed Haughton's Cascapedia was fourth.

Marcabala, owned by B. Hernandez, set the pace, closely pursued by Reelon, Bon Centime and Ste. Louise. Silas was far back in the early running, but made up for lost ground while swimming the rail.

Entering the stretch Roberts pulled wide to avoid the soft footing near the rail, rounded the stragglers and set sail for Reelon, which seemed to have opened up a safe lead over Marcabala.

Silas proved equal to the occasion and slowly but surely bore down Reelon. Ben Centime raced in the running all the way, but returned to third after making a mild bid to get to the front.

The race was a one-mile event.

Cards Furnish Executives As Well As Playing Talent

Rickey's Disciples Head Rival Baseball Clubs And Minor Leagues

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—The farflung St. Louis Cardinal organization furnishes other major league clubs with executives as well as players. It develops league presidents and places its products high in the councils of baseball. It has made its director, Branch Rickey, the biggest figure in the business. No piece of baseball legislation is passed without the approval of "the boss."

One graduate of the Cardinal farm system succeeded another when Warren Crandall Giles replaced Leland Stanford MacPhail as vice president and general manager of the Cincinnati Reds.

The Cardinal influence is felt in both major wheels. It was Rickey who straightened out the sad American league situation in St. Louis.

Branch Rickey largely was responsible for the introduction of Donald L. Barnes and the finest setup that the junior wheel ever has had in St. Louis. Working with Barnes, head of an investment company, as general manager and secretary, is William O. DeWitt, who spent 17 years with the Red Birds, rising from a vendor of peanuts and popcorn to be assistant general manager and Rickey's right-hand man.

It was Rickey who took Rogers Hornsby back into the Cardinal organization when he was dismissed by the Chicago Cubs and who drew up his contract as manager of the Browns under the late Philip de Catesby Ball.

When the veteran Thomas Jefferson Hickey retired, George Millard Trautman stepped from the presidency of the Cardinals' Columbus farm to the presidency of the American association.

Trautman succeeds Giles as chairman of the executive committee of the National association, which replaced the old national board of arbitration. Giles served in that capacity for three years and also acted as president of the International league following the death of Charles H. Knapp of Baltimore last July. Giles met with great success as president of the Cardinals' Rochester farm.

Phil Barthleme, who was director of athletics at the University of Michigan when Rickey coached baseball there, went from the Cardinal office to the presidency of the Sacramento Coasters.

It naturally follows that an organization controlling many clubs and hundreds of players turns out capable executives.

Old Joe Carr, chief of the promotional or new business bureau of the National association; Trautman, and Bill Griffith, the Columbus club's publicity man, organized a school of instruction and clinic which saw many a minor league owner taking notes at the Montreal meeting.

Griffith first trotted out a promotional display at the minor league meeting of four years ago. It consisted of 36 exhibits last year. There were 60 this winter.

It may be true that independent minor league owners no longer can compete with any degree of success against major league chains originated by Rickey, but the fact remains that the Cardinals organization did more toward holding smaller circuits together during the depression than any other.

It staked little fellows when the going was roughest. In return the Cardinals got the pick of the athletes at the end of the campaign. These arrangements were not always profitable. But Rickey and his partner, Sam Breadon, realized that baseball could not survive on a major scale without minor league feeders and were the first big league magnates to do something about it.

The chain-store idea was a matter of self-preservation when Rickey took over a poverty-stricken franchise and club in 1919. As he points out, if near monopolies exist now, there were worse ones in the majors when the Cardinals were just another of the weaker arrays which could not compete with the bankrolls of the Giants, Yankees, Tigers, and White Sox.

The National league wanted Rickey as president when John A. Heydler resigned. Rickey would do a whale of a job as baseball commissioner. His talent, energy, and progressiveness should be all baseball's instead of being devoted to one organization.

Safety Firsts Play Two League Games On The Road This Week-End

Brown Paper mill's basketball team, youngest member of the Missouri Valley A. A. U. league, will open its bid for recognition in the world's fastest cage organization next Friday night in a game with the powerful Bartlesville aggregation at Bartlesville.

Before leaving for Oklahoma, the Brownies will meet the Centenary Gentlemen, annual opponents, in a game at Brown gym Tuesday night, starting at 8 o'clock.

With victories over Hodge, Hunt Oilers of Arp, Tex., and the Bogalusa Gaylords, Southern A. A. U. champions, under their belts, the Brownies are favored to take Centenary in stride and then depart for Bartlesville Thursday morning with hopes of putting up a strong fight against the Oklahomans, the team which is listed first in pre-season doping of the Missouri Valley race.

Although Brown is favored to whip the Gents, Coach Curtis Parker always turns out a strong team at Centenary and this year should be no exception. The Gents beat the Brownies last year and Coach Parker and his charges would like nothing better than to stop the fast club Brown has this season. Centenary will miss Jimmy Serra and one or two other members of the fast 1935-36 quintet but Coach Parker, who visited Monroe a week ago en route to the S. I. A. A. conference meeting, said he would have a good team again this season. The Gents have been working out for about three weeks now and although they won't reach their peak for several weeks, Centenary fans believe their favorites have a good chance to upset the Brownies.

The local Millers continue to improve, as their showing against Bogalusa demonstrated, and Manager Cary Phillips believes the club will romp over the Gents and then depart for Bartlesville in good shape to give the Oklahomans a battle.

Bartlesville has a star-studded lineup which includes such outstanding performers as Tom Pickell, Chuck Hyatt and George Willis, former members of the Tulsa Diamond Oilers, winner of the National A. A. U. championship two years ago; Joe Fortenberry and Jack Ragland, stars with the champion McPherson quintet last year; Jack Allenstrom, all-America choice last year with Kansas City, and Ray Stephenson, ex-Wichita Henrys flash.

Besides this array of talent, Bartlesville has Ray Ebling, all-Big Six forward at Kansas, and Dave Perkins, former Phillips university star. These two youngsters are rated tops among the young collegians in the Missouri Valley organization this season.

Following their game at Bartlesville Friday night, the Brownies continue on to Kansas City Saturday, where they tackle the strong entry that includes such stars as Herman Fischer, Pansy Ratzlaff, Jack Ozburn, Murray Brown and Dick Ransom. Monroe fans have seen Ratzlaff and Ozburn in action here and they know what they can do. Besides these veterans, Kansas City has four Wyoming university cagers, Les Witte, John McGinty, John Kimball and Hamon. These collegians sent Wyoming to the Olympic tournament last year.

The first league home game for Brown will be played on December 30 when St. Louis comes here.

Co-Sponsorship Of Orleans Classic Up To Two Conference Committees

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Two Southeastern conference committees had authorities today to study the question of official conference co-sponsorship of the annual New Year's day football game in the New Orleans Sugar Bowl.

The football committee was asked to study the proposal, and the executive committee was authorized to receive its report, at the direction of Dr. R. L. Menuet, acting president of Tulane university, and new head of the conference.

Joseph M. Cousins, president of the New Orleans Mid-winter Sports association, informed conference delegates of plans to increase the seating capacity for Sugar Bowl games to 70,000.

If a previously discussed plan is adopted, the Southeastern would designate its champions to play an opponent to be selected by the sports association in each contest.

Officers for 1937, besides Dr. Menuet, are:

Vice Chancellor B. F. Finney of the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., vice president.

Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, University of Kentucky, Lexington, secretary-treasurer.

The three officers will be ex-officio members of the executive committee, with Herbert Martin of Alabama Polytechnic institute and President G. D. Humphrey of Mississippi State as other members.

BASHARA MEETS 290-POUNDER IN FEATURE MATCH

McClary Makes Debut Against Oklahoman; Kelly, Sarpolis In Semi

An all-star wrestling card, featuring matches between Ellis Bashara and Pat McClary, a 290-pound newcomer from Oregon in the main event, and Dr. Karl Sarpolis, the Chicago veteran, and Ernest Kelly in the semi-final, has been booked by Promoter Phil Lisotta to celebrate the first "ladies night" of the season Tuesday night at Roosevelt stadium. Lisotta announced yesterday that the fair fans will be admitted free when accompanied by one paid admission.

The card stacks up as the most attractive scheduled for the stadium in several months.

The Bashara-McClary battle should be a wow. Bashara has been running rough shod over his opponents recently, but if he can handle the 290-pound McClary that way, he's a better man than everybody's been giving him credit for being. The two met once before, in a match at Henderson, Tex. According to press reports, the fans stood on their chairs and roared for 14 minutes at a stretch as the two went at each other in the wildest match ever seen in that oil center.

McClary played two years of football at Southern California before abandoning his college career to take up professional wrestling. He's 28 years old and stands six feet, four inches in his stocking feet. His favorite modes of attack are the flying mare, the whip and body slams. He's rough and tough—just the kind of grappler who's needed to subdue the wild Oklahoman. He has recently defeated such opponents as Ray Steele, Pat O'Shocker, Leo Numa, Tiger Doula, Danny Winters and Hans Schnable. He has been wrestling six and a half years.

Sarpolis, who meets Kelly in the semi-final, is well known here, although he hasn't wrestled in the stadium ring for more than a year. The Chicago medico is also a tough customer and Kelly will have his hands full. Sarpolis is still rated with the best in the game, despite the fact that he's been at or near the top for several years. ## NEVILLE TO OPEN MITT CARD WITH BASTROP DEC. 22

Tigers Expect Good Team To Start Defense Of District Boxing Title

The mittmen of Neville High school, defending district champions and runners-up for the state title last spring, will open their 1936-37 campaign here on Tuesday night, December 22, against the Rams of Bastrop High school in the Neville auditorium, Coach Percy Brown has announced. The match originally was scheduled for next Friday night.

Six of the Tiger battlers who won points in the northeast Louisiana tournament here last March, and two who were point winners in the state battles return to the Bengal squad this season.

For the past five seasons, in which boxing has been added to the high school sports of the state, Neville has developed some of the strongest teams in the state. For three straight seasons, 1932, 1933 and 1934, they were north Louisiana champions and in 1934 they won the state title. They had rougher going in the following year, 1935, when they lost their north Louisiana title by a one point margin and then lost their state crown to Baton Rouge High school. Last spring, however, they came back strong to win the district championship with 46 points against 26 points by Farmerville, their nearest rival, then they went to the state battles at Baton Rouge and were nosed out 24 to 21 by Plaquemine for the state championship.

Last season was the Tigers' most successful as far as dual meets were concerned. In 14 dual meets, the Bengals failed to lose a single time as a team and, among their other accomplishments last spring, they won the Farmerville invitational tourney.

The battles here against Bastrop will start another 14 match schedule in which the Tigers must face Baton Rouge High school's Bulldogs, Lake Providence, Farmerville, Homer, Istrouma and Lafayette. Each team will come here for a meet, and the Tigers will pay them a return visit before the season ends.

Coach Brown has been working his charges steadily for the past two weeks and they are just now getting around to the ring work, having spent the past weeks in exercises, bag work, rope work and shadow boxing.

WARREN EASTON WINS 'A' TITLE

Eagles Play Tie With Jennings But Score More First Downs To Win

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Although held to a scoreless tie by a fighting band of Bulldogs from Jennings in a game for the South Louisiana championship, Warren Easton's Eagles qualified to meet Haynesville for the state high school football championship today by chalking up most first downs.

In cases of ties the winner is decided by first downs and the New Orleans city champions held a 4-3 advantage over the visitors in that respect.

The game was hard fought throughout and the 10,000 fans who braved cold weather to witness the game at Tulane stadium got plenty of thrills.

Warren Easton gained Jennings' one-yard stripe late in the final period but were unable to push it over. Jennings had two scoring opportunities in the first half but failed to cash in on either of them.

With only a couple of minutes left to play the Eagles marched to Jennings' one-yard line on a nine-yard run by Lenny Fresh. But the Bulldogs stiffened and withstood a pass attempt and three line thrusts to take the ball on their own three. Richard Wendrock, Jennings quarterback, did some masterful defensive work in the great goal-line stand.

Then with time left for but a single play, the Bulldogs gave the ball to little Wendrock and he was smothered for a two-yard loss as the game ended.

Easton failed to do much with Jennings' big line in which Douglas and Dudley Redell were standouts. Guy McLemore at center also played a great game for the visitors.

Fresh, who has gotten away for long gains in nearly every game this year, was bottled up much of the time and was less effective than expected. However, Anthony Galliano, Eagle halfback, made up for him, tallying two of the Easton's four first downs, including the deciding one.

The championship game between Warren Easton and Haynesville, winner of the north Louisiana playoff, will be played next Saturday, the city to be selected later by officials of the two schools.

OUIMET'S GOLF

FRANCIS OUIMET

The closer the golfer approaches the pin on his shots the more apparent become the virtues of smooth stroking. Smoothness in turn is made possible only through the medium of an ample backstroke which allows gradual acceleration. Starting the swing down hurriedly, from a short abbreviated backswing, induces jerks that are not only detrimental to the success of the shot but destroy the finer feeling of control over the clubhead. This may seem strange too, for the reason so many players employ the shorter stroke is due to the feeling they have that the clubhead can be better controlled if the arc, it is swung in, is short. They reason wrongly of course, that there is little chance for so many errors to creep into a swing which travels such a short distance.

Even if they have never given the matter the benefit of thinking, the instinctive action is to stroke hurriedly. This seems to me to be one of the real reasons why golf is so difficult a game for many. A controlled stroke is one in which the inherent desire to kill the ball, to smash the clubhead down quickly must be tempered. Instead of employing leverage in the manipulation of the club the golfer must learn that true swinging is the desired goal. The wider the arc, the smoother the acceleration is typical of the real stroke.

Real Putting Fault

One need travel no further than the putting green to find out how true this principle is. The greater part of the faults, that beset the average player here, are in large measure due to a stroke which is short and jerky. Near the cup it is possible to tap the ball in with a certain degree of accuracy but even here there is a chance that jerkiness may set in and spoil the actual impact. The longer putts afford still a greater hazard in this regard. Consider the state of the golfer who depends upon a short, quick hit to dispatch the ball over thirty or forty feet of rolling terrain and you have some idea of the problem confronting him. Not only is is difficult to hit the ball with enough momentum to carry it the required distance but it is almost impossible to add that smoothness to its roll, that will make it travel smoothly on its course.

Personally I have always found the method best which allows me to take the clubhead back in a wide arc, letting it come onto the ball with gradually accelerated speed and make impact with the ball in floating power motion. This habit once made and persevered in becomes almost second nature and allows one greater ease in figuring out the path the ball should take in its progress over the green.

Mistakes are often made in chip shots to the green because of this same tendency to shorten the backswing and hit hurriedly. Here the jerkiness often causes another hazard which creates bad results. This is the matter of head lifting so prevalent from a spot just off the green. In their anxiety to watch the flight of the ball many players not only hit quickly but lift the head before the ball has been struck. When one is concentrating on a wider arc and smoothness in the actual stroke, this is not nearly so apt to happen.

One could carry this fault as far back as the drive and there are many golfers that do. In this regard memories of a certain amateur championship comes to mind. In this event I was hitting my iron shots badly. I diagnosed the trouble before it was too late as my tendency to choose the heavier club and strike an easier blow. Naturally the swing was shorter and this was not enough to force my left hip out of the path of the stroke. As a result my left arm was collapsing at impact.

This brings to mind the fact that the golfer can generally tell himself when he is guilty of striking hurriedly and jerkily. The feeling is so apparent that it can hardly be mistaken and the remedy of a wider arc applied.

COUSINS 'DISAPPOINTED'

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Mid-Winter Sports association officials, sponsors of New Orleans' annual Sugar Bowl football game, were "disappointed but not down-hearted" over Santa Clara's trimming today by Texas Christian's Horned Frogs.

Joseph M. Cousins, president of the association and chairman of the committee that selected Santa Clara and Louisiana State university for the third annual bowl game here New Year's day, said "We were sorry to see Santa Clara lose but we still believe we have the best bowl game here."

"The Broncos put up a good fight," he added. "All the breaks went against them and we have no reason to believe that we have anything but a fine team coming from the west. It looked like too much Sammy Baugh today.

"Both teams competing in the Rose Bowl have been beaten and tied," he said, "and we're not down-hearted over Santa Clara's defeat."

Cousins said the game here "is almost a sellout now" adding that the defeat "won't hurt us any in that respect." Tulane's stadium, scene of the battle, will seat approximately 40,000 with the erection of temporary stands.

SEABISCUIT WINS AT BAY MEADOWS

Wildland was second and Giant Killer third. Seabiscuit ran the mile and three-sixteenths in 1:55 4-5, a new track record, and only four-fifths of a second off the American record held by Discovery.

The victory was worth $8,000.

Mutuels paid $4.20, $3.40 and $2.20 on the winner. Wildland paid $8.20 and $3 and Giant Killer $2.20.

Twenty-five thousand fans saw Seabiscuit, 3-year-old son of Hard Tack and Swing On, sweep to the front at the break and quickly race into a commanding lead. With Jockey Jack Pollard aboard, Seabiscuit pulled away from every challenge, and coasted to victory after two brief thrusts by Wildland and Giant Killer.

Infantry, high ranking stablemate of Giant Killer, carrying top weight of 117 pounds, made an early bid but flattened out and finished last.

McClary Makes Debut Against Oklahoman; Kelly, Sarpolis In Semi

An all-star wrestling card, featuring matches between Ellis Bashara and Pat McClary, a 290-pound newcomer from Oregon in the main event, and Dr. Karl Sarpolis, the Chicago veteran, and Ernest Kelly in the semi-final, has been booked by Promoter Phil Lisotta to celebrate the first "ladies night" of the season Tuesday night at Roosevelt stadium. Lisotta announced yesterday that the fair fans will be admitted free when accompanied by one paid admission.

The card stacks up as the most attractive scheduled for the stadium in several months.

The Bashara-McClary battle should be a wow. Bashara has been running rough shod over his opponents recently, but if he can handle the 290-pound McClary that way, he's a better man than everybody's been giving him credit for being. The two met once before, in a match at Henderson, Tex. According to press reports, the fans stood on their chairs and roared for 14 minutes at a stretch as the two went at each other in the wildest match ever seen in that oil center.

McClary played two years of football at Southern California before abandoning his college career to take up professional wrestling. He's 28 years old and stands six feet, four inches in his stocking feet. His favorite modes of attack are the flying mare, the whip and body slams. He's rough and tough—just the kind of grappler who's needed to subdue the wild Oklahoman. He has recently defeated such opponents as Ray Steele, Pat O'Shocker, Leo Numa, Tiger Doula, Danny Winters and Hans Schnable. He has been wrestling six and a half years.

Sarpolis, who meets Kelly in the semi-final, is well known here, although he hasn't wrestled in the stadium ring for more than a year. The Chicago medico is also a tough customer and Kelly will have his hands full. Sarpolis is still rated with the best in the game, despite the fact that he's been at or near the top for several years. Sarpolis, of course, knows all the holds and he mixes plenty of scientific wrestling with his rough stuff.

The card as a whole should provide more action than any booked at the stadium in several months, and with a "ladies night" thrown in, Promoter Lisotta believes he'll have a capacity house.

Both matches will be best two out of three falls, with the main event limited to two hours and the semi-final having a one-hour time limit. Officials have not been selected.

OUIMET'S GOLF

FRANCIS OUIMET

The closer the golfer approaches the pin on his shots the more apparent become the virtues of smooth stroking. Smoothness in turn is made possible only through the medium of an ample backstroke which allows gradual acceleration. Starting the swing down hurriedly, from a short abbreviated backswing, induces jerks that are not only detrimental to the success of the shot but destroy the finer feeling of control over the clubhead. This may seem strange too, for the reason so many players employ the shorter stroke is due to the feeling they have that the clubhead can be better controlled if the arc, it is swung in, is short. They reason wrongly of course, that there is little chance for so many errors to creep into a swing which travels such a short distance.

Even if they have never given the matter the benefit of thinking, the instinctive action is to stroke hurriedly. This seems to me to be one of the real reasons why golf is so difficult a game for many. A controlled stroke is one in which the inherent desire to kill the ball, to smash the clubhead down quickly must be tempered. Instead of employing leverage in the manipulation of the club the golfer must learn that true swinging is the desired goal. The wider the arc, the smoother the acceleration is typical of the real stroke.

Real Putting Fault

One need travel no further than the putting green to find out how true this principle is. The greater part of the faults, that beset the average player here, are in large measure due to a stroke which is short and jerky. Near the cup it is possible to tap the ball in with a certain degree of accuracy but even here there is a chance that jerkiness may set in and spoil the actual impact. The longer putts afford still a greater hazard in this regard. Consider the state of the golfer who depends upon a short, quick hit to dispatch the ball over thirty or forty feet of rolling terrain and you have some idea of the problem confronting him. Not only is it difficult to hit the ball with enough momentum to carry it the required distance but it is almost impossible to add that smoothness to its roll, that will make it travel smoothly on its course.

Personally I have always found the method best which allows me to take the clubhead back in a wide arc, letting it come onto the ball with gradually accelerated speed and make impact with the ball in floating power motion. This habit once made and persevered in becomes almost second nature and allows one greater ease in figuring out the path the ball should take in its progress over the green.

Mistakes are often made in chip shots to the green because of this same tendency to shorten the backswing and hit hurriedly. Here the jerkiness often causes another hazard which creates bad results. This is the matter of head lifting so prevalent from a spot just off the green. In their anxiety to watch the flight of the ball many players not only hit quickly but lift the head before the ball has been struck. When one is concentrating on a wider arc and smoothness in the actual stroke, this is not nearly so apt to happen.

One could carry this fault as far back as the drive and there are many golfers that do. In this regard memories of a certain amateur championship comes to mind. In this event I was hitting my iron shots badly. I diagnosed the trouble before it was too late as my tendency to choose the heavier club and strike an easier blow. Naturally the swing was shorter and this was not enough to force my left hip out of the path of the stroke. As a result my left arm was collapsing at impact.

This brings to mind the fact that the golfer can generally tell himself when he is guilty of striking hurriedly and jerkily. The feeling is so apparent that it can hardly be mistaken and the remedy of a wider arc applied.

COUSINS 'DISAPPOINTED'

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Mid-Winter Sports association officials, sponsors of New Orleans' annual Sugar Bowl football game, were "disappointed but not down-hearted" over Santa Clara's trimming today by Texas Christian's Horned Frogs.

Joreph M. Cousins, president of the association and chairman of the committee that selected Santa Clara and Louisiana State university for the third annual bowl game here New Year's day, said "We were sorry to see Santa Clara lose but we still believe we have the best bowl game here."

"The Broncos put up a good fight," he added. "All the breaks went against them and we have no reason to believe that we have anything but a fine team coming from the west. It looked like too much Sammy Baugh today.

"Both teams competing in the Rose Bowl have been beaten and tied," he said, "and we're not down-hearted over Santa Clara's defeat."

Cousins said the game here "is almost a sellout now" adding that the defeat "won't hurt us any in that respect." Tulane's stadium, scene of the battle, will seat approximately 40,000 with the erection of temporary stands.

SEABISCUIT WINS AT BAY MEADOWS

Wildland was second and Giant Killer third. Seabiscuit ran the mile and three-sixteenths in 1:55 4-5, a new track record, and only four-fifths of a second off the American record held by Discovery.

The victory was worth $8,000.

Mutuels paid $4.20, $3.40 and $2.20 on the winner. Wildland paid $8.20 and $3 and Giant Killer $2.20.

Twenty-five thousand fans saw Seabiscuit, 3-year-old son of Hard Tack and Swing On, sweep to the front at the break and quickly race into a commanding lead. With Jockey Jack Pollard aboard, Seabiscuit pulled away from every challenge, and coasted to victory after two brief thrusts by Wildland and Giant Killer.

Infantry, high ranking stablemate of Giant Killer, carrying top weight of 117 pounds, made an early bid but flattened out and finished last.

AMERICA HAS NO PEACETIME SPIES

Legal Attaches Stationed In World's Other Capitals Sufficient

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Uncle Sam, says the navy, army and state department intelligence divisions, has no peacetime spies.

Instead of buying military information through underground channels, officials say, America gets it legally by attaches stationed in the capitals of other world powers—often swapping "secret" for "secret" with foreign war offices.

And this is just as well, most of the intelligence experts agree, since they doubt that professional spies are worth their salt.

But none of the officials deny reports that spies are active today in America.

Such reports were given new life by the recent arrest of John S. Farnsworth, a former lieutenant commander in the United States navy, charged with selling naval secrets to an agent of the Japanese navy, and by the 15-year sentence imposed at Los Angeles on Harry Thomas Thompson, former naval yeoman, for selling information to a Japanese officer.

Admiral William H. Standley, acting secretary of the navy, explains that in time of naval activity, foreign nations do their best to find out what is going on. The United States is now building 79 new warships to bring the American fleet up to authorized limits.

Col. Charles S. Lincoln, in charge of military intelligence, asserts the army relies wholly on attaches. They are maintained at Rome, Buenos Aires, Vienna, Paris, Istanbul, Santiago, Peiping, San Jose, Havana, Warsaw, Berlin, London, Riga, Belgrade, Tokyo, Mexico City, Madrid, Berne and Moscow, and make regular visits to nearby nations.

Naval attaches, says Captain William D. Puleston, chief of naval intelligence, are in London, Paris, Rome, Brussels, Tokyo, Berlin, Peiping, Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires and Lima. On them the navy relies for its information.

Whenever an attache learns of some new development, it is explained, he requests official information through regular channels and usually receives it, unless the matter is confidential. Frequently there is an exchange of data.

Copies of "The Service of Information and Security," alleged to have been sold by Farnsworth to the Japanese, are all said to be accounted for. Officials suggest the information might have been transferred, however, through photostat copies of the book's pages. This book has been described as a battle manual for fleet officers.

COTTON

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Recovering the major part of Friday's losses, the cotton market regained more than 50 cents a bale in active dealings today.

Small gains at the start of trading were extended into goodsized advances on active trade and speculative buying all through the list.

December finished the day at 12.67, March at 12.35, and May at 12.20 with the best prices of the day made right at the close.

The market was called on to absorb the usual week-end liquidation, but this did not check the upturn in prices.

Trades devoted most attention to the technical situation of the December position with New Orleans speculative interest continuing to take delivery of actual cotton in this option.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Farm implements and amusements carried the buying banner from specialties in today's stock market, with favored issues pushing up one to around five points at the best.

Some of the recent leaders appeared a bit more resistant, but most merely nibbled at recovery and here and there sizable losses were in evidence. Transfers approximated 1,100,000 shares.

The list got off to a fast start on the upgrade. The rising tide was stemmed later as customary week-end offerings began to present obstacles.

At intervals the ticker tape fell behind floor dealings. Large blocks of the more popular stocks changed hands in the first hour. There was a single transfer of 21,000 shares of Paramount common at a slight advance.

Corporate bonds displayed improving tendencies, while commodities were mixed. European currencies were quiet.

In the share division it was noted the low-priced performers were inclined to quiet down somewhat. The moving picture group found comfort in expanding box office receipts. A few of the sugars, utilities and steels responded to earnings hopes.

Well out in front during the greater part of the brief proceedings were J. I. Case, Deere, International Harvester, Paramount Warner Bros., U. S. Steel, Central Foundry, U. S. Pipe and Foundry, Republic Steel, Douglas Aircraft, North American Aviation, Standard Gas, Anaconda, Cerro de Pasco, Westinghouse, Fajardo Sugar, Cuban-American Sugar, Great Western Sugar, Crown Cork, Canada Dry, Flintkote, Consolidated Cigar and Barber Co.

American Can yielded about two points at another new low for the year. In a restricted area were Chrysler, General Motors, Bethlehem, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Schenley, National Distillers, American Telephone, Western Union, North American, Consolidated Edison, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central and Southern Pacific.

With England apparently feeling better over settlement of the king problem, commission houses with foreign connections reported London was again on the buying side of American securities.

The ability of farm implement stocks to successfully buck generally downward trends in the past week or so reflected a much brighter business picture for major concerns in this field. Dealers were understood to be contracting heavily for a wide variety of agricultural machinery in preparation for a brisk upturn in spring demand.

AMERICA HAS NO PEACETIME SPIES

Legal Attaches Stationed In World's Other Capitals Sufficient

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Uncle Sam, says the navy, army and state department intelligence divisions, has no peacetime spies.

Instead of buying military information through underground channels, officials say, America gets it legally by attaches stationed in the capitals of other world powers—often swapping "secret" for "secret" with foreign war offices.

And this is just as well, most of the intelligence experts agree, since they doubt that professional spies are worth their salt.

But none of the officials deny reports that spies are active today in America.

Such reports were given new life by the recent arrest of John S. Farnsworth, a former lieutenant commander in the United States navy, charged with selling naval secrets to an agent of the Japanese navy, and by the 15-year sentence imposed at Los Angeles on Harry Thomas Thompson, former naval yeoman, for selling information to a Japanese officer.

Admiral William H. Standley, acting secretary of the navy, explains that in time of naval activity, foreign nations do their best to find out what is going on. The United States is now building 79 new warships to bring the American fleet up to authorized limits.

Col. Charles S. Lincoln, in charge of military intelligence, asserts the army relies wholly on attaches. They are maintained at Rome, Buenos Aires, Vienna, Paris, Istanbul, Santiago, Peiping, San Jose, Havana, Warsaw, Berlin, London, Riga, Belgrade, Tokyo, Mexico City, Madrid, Berne and Moscow, and make regular visits to nearby nations.

Naval attaches, says Captain William D. Puleston, chief of naval intelligence, are in London, Paris, Rome, Brussels, Tokyo, Berlin, Peiping, Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires and Lima. On them the navy relies for its information.

Whenever an attache learns of some new development, it is explained, he requests official information through regular channels and usually receives it, unless the matter is confidential. Frequently there is an exchange of data.

Copies of "The Service of Information and Security," alleged to have been sold by Farnsworth to the Japanese, are all said to be accounted for. Officials suggest the information might have been transferred, however, through photostat copies of the book's pages. This book has been described as a battle manual for fleet officers.

COTTON

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Recovering the major part of Friday's losses, the cotton market regained more than 50 cents a bale in active dealings today.

Small gains at the start of trading were extended into goodsized advances on active trade and speculative buying all through the list.

December finished the day at 12.67, March at 12.35, and May at 12.20 with the best prices of the day made right at the close.

The market was called on to absorb the usual week-end liquidation, but this did not check the upturn in prices.

Trades devoted most attention to the technical situation of the December position with New Orleans speculative interest continuing to take delivery of actual cotton in this option.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Farm implements and amusements carried the buying banner from specialties in today's stock market, with favored issues pushing up one to around five points at the best.

Some of the recent leaders appeared a bit more resistant, but most merely nibbled at recovery and here and there sizable losses were in evidence. Transfers approximated 1,100,000 shares.

The list got off to a fast start on the upgrade. The rising tide was stemmed later as customary week-end offerings began to present obstacles.

At intervals the ticker tape fell behind floor dealings. Large blocks of the more popular stocks changed hands in the first hour. There was a single transfer of 21,000 shares of Paramount common at a slight advance.

Corporate bonds displayed improving tendencies, while commodities were mixed. European currencies were quiet.

In the share division it was noted the low-priced performers were inclined to quiet down somewhat. The moving picture group found comfort in expanding box office receipts. A few of the sugars, utilities and steels responded to earnings hopes.

Well out in front during the greater part of the brief proceedings were J. I. Case, Deere, International Harvester, Paramount Warner Bros., U. S. Steel, Central Foundry, U. S. Pipe and Foundry, Republic Steel, Douglas Aircraft, North American Aviation, Standard Gas, Anaconda, Cerro de Pasco, Westinghouse, Fajardo Sugar, Cuban-American Sugar, Great Western Sugar, Crown Cork, Canada Dry, Flintkote, Consolidated Cigar and Barber Co.

American Can yielded about two points at another new low for the year. In a restricted area were Chrysler, General Motors, Bethlehem, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Schenley, National Distillers, American Telephone, Western Union, North American, Consolidated Edison, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central and Southern Pacific.

With England apparently feeling better over settlement of the king problem, commission houses with foreign connections reported London was again on the buying side of American securities.

The ability of farm implement stocks to successfully buck generally downward trends in the past week or so reflected a much brighter business picture for major concerns in this field. Dealers were understood to be contracting heavily for a wide variety of agricultural machinery in preparation for a brisk upturn in spring demand.

WATER HYACINTH CONTROL COSTLY

Plant Innocently Imported Into Country By Orleans Residents

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 12.—(Special)—The amazing cost to the United States government resulting from an innocent importation into this country more than 50 years ago of a South American type of water hyacinth was disclosed here recently when the United States army engineers received an allotment for the purchase of a newly developed power dredge to fight the fast spreading water plant which so rapidly fills southern waterways and canals.

Little did the party of New Orleans visitors to Venezuela in 1884 dream that the attractive water hyacinth plants they brought back to this country with them for exhibition purposes would eventually cause the army engineers years of trouble and worry and the American taxpayers more than a million dollars.

Those few plants, which according to the records of the engineers, were exhibited in New Orleans, soon got out of control. The surplus was thrown into one of Louisiana's many bayous. They spread with almost unbelievable rapidity from one bayou to another and into the new waterways and canals which were being constructed by the federal government. Today the water hyacinth presents a major problem to the army engineers in their efforts to keep the canals and waterways in the Louisiana and the Texas gulf coast open for navigation.

For about 30 years the engineers have been studying the problem. They have adopted many methods in their attack upon the plant, but none have been successful. They are hopeful now, however, of finally combating the plant with the new power barge which will soon be provided through an allotment of $94,000 approved by Secretary of War Woodring. It the destruction plant works, it will pay for itself many times over in a short period of time.

The army first took official cognizance of the encroaching hyacinths in 1897, when a special board was established to study and report upon feasible means of eliminating the plant from the waterways in Louisiana. Two years later the first allotment for "hyacinth removal," amounting to $36,000, was approved.

Every year a new extermination method was used. A derrick with a grappling hook failed. Salt had no effect upon the water flowers. Then a solution of arsenic and soda was tried. The solution was too successful. It killed the plants but it killed livestock as well. In one or two cases, deaths of human beings were traced to the arsenic poured into the channels. Cattle dote upon the hyacinths and thousands of them died from eating plants treated with arsenic before this method was abandoned.

Now the engineers believe they have the solution in the new barge with two large diesel motors to operate belts. These belts will run into the water, drag out the hyacinths, and carry them up into a crusher aboard the barge. The barge will be 60 feet in length and 20 feet wide with a draft of two and one-half feet.

If the barge proves successful, it will end the large annual expenditures which have been growing since 1899. Through June 30, 1935, they totaled $780,134.48. For the past fiscal year, an additional $75,000 was used.

While the hyacinths first spread in the waters of lower Louisiana, they have now reached the Texas gulf coast and Florida. Almost the entire intra-coastal canal from New Orleans to Corpus Christi is infested with the plants and it is in this important waterway that the new barge will be used mostly.

SUPERVISOR COMMENDS STUDENT AT JONESBORO

JONESBORO, La., Dec. 12.—(Special)—Annually each home economics teacher sends to the state department of education one home project of some student. Last spring Miss Coralie Saunders, instructor in home economics in Jonesboro High school, selected the project that Mary Gatlin, then a junior, had worked out.

During a recent visit of Miss Leila Tomlinson, state supervisor of home economics, Mary was called in conference by the supervisor and complimented for the splendid project which had been submitted to the state department. Miss Tomlinson pronounced it one of the best which had been submitted.

One feature Miss Tomlinson especially commented upon was the fact that this project had been criticized by the student's father. The supervisor stated this was the only project she recalled among the many which had been sent in that had been criticized by the student's father rather than the mother.

Plant Innocently Imported Into Country By Orleans Residents

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 12.—(Special)—The amazing cost to the United States government resulting from an innocent importation into this country more than 50 years ago of a South American type of water hyacinth was disclosed here recently when the United States army engineers received an allotment for the purchase of a newly developed power dredge to fight the fast spreading water plant which so rapidly fills southern waterways and canals.

Little did the party of New Orleans visitors to Venezuela in 1884 dream that the attractive water hyacinth plants they brought back to this country with them for exhibition purposes would eventually cause the army engineers years of trouble and worry and the American taxpayers more than a million dollars.

Those few plants, which according to the records of the engineers, were exhibited in New Orleans, soon got out of control. The surplus was thrown into one of Louisiana's many bayous. They spread with almost unbelievable rapidity from one bayou to another and into the new waterways and canals which were being constructed by the federal government. Today the water hyacinth presents a major problem to the army engineers in their efforts to keep the canals and waterways in the Louisiana and the Texas gulf coast open for navigation.

For about 30 years the engineers have been studying the problem. They have adopted many methods in their attack upon the plant, but none have been successful. They are hopeful now, however, of finally combating the plant with the new power barge which will soon be provided through an allotment of $94,000 approved by Secretary of War Woodring. It the destruction plant works, it will pay for itself many times over in a short period of time.

The army first took official cognizance of the encroaching hyacinths in 1897, when a special board was established to study and report upon feasible means of eliminating the plant from the waterways in Louisiana. Two years later the first allotment for "hyacinth removal," amounting to $36,000, was approved.

Every year a new extermination method was used. A derrick with a grappling hook failed. Salt had no effect upon the water flowers. Then a solution of arsenic and soda was tried. The solution was too successful. It killed the plants but it killed livestock as well. In one or two cases, deaths of human beings were traced to the arsenic poured into the channels. Cattle dote upon the hyacinths and thousands of them died from eating plants treated with arsenic before this method was abandoned.

Now the engineers believe they have the solution in the new barge with two large diesel motors to operate belts. These belts will run into the water, drag out the hyacinths, and carry them up into a crusher aboard the barge. The barge will be 60 feet in length and 20 feet wide with a draft of two and one-half feet.

If the barge proves successful, it will end the large annual expenditures which have been growing since 1899. Through June 30, 1935, they totaled $780,134.48. For the past fiscal year, an additional $75,000 was used.

While the hyacinths first spread in the waters of lower Louisiana, they have now reached the Texas gulf coast and Florida. Almost the entire intra-coastal canal from New Orleans to Corpus Christi is infested with the plants and it is in this important waterway that the new barge will be used mostly.

SUPERVISOR COMMENDS STUDENT AT JONESBORO

JONESBORO, La., Dec. 12.—(Special)—Annually each home economics teacher sends to the state department of education one home project of some student. Last spring Miss Coralie Saunders, instructor in home economics in Jonesboro High school, selected the project that Mary Gatlin, then a junior, had worked out.

During a recent visit of Miss Leila Tomlinson, state supervisor of home economics, Mary was called in conference by the supervisor and complimented for the splendid project which had been submitted to the state department. Miss Tomlinson pronounced it one of the best which had been submitted.

One feature Miss Tomlinson especially commented upon was the fact that this project had been criticized by the student's father. The supervisor stated this was the only project she recalled among the many which had been sent in that had been criticized by the student's father rather than the mother.

Knee-Length Evening Apparel Places Fashion World In Dither

By Mary Elizabeth Plummer

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Knee-length evening dresses have the fashion world in as much of a dither as does Edward's romance with Mrs. Simpson.

It seems there's a possibility—almost a certainty—that knee-length evening dresses are coming back, with belts slung inches below the normal waistline.

Not since the hot-cha days after the World war, the gay era along about 1923, have women appeared on dance floors in short, low-belted formal gowns. Now they're a definite "trend," and everyone is awaiting the January openings in Paris to see how many are shown there.

Mrs. Reginald Fellowes, a great style-setter, started the excitement about three weeks ago by appearing at the Ritz in Paris in an evening dress reaching her knees.

This week, Marjorie Dunton, Canadian-born Parish designer, arrived in New York with her new collection, which included one print evening gown with a floor-length skirt front and back, so cut that it reached the knees at the side.

"I believe that by next summer, evening dresses will be anywhere from the ankle to the knee in length," one style observer said today, "and will look something like tennis dresses—backless, but of better material."

Mrs. Dunton arrived on the same boat as did Schiaparelli, and the two designers looked equally beguiling—Schiaparelli because of her eyelashes, which were tinted bright blue; Mrs. Dunton because of her leather earrings, large as a half-dollar.

TEN YEAR CLUB MEETING HELD

Organization Will Sponsor Street Carnival Early In January

The annual meeting of the Ten Year club of the Ouachita parish home demonstration club organization was held Friday morning at the home of Mrs. B. L. Mulhearn, 1809 Jackson street. Activities of the club during the past year were reviewed, and plans for the coming year were formulated.

A committee was appointed, with Mrs. J. B. Filhiol as chairman, to interview Mayor C. C. Bell of West Monroe, president of the Ouachita Valley Fair association, and John H. Birdsong, secretary, relative to possibilities of raising money for a Ten Year club building at the fair grounds. Other members of the committee are Mrs. J. Landreaux and Mrs. C. McCoy. It was decided that the group will sponsor a street carnival early in January.

The annual Christmas luncheon will be held at the home of Mrs. Jewell McQuiller, Ouachita parish demonstration agent, next Saturday, it was announced. Two members from each club in the parish will be invited.

A major permanent objective of the Ten Year club, the activities and interests of 4-H organizations in the parish, was discussed at the meeting. Considerable progress has been made in this phase of the club's work during 1936.

Parties Planned For Yuletide Home-Coming

Approaching Christmas Events Claiming Interest As Fathers And Mothers Plan For Welcoming

By Eve Bradford

FLAMING poinsettias in a florist's window, holly wreathed windows in the residential section, fragrance of pine along the city streets and hurrying, eager, bundle-laden crowds make life beautiful these December days. The happy age-old reminders of Christmastide are many and they glisten like hundreds of bright little stars and points of light. There is no other season so rich in ritual in the modern world as Christmas. And the reason is that its traditions have been growing through the centuries and are deeply rooted, having their origin in the many ancient nature festivals that were beloved long before the birth of Christ.

There is, of course, the one great central fact—the birth of the Holy Child—which shines through it all and the inspiration for the shining baubles with which we surround ourselves on this rapturous birthday. Compared with it, all the mistletoe and holly, the singing of carols, the exchanging of gifts are quite trivial. But they are deeply symbolic and it is part of their undying charm that they are little and bright and inconsequential. No one would think of illuminating a Christmas tree with a single spotlight. It is the tinsel and sparkle, the tinkle and the childlike gaiety that brings a gleam of happiness into everyone's eyes.

The season of rapture and joy that no one can resist will be more rapturous than ever this year, for a new generation, as jolly old Ibsen said, "is thundering at our door." Home from prep school they will shine like the great star of the east, at the affairs their parents have planned for them.

Doll Hudson, lovely young sub-deb daughter of the Murray Hudsons, will arrive home on the 19th from the Abbot school for young ladies in Andover, Mass., accompanied by her roommate, Joan Webster. Fred Hudson, who is attending Phillips academy at Andover, will arrive at the same time. A ball on Christmas night for Fred and Doll and her house guest and Dottie and R. C. White, Jr., will bring the very young set together for one glamorous night.

In the George Wright home there is an atmosphere of expectancy. You can feel it the minute you walk into that large cheery living room where deep cushioned chairs are pulled up to the hearth where the flames leap high. Their son Billy is coming home next week from Culver Military academy. Soon the rugs will be rolled back, chairs lined up and the youngsters who make this home their rendezvous will say "on with the dance." Ailene, Billy's mother, says her design for living changes when her son is home—dancing on the spur of the moment—feasting at all hours and a stream of young folks sitting in the firelight glow any time of day. Billy's contribution to the social calendar will be a buffet supper during the holidays.

The surprise package of the day is the sudden blooming into lovely young womanhood of Jean Graves, Mary Lavinia Inabnet and Adelaide Parker. Full-fledged young ladies now, they will do the honors on the night of the 21st at Lakeside Country club where a dancing party will again bring the entire younger set together. Mothers are rushing madly about in search of gowns, long enough and yet young enough to meet the demands of their sub-deb daughters.

A trio of young gentlemen, A. G. McHenry, Jr., Trist McConnell and Louis Milner, Jr., will be the gallant, if somewhat youthful, hosts at a tremendous ball on the Cherokee terrace of the Frances hotel on the night of the 23rd. Just yesterday they were riding their ponies and interested in the great open spaces. Today they are concerned with a music-filled world peopled with pretty girls. Time marches on. Another generation clamors for recognition and the reins of leadership slacken in the hands of a generation just one step ahead of these youngsters.

Santa Claus, perennially conscientious, shows no sign of senile decay. His 1936 gifts are better than ever and many of these he has already unburdened on Monroe. One gift in particular will soon sparkle on the finger of a lovely young thing whose sister is having their mother's diamond engagement ring reset for a Christmas gift. Another sparkler, beautiful beyond words, is flashing its message from the left hand of a certain party. The announcement will be made on Christmas day over the flowing wassail bowl with friends gathered about to lift high the brimming cup to the accompaniment of congratulations and the customary flow of superlatives.

Every incoming train will soon start unloading precious cargoes at our doorstep. The college set, home for the holidays, will set the tempo for two weeks of gaiety. There will be nights and nights of dancing, with the Phi Kappa ball on the 29th shining like a beacon through the maze of events.

Tom and Jerry parties, prevalent during the Yuletide, will help banish the cares of the older set. In a few homes there will be oceans of creamy egg-nogg and mountains of fruit cake. The question mark must rise quite naturally about which host serves the most delectable concoc-

Parties Planned For Yuletide Home-Coming

By Eve Bradford

FLAMING poinsettias in a florist's window, holly wreathed windows in the residential section, fragrance of pine along the city streets and hurrying, eager, bundle-laden crowds make life beautiful these December days. The happy age-old reminders of Christmastide are many and they glisten like hundreds of bright little stars and points of light. There is no other season so rich in ritual in the modern world as Christmas. And the reason is that its traditions have been growing through the centuries and are deeply rooted, having their origin in the many ancient nature festivals that were beloved long before the birth of Christ.

There is, of course, the one great central fact—the birth of the Holy Child—which shines through it all and the inspiration for the shining baubles with which we surround ourselves on this rapturous birthday. Compared with it, all the mistletoe and holly, the singing of carols, the exchanging of gifts are quite trivial. But they are deeply symbolic and it is part of their undying charm that they are little and bright and inconsequential. No one would think of illuminating a Christmas tree with a single spotlight. It is the tinsel and sparkle, the tinkle and the childlike gaiety that brings a gleam of happiness into everyone's eyes.

The season of rapture and joy that no one can resist will be more rapturous than ever this year, for a new generation, as jolly old Ibsen said, "is thundering at our door." Home from prep school they will shine like the great star of the east, at the affairs their parents have planned for them.

Doll Hudson, lovely young sub-deb daughter of the Murray Hudsons, will arrive home on the 19th from the Abbot school for young ladies in Andover, Mass., accompanied by her roommate, Joan Webster. Fred Hudson, who is attending Phillips academy at Andover, will arrive at the same time. A ball on Christmas night for Fred and Doll and her house guest and Dottie and R. C. White, Jr., will bring the very young set together for one glamorous night.

In the George Wright home there is an atmosphere of expectancy. You can feel it the minute you walk into that large cheery living room where deep cushioned chairs are pulled up to the hearth where the flames leap high. Their son Billy is coming home next week from Culver Military academy. Soon the rugs will be rolled back, chairs lined up and the youngsters who make this home their rendezvous will say "on with the dance." Ailene, Billy's mother, says her design for living changes when her son is home—dancing on the spur of the moment—feasting at all hours and a stream of young folks sitting in the firelight glow any time of day. Billy's contribution to the social calendar will be a buffet supper during the holidays.

The surprise package of the day is the sudden blooming into lovely young womanhood of Jean Graves, Mary Lavinia Inabnet and Adelaide Parker. Full-fledged young ladies now, they will do the honors on the night of the 21st at Lakeside Country club where a dancing party will again bring the entire younger set together. Mothers are rushing madly about in search of gowns, long enough and yet young enough to meet the demands of their sub-deb daughters.

A trio of young gentlemen, A. G. McHenry, Jr., Trist McConnell and Louis Milner, Jr., will be the gallant, if somewhat youthful, hosts at a tremendous ball on the Cherokee terrace of the Frances hotel on the night of the 23rd. Just yesterday they were riding their ponies and interested in the great open spaces. Today they are concerned with a music-filled world peopled with pretty girls. Time marches on. Another generation clamors for recognition and the reins of leadership slacken in the hands of a generation just one step ahead of these youngsters.

Santa Claus, perennially conscientious, shows no sign of senile decay. His 1936 gifts are better than ever and many of these he has already unburdened on Monroe. One gift in particular will soon sparkle on the finger of a lovely young thing whose sister is having their mother's diamond engagement ring reset for a Christmas gift. Another sparkler, beautiful beyond words, is flashing its message from the left hand of a certain party. The announcement will be made on Christmas day over the flowing wassail bowl with friends gathered about to lift high the brimming cup to the accompaniment of congratulations and the customary flow of superlatives.

Every incoming train will soon start unloading precious cargoes at our doorstep. The college set, home for the holidays, will set the tempo for two weeks of gaiety. There will be nights and nights of dancing, with the Phi Kappa ball on the 29th shining like a beacon through the maze of events.

Tom and Jerry parties, prevalent during the Yuletide, will help banish the cares of the older set. In a few homes there will be oceans of creamy egg-nogg and mountains of fruit cake. The question mark must rise quite naturally about which host serves the most delectable concoc-

Announcements To Be Made Christmas Day

Bertha Marie Masur And Milton Gorn To Marry On Dec. 20; O'Donnell-Seaman Nuptials Follow

The Christmas festivity loses some of its shining radiance when compared with the romantic betrothals to be announced on Christmas day. Two announcements in particular will engage the undivided interest of Monroe's social world, as they concern two beautiful girls who have been prominent figures at every social function since their sub-deb days.

With the marriage of Miss Bertha Marie Masur and Mr. Milton Gorn on the twentieth of this month, neatly cataloged and numbered among the events of the past, the marriage of Miss Mary Louise O'Donnell and Mr. Frederick Seaman will brighten the bleak days following the gaiety of Christmas. This wedding will be attended by impressive simplicity, characteristic of Miss O'Donnell, whose chief charm is her demure personality.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Jack Selig's open house on December 27, will not be lacking in glamour, as their daughter, Miss Nanette Selig, home from Chicago, and her fiance, Mr. Martin Fuhrer, will be prominent figures. Their open house was inspired by the presence of their future son-in-law whom they will take pleasure in introducing to their friends who are cordially invited through this medium.

An announcement today holds considerable interest for Monroe friends of Miss Maudames Carroll, lovely young neice of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Davis of this city who has visited here on numerous occasions and is a great favorite socially.

"Dr. and Mrs. George Reed Carroll of Beaumont, Tex., announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Maudames, to Mr. William Thomas Conner of Indianapolis, Ind. The wedding will take place at the home of Miss Carroll's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Milton Anthony Talbot of Bernice, La., on the first of January."

Miss Carroll attended Indiana State university and the Louisiana State university. She is a member of Kappa Delta sorority and the Terpsichorean Dancing club, holding an office in each. Miss Carroll, it is interesting to relate, was judged campus beauty at L. S. U. in the year 1934 and the favorite student in 1936.

Mr. Conner is the son of Mrs. Floyd Conner and the late Mr. Conner of Purdue, Ind., He attended Purdue university.

Miss Carroll will have as her wedding attendant Mrs. Henry Norwood Richardson of Baton Rouge, formerly Miss Mary Ellen McElroy of Shreveport. Mr. Conner will be attended by Mr. Robert Cashon of Indianapolis.

WILL WED IN JANUARY

Miss Maudames Carroll, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Davis of this city, whose engagement to Mr. William Thomas Conner is formally announced today.

tion. No caller has yet been heard to award the palm to any particular host. Charles Reid says frankly that his is the best but Clarence Oakley smiles cryptically and knows his to be the most exotic drink. Abe Arent feels that his must be the best, as his home is packed to the hilt on Christmas day. Old friends keep coming back and new faces are continually appearing. William Grasse after this year will be a close rival, as he is planning open house and the serving of eggnogg during the holidays.

Although not an exciting week, the past seven days had a certain charm. There was a gay company of guests at Lakeside Country club, for instance, with feminine members of the Bastrop Country club taking the spotlight. Golf in the morning, luncheon at noon and bridge later offered sufficient diversion for the most exacting. Several luncheons kept the social ball revolving with Mat and Suzanne Hirsch's affair on Wednesday taking the award for artistry of detail and culinary triumph. Mrs. Harold Heinberg's tea on Friday brought out Monroe's world of fashion. The hostess, trailing a beautiful semi-evening gown about the flower-banked rooms, made a lovely picture. Guests will remember her charm for a long time to come. There was plenty of delicious food and laughter and conversation that poured through the reception rooms like the mighty Niagara.

Dr. Tiebout Gives Second Lecture

The second lecture of the series on "Understanding and Training the Child" was given Thursday afternoon at the Central Grammar school by Dr. Carolyn Tiebout of the general extension division of Louisiana State university. These lectures are being sponsored by the Twin City council of the Parent-Teacher association and are to be held monthly during the current school session.

"Play and Play Materials" was chosen as the topic for the December lecture because of seasonal interest in the selection of toys for the chil . The speaker first pointed out the growing appreciation of the importance of play in the various phases of the child's development and the resulting realization of the educational value of toys and play materials. "Toys are no longer egarded merely as things to amuse the child," she stated. "but as constructive tools of the growing personality." She further pointed out that while play has educational value, it consists chiefly of activities in which the child engages "just because he wants to" and should therefore not be made a task." The purpose of wisely selected toys is to stimulate activity and intiative on the part of the children themselves," she continued, "rather than to teach them. The general aim is to surround the child with materials which will promote activity and growth and leave the rest to the natural course of development, with only an occasional bit of guidance or suggestion from an adult."

In discussing the essential features of a good toy, the speaker stated that toys should be durable and of good quality, safe and sanitary, of simple construction and of artistic design, and should be as suitable for the child as possible. A good toy should, above all, suggest something to do. In this connection, the speaker pointed out that the mechanical toy, which performs when wound up has little to contribute to the child's development because the activity is in the toy rather than in the child.

The speaker then discussed the uses of various toys and their appropriateness at different age levels. She emphasized the importance of a "well balanced diet of toys" in which would be included in the child's possessions, at one time or another, play materials from each of the following groups: those for the development of strength and skill; for constructive and creative play; for dramatic and social play; for artistic development; those aiding in school activities; those leading to an interest in science and mechanics, and those for hobbies and special interests.

Books for children of different ages were also discussed and graded lists of books for use by parents were suggested, including a list of good ten and fifteen cent books compiled by Miss Mildred Harrington of the Louisiana State university library. In concluding the lecture, Dr. Tiebout suggested that lists of recommended toys and books for different ages should be used by parents only as general guides, since the individual child's level of development and interests must also be taken into consideration.

Jane Shea Gives Birthday Party

Little Jane Shea was a charming young hostess Saturday afternoon when she entertained her friends with a party in honor of her tenth birthday at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Grover Cornett.

Autumn flowers were used in artistic profusion throughout the living rooms, and a beautifully embossed tiered birthday cake, topped with pink candles, centered the dining table. Each guest was the recipient of a lovely souvenir as a memento of this delightful affair

Ingenuity Of Sales Girls Taxed

The ingenuity of Monroe sales girls is being taxed not a little during this hectic and strenuous holiday season. Downtown stores are thronged with puzzled husbands, querulous wives, awe-inspired children and perplexed cooks, all intent upon making their Christmas purchases. Strange and startling are some of the requests made and equally unique are the queries they must answer.

Recently a girl working in a Monroe store was completely stumped by a demand for some of that "irrational unscent," but only for a few seconds. With sober and thoughtful mien she delivered to her client a carefully wrapped package of "oriental incense."

Another prospective customer, colored, entered a local hat shop. Approaching the smiling clerk, she addressed her, "Honey, I wears a number seven shoe and I'se 40 inches round de waist. What size hat does I wear?"

One enthusiastic prospect, after fondly contemplating a hat, one of those naughty little creations that try men's souls, exclaimed: "Whoo-ee! Dat shore am a mean hat! I jes can't get ready for a hat like that! It's jes too soon fo' me!"

Mandy, after fondly trying on a confecton of a chapeau that somehow just wouldn't fit, finally consoled herself: "When I gets my hair all dressed down and gets a knot sprouted on de back of my neck, I knows it will fit! Jes keep dis hat till I comes back for it!"

Don, supposedly ardent supporter of Santa Claus, recently returned from a downtown store where Santa Claus, genial old man that he is, was acting host to the children who filled the aisles and corridors.

Don was thoughtful, unusually so. He seemed perturbed. Unruly doubts assailed him.

"Mother," he at last confided, "Do you know something? I was just scared to death all the time I was down there with Santa Claus."

Betty, engaging if somewhat diminutive young miss of this city, is blessed with two full sets of grandparents.

Spending the day not long ago with one of her grandmothers, she was admonished several times "not to meddle." Betty said nothing, but continued her tours of investigation and grandma, just as persistently continued to talk about "meddling."

At last Betty, tired of it all, announced:

"I'm going over to my other grandma's."

"What are you going to do there?" fondly asked her grandmother.

"Well, for one thing," answered Betty, "I'm going to get up on the vanity and meddle all I want to!"

Minerva, faithful cook of one of our north side neighbors, was discovered by her mistress a few days ago gazing with rapt attention at a copy of the Readers Digest.

Business Girls' Club Meets

The Business Girls' club of the Y. W. C. A. met Monday evening for the regular meeting and an interesting talk was made by Mrs. Lois Gray, head of the public health nurses.

An appetizing supper was served by the ladies of the Presbyterian church. A huge bowl of autumn flowers of pastel tints centered the attractively arranged dining table. Members enjoying this affair were Mrs. Fagan Cox, Mrs. Alice Terry, Mrs. Lois Grey, Mrs. Aylene Newsome, Mrs. Louise Philips, Mrs. L. B. Herron, Mrs. Mamie Kent, Miss Monique Coats, Miss Mary Mills Hunt, Miss Janie Brothers, Miss Evelyn Huey, Miss Mary Benoit, Miss Lorena Reinhardt.

B. & P. W. Board Meeting Held

A board meeting of the Louisiana Federation of Business and Professional Women was held in Lake Charles December 5, at the Majestic hotel, preceded by a dinner and attended by club members from Lake Charles and nearby clubs.

The meeting was presided over by Miss Maud Reid of Lake Charles, state president. Others attending the meeting were: Mrs. Edna Capewell, field worker of the national federation; Miss Monita Goldsby of Baton Rouge, second vice-president; Miss Jodie Collette of Lake Charles, recording secretary; Miss Zella Kirksey, president of the Bogalusa club; Miss Amelia Buchmann, president of the New Orleans club; Miss Leocadie Amiss of Baton Rouge, state chairman of the Agnes Morris loan fund; Mrs. Byrnie Womack of Baton Rouge, past state president; Mrs. Bell, president of the DeRidder club; Miss Ida Harrington, president of the Lake Charles club; and Mrs. Laura Slator of Monroe, second vice-president.

This state convention will be held in Bogalusa the latter part of May.

Lathram Children Observe Birthday

Christmas decorations were used throughout the lounge of the country club adding a note of festivity and good cheer to the occasion.

Miss Ruth White Much Feted Guest

Several lovely affairs have been given during the past week honoring Miss Ruth White of Chicago who is the charming guest of her sister, Mrs. E. G. Waring.

Tuesday morning Mrs. Waring entertained with a delightful coffee hour at her home on North Third street. The dining table covered with lace was attractively decorated with poinsettias, and holly. Open-faced sandwiches topped with cherries and individual cakes in shapes of Christmas trees and holly wreaths further accented the Christmas spirit which was predominant. Mrs. Thelma Oseland presided at the silver coffee service extending courtesies to the guests who called during the morning.

Strange and startling are some of the requests made and equally unique are the queries they must answer.

Recently a girl working in a Monroe store was completely stumped by a demand for some of that "irrational unscent," but only for a few seconds. With sober and thoughtful mien she delivered to her client a carefully wrapped package of "oriental incense."

Another prospective customer, colored, entered a local hat shop. Approaching the smiling clerk, she addressed her, "Honey, I wears a number seven shoe and I'se 40 inches round de waist. What size hat does I wear?"

One enthusiastic prospect, after fondly contemplating a hat, one of those naughty little creations that try men's souls, exclaimed: "Whoo-ee! Dat shore am a mean hat! I jes can't get ready for a hat like that! It's jes too soon fo' me!"

Mandy, after fondly trying on a confecton of a chapeau that somehow just wouldn't fit, finally consoled herself: "When I gets my hair all dressed down and gets a knot sprouted on de back of my neck, I knows it will fit! Jes keep dis hat till I comes back for it!"

Don, supposedly ardent supporter of Santa Claus, recently returned from a downtown store where Santa Claus, genial old man that he is, was acting host to the children who filled the aisles and corridors.

Don was thoughtful, unusually so. He seemed perturbed. Unruly doubts assailed him.

"Mother," he at last confided, "Do you know something? I was just scared to death all the time I was down there with Santa Claus."

Betty, engaging if somewhat diminutive young miss of this city, is blessed with two full sets of grandparents.

Spending the day not long ago with one of her grandmothers, she was admonished several times "not to meddle." Betty said nothing, but continued her tours of investigation and grandma, just as persistently continued to talk about "meddling."

At last Betty, tired of it all, announced:

"I'm going over to my other grandma's."

"What are you going to do there?" fondly asked her grandmother.

"Well, for one thing," answered Betty, "I'm going to get up on the vanity and meddle all I want to!"

Lathram Children Observe Birthday

Christmas decorations were used throughout the lounge of the country club adding a note of festivity and good cheer to the occasion.

Posters Designed By School Children

Casual visitors out at Barkdull Faulk school have noticed and admired the artistically designed posters that adorn the walls of the school rooms. During the past few months of school, awards have been made to the pupils designing the most attractive and pertinent posters for National Book week, American Education week and Safety week.

Children who have received awards with honorable mention for the most original posters are Alex Steele, Betro McRaney, Cullen Kirby, Mimi McConnell, Theo Terzia and Paul Murphy.

Another interesting poster relative to Book week was created by Paul Murphy in which a house is built of books with the caption "Good books make good homes."

Shops Loaded With Yule Gifts

Women often wish that it was their privilege to write a letter to Santa Claus, a letter in which they not only tell their Christmas wish, but one containing sage advice on shopping in general. This is the time of year when hinting is more helpful than hoping.

Every downtown shop now has that gala appearance that inspires the shopper to select useful, as well as ornamental, finery that comes under the prosaic head of ready-to-wear.

There's that party frock one longs for and might just as well have as something that cost just as much or more, and doesn't mean a thing to the wardrobe. That party wrap, long or short, or a scarf one could have in one's stocking if Santa Claus only knew.

As an example of how little it costs to give a woman something she really wants is the story of a famous movie star, who when walking through a department store, saw a fitted and full-length housecoat, charming in color and cut. It was something different from any of her indoor ensembles, and it took but a jiffy for her to buy four of them in assorted colors. Her amazement when she discovered their modest cost was amusing, for her enthusiasm ran higher than ever. The moral of this tale is that if you can't afford to give furs and diamonds, you always can afford time to hunt up something effective, unusual, and fitted to the needs of the recipient.

A woman whose activities are more or less bounded by the walls of her home will appreciate something pretty to wear in it. All-purpose pajamas, smocks, lounging robes, lingerie and above all, one of the new important-looking housecoats await your selection. Mules for around the house; mules furred and feathered, richly embroidered or looking like glorified bandages, or boudoir slippers. Red jackets or breakfast capes, as fluffy or as tailored as you like, are among the scores of lovely things women like.

High fashion circles call for mitts and muffs; perhaps you should remember that coiffure ornaments are in again, or handkerchiefs both for the neck and the pocket, or flowers to give dash to a dress, or separate little jackets, spangled and Spanish or daring and Dalmatian. Remember that matching gloves and purses delight all women and embroidered or beaded gloves are the latest touch for evening.

Mrs. Millsaps Entertains Club

A tall, slender pine tree aglow with myriad blue electrics and boughs dripping with shining blue threads glorified the charming living room of Mrs. Herbert Millsaps' home when she entertained members of her luncheon club on Wednesday. The tree was laden with gifts wrapped in blue cellophane, which were later distributed among the guests. Each gift characterized the hobby or the sentiments of each individual and when opened, created considerable merriment.

Luncheon was served from a sumptuous buffet appointed with blue crystal and bathed in mellow candelight. Individual tables, beautifully-appointed with blue crystal and centered with blue candlesticks, were grouped around the hearth. The delectable turkey course luncheon was served from the buffet.

Members of this club comprise old friends who have enjoyed meeting in this manner for many years. They were: Mrs. Harry Russell, Mrs. Bradley Waelder, Mrs. C. P. Gray, Mrs. Arthur Dryburgh, Mrs. Thomas Easterling, Mrs. Gladys Sperry, Mrs. Joseph Renwick, Mrs. James C. Liner, Mrs. Henry Blanks, and Mrs. Frank Farmer.

Artists Decorate Municipal Office

Attractive Paintings Placed In R. D. Swayze's Department By Members Of Monroe Sketch Club

The reception room of R. D. Swayze, commissioner of streets and parks, at the city hall has been turned into a veritable art gallery with a display of paintings loaned by members of the Monroe Sketch club. Mrs. L. N. Collier, secretary to the commissioner, conceived the idea, which has attracted much favorable comment from visitors to the city hall.

Hung in charming array on the walls of the reception room are paintings by such well known artists as Mrs. Henry Mayo, Mrs. Henry James, Mrs. Thomas Monk, Mrs. F. C. Holden, Mr. Joseph Washburn and Mrs. Anthony Thebo.

There is a definite spiritual quality in several of the paintings and especially in Mrs. Mayo's "Lake Beulah," bathed in the radiance of the setting sun. Those who remember this beautiful lake will always suffer a pang of regret that it was found necessary to destroy it to make way for the new levee. The beauty of the setting sun lives again in Mrs. Mayo's canvas. Her work is marked for its brisk, vigorous manner. Her colors are sparkling and vivacious. She has an attractive sense of composition and technique.

Mrs. Monk has a tender, personal way of flower painting. Many of her still life compositions have sprung from the fragrant borders of her own garden. She paints flowers with a rich sense of color harmonies.

Mrs. James' paintings possess depth and feeling for decorative effect. She is an artist to her finger tips and loves the vivid, vivacious colors of the California hills and of Mexico where she has spent many happy hours seated at her easel. She contrives to put on canvas an intriguing pattern of sun, shade and figures.

Mrs. Thebo's work has been praised considerably in the world of art in this city. She paints with meticulous fidelity to locality and excels in such paintings as "Negro church."

Mr. Washburn has a penchant for landscapes. Some of his best work is reflected in his transcriptions of the streams and bayous in this locality. He uses color boldly and extravagantly and again is able to express delicate tonal rhythm. His facility in handling light and shade is shown in his "Bayou DeSiard."

Charming in its simplicity, the dainty bodice is cleverly shirred and the gracefully shaped yoke topped by a flattering Peter Pan collar. Like surprises? With this delightful pattern comes a design for a flip little peplum, which gives a jaunty two-piece effect when added to the frock. You can achieve that extra little touch of contrast so popular this season, by fashioning the collar in velvet or inexpensive fur fabric. The frock itself is grand in crepe or sheer wool.

Pattern 4065 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 3 5-8 yards 39 inch fabric and 3-8 yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Artists Decorate Municipal Office

Attractive Paintings Placed In R. D. Swayze's Department By Members Of Monroe Sketch Club

The reception room of R. D. Swayze, commissioner of streets and parks, at the city hall has been turned into a veritable art gallery with a display of paintings loaned by members of the Monroe Sketch club. Mrs. L. N. Collier, secretary to the commissioner, conceived the idea, which has attracted much favorable comment from visitors to the city hall.

Hung in charming array on the walls of the reception room are paintings by such well known artists as Mrs. Henry Mayo, Mrs. Henry James, Mrs. Thomas Monk, Mrs. F. C. Holden, Mr. Joseph Washburn and Mrs. Anthony Thebo.

There is a definite spiritual quality in several of the paintings and especially in Mrs. Mayo's "Lake Beulah," bathed in the radiance of the setting sun. Those who remember this beautiful lake will always suffer a pang of regret that it was found necessary to destroy it to make way for the new levee. The beauty of the setting sun lives again in Mrs. Mayo's canvas. Her work is marked for its brisk, vigorous manner. Her colors are sparkling and vivacious. She has an attractive sense of composition and technique.

Mrs. Monk has a tender, personal way of flower painting. Many of her still life compositions have sprung from the fragrant borders of her own garden. She paints flowers with a rich sense of color harmonies.

Mrs. James' paintings possess depth and feeling for decorative effect. She is an artist to her finger tips and loves the vivid, vivacious colors of the California hills and of Mexico where she has spent many happy hours seated at her easel. She contrives to put on canvas an intriguing pattern of sun, shade and figures.

Mrs. Thebo's work has been praised considerably in the world of art in this city. She paints with meticulous fidelity to locality and excels in such paintings as "Negro church."

Mr. Washburn has a penchant for landscapes. Some of his best work is reflected in his transcriptions of the streams and bayous in this locality. He uses color boldly and extravagantly and again is able to express delicate tonal rhythm. His facility in handling light and shade is shown in his "Bayou DeSiard."

Miss Masur Honored By Mrs. H. Heinberg

Beautifully Gowned Women Gather At Tea Given For Bride-To-Be; Mrs. Bridge Entertains

Brilliant affairs have filled the calendar of social activities during the past week and among the most enjoyable was the tea given Friday afternoon with Mrs. Harold Heinberg as the charming hostess.

A variety of delicious confections for which the Heinbergs have long been famed was served during the afternoon.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. Harold Heinberg, Mrs. Sig Masur, Miss Bertha Marie Masur, Mrs. Sylvian Masur, Mrs. B. M. Hesdorffer, Mrs. Joe Gilbert, Miss Audrey Sugarman and Miss Gertrude Feazel.

Miss Masur, the lovely honor guest, was beautifully gowned on this occasion in a black crepe model with sequin jacket. Mrs. Heinberg wore a becoming frock of black velvet with trimming of folds in contrasting shades. Mrs. Sylvian Masur was smartly gowned in green and Mrs. Sig Masur wore a chic model of black chiffon. Miss Gertrude Feazel was lovely in a black frock cut on simple lines, and Mrs. Gilbert and Miss Sugarman were also smartly dressed in black.

Miss Masur wore a print frock of distinctive lines with green accessories. Guests attending this beautifully appointed luncheon were Miss Bertha Marie Masur, Mrs. Joe Gilbert, Miss Audrey Sugarman, and Mrs. Sam Kranz of New York City, Miss Gertrude Feazel, Mrs. Morris Emmich, Mrs. Sig Masur, Mrs. E. Reid, Miss Ellen Baughman and Mrs. Sylvian Masur.

Women To Attack Maternal Mortality

Mobilization of a vast feminine army—the General Federation of Women's clubs—for a mass attack on underlying causes of the dismayingly high maternal mortality rate of the United States has been announced by Mrs. Clarence Fraim of Wilmington, Del. The move represents less a new project than a shift of emphasis, since the item has been on the federation's program for some time, a focus of interest without specific consistent action.

As chairman of the department of public welfare of the organization, Mrs. Fraim has delegated the supervision of the accelerated campaign to the division of child welfare, which is headed by Mrs. James R. Cain. Mrs. Cain will have the advice and assistance of an advisory board of medical and social welfare authorities of the nation. Surgeon General Thomas Parran is lending his assistance in mapping the strategy of the drive.

Over a period of twenty years, relentless statistics indicate, no appreciable dent has been made in the number of deaths from causes associated with childbirth, despite the dramatic advance of research, sanitation and prenatal care in this country. Comparison with prevailing rates in other countries, even with allowances for the differences in methods of computing, leaves America chargeable with a higher maternal mortality rate than many.

Of twenty-two countries, according to information amassed by Mrs. Fraim, the United States stands at the top of the list for the total number of women succumbing yearly per 10,000 live births.

For this reason the first move to be made by the federation's units in every state and community where it functions will be to accumulate rates and figures on the various localities. The second will be to determine what studies of the subject are being made and to collect reports. Ensuing activities will concern the members with raising the standards of hospitals and to improve, where possible, such facilities for maternal protection as laboratory equipment, radiology and allied services.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Pinkston motored to New Orleans where they are spending their honeymoon. Upon their return to Lake Providence they will be at home to their friends in the Ransdell apartments on Hood street.

Service Union Holds Banquet

Novel and unique was the banquet given for the young people of the service union Thursday evening at the Frances hotel. The banquet room was transformed into a veritable aviation field with a huge propeller directly behind the speaker's table. Balloons of every color hung above the tables which were arranged in the shape of a giant airplane.

Mr. William Byrd of West Monroe presided as toastmaster, and guests on this occasion in addition to the members of the service union were Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Johns, Rev. and Mrs. Martin Hebert, Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Scott, Mr. and Mrs R. W. Germany, Mrs D. Crawford Young, Mrs. R. F. McCook and Miss Elizabeth Langford, the union counsellor.

The First Methodist church of this city will observe the Christmas season with a program a bit different to the past years. Desiring to bring the real spirit of Christmas into the hearts of many people, the committee on arrangements has arranged a "white gift service." The three divisions of the church school have selected certain groups that they will remember with gifts. On Sunday morning, December 20, at the church schools hour the free-will offerings for the white gifts will be made. At the white gift service on Sunday evening at 7:15 these gifts will be presented by representatives from the departments. A very impressive program has been planned in keeping with the theme of the service. The public will be invited to participate in the program.

Clyde Paine, Jr., student at Tulane university in New Orleans, was recently honored by an invitation to sing a solo on Campus night at the university. Campus night is an annual affair of the university and only the best talent available is obtained for the program for the evening.

Brilliant affairs have filled the calendar of social activities during the past week and among the most enjoyable was the tea given Friday afternoon with Mrs. Harold Heinberg as the charming hostess.

White rose buds and sweet peas in green crystal centered the lace covered dining table, where white waxen tapers in tall silver holders gleamed softly over the coffee services where Mrs. I. Heinberg and Mrs. Sig Masur presided with charming grace.

A variety of delicious confections for which the Heinbergs have long been famed was served during the afternoon.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. Harold Heinberg, Mrs. Sig Masur, Miss Bertha Marie Masur, Mrs. Sylvian Masur, Mrs. B. M. Hesdorffer, Mrs. Joe Gilbert, Miss Audrey Sugarman and Miss Gertrude Feazel.

Miss Masur, the lovely honor guest, was beautifully gowned on this occasion in a black crepe model with sequin jacket. Mrs. Heinberg wore a becoming frock of black velvet with trimming of folds in contrasting shades. Mrs. Sylvian Masur was smartly gowned in green and Mrs. Sig Masur wore a chic model of black chiffon. Miss Gertrude Feazel was lovely in a black frock cut on simple lines, and Mrs. Gilbert and Miss Sugarman were also smartly dressed in black.

Miss Masur wore a print frock of distinctive lines with green accessories. Guests attending this beautifully appointed luncheon were Miss Bertha Marie Masur, Mrs. Joe Gilbert, Miss Audrey Sugarman, and Mrs. Sam Kranz of New York City, Miss Gertrude Feazel, Mrs. Morris Emmich, Mrs. Sig Masur, Mrs. E. Reid, Miss Ellen Baughman and Mrs. Sylvian Masur.

Safety Program Features Meeting

Women To Attack Maternal Mortality

Mobilization of a vast feminine army—the General Federation of Women's clubs—for a mass attack on underlying causes of the dismayingly high maternal mortality rate of the United States has been announced by Mrs. Clarence Fraim of Wilmington, Del. The move represents less a new project than a shift of emphasis, since the item has been on the federation's program for some time, a focus of interest without specific consistent action.

As chairman of the department of public welfare of the organization, Mrs. Fraim has delegated the supervision of the accelerated campaign to the division of child welfare, which is headed by Mrs. James R. Cain. Mrs. Cain will have the advice and assistance of an advisory board of medical and social welfare authorities of the nation. Surgeon General Thomas Parran is lending his assistance in mapping the strategy of the drive.

Over a period of twenty years, relentless statistics indicate, no appreciable dent has been made in the number of deaths from causes associated with childbirth, despite the dramatic advance of research, sanitation and prenatal care in this country. Comparison with prevailing rates in other countries, even with allowances for the differences in methods of computing, leaves America chargeable with a higher maternal mortality rate than many.

Of twenty-two countries, according to information amassed by Mrs. Fraim, the United States stands at the top of the list for the total number of women succumbing yearly per 10,000 live births.

For this reason the first move to be made by the federation's units in every state and community where it functions will be to accumulate rates and figures on the various localities. The second will be to determine what studies of the subject are being made and to collect reports. Ensuing activities will concern the members with raising the standards of hospitals and to improve, where possible, such facilities for maternal protection as laboratory equipment, radiology and allied services.

CHAPTER XXXI

He came toward her. To him, too, it seemed natural. He had always dreamed that she would come like this one day.

"You want to hear your sister sing," he said. "I've got the station. Come—"

They went into the front parlor, where, she saw, he added no touch of his own save the radio . . . Caroline had begun to sing. The fine, powerful receiving set was bringing her clear young voice into the room as if she herself were present.

When the lights are soft and low,
Will you think of me, my darling,
As you did so long ago—"

Caroline's voice vibrating through the big old parlors where she had sung so often . . . over there, Caroline's piano, the top still raised . . . over here the old mahogany sofa where she, Kate, had sat so often listening. . . .

When the song had died away Kate met Jeff Howard's eyes. He did not seem a foreign presence in this room. He, too, somehow belonged here, along with Caroline's voice and the old furniture and the memories of childhood. "Jeff," she said brokenly, putting out her hand, "I'd like you to know I don't mind any more your being here. I've been wicked. I'm sorry and ashamed—"

"Kate," he said. "Little Kate!" She was in his arms, close, just as he had dreamed it. She was saying, "How can you love me when I've been such a devil?" And he was replying, "I've been a devil, too. I've loved you harder and harder for every inch you fought me. Kiss me, Kate. Lift your face, darlin'—"

Caroline began to sing "The Sweetest Story Ever Told." They did not hear it, for they were living it.

Caroline was lunching with Carl Neilson. Their almost constant fourday association necessitated by the launching of her program had made them well acquainted and aware of one another.

She said, after he had ordered, "Would you mind, Carl, if I'd read this letter from my sister? It came just as I was leaving the studio. I'm still anxious about my grandfather—"

"Read it," he told her. "Then I can expect more attention."

She had scarcely begun before she uttered a quick exclamation, "My sister's going to be married! Next Tuesday, if I can be there!"

Carl Neilson laughed. "The girl with the reddish hair. I met her before I met you." He lit a cigaret and watched Caroline's sensitive face as she devoured the letter, now forgetful of his presence.

This is what Kate had written:

"My Dearest Sister: I'm marrying Jeff Howard Tuesday afternoon if you can dash out from the city that day. Can you? Answer, please!

"When this reaches you you'll be a veteran of several broadcasts. I heard your first song and it was lovely. You didn't sound frightened; just alive and happy. I didn't hear any more because Jeff had my ears muffled. I was at Meed Meadows, listening over his radio. With him.

"You see, it was this way. At first I thought I couldn't bear the tension of listening in when you took off. Then I felt I had to. Our radio was worse than usual—one big blur. It was 6:50 o'clock. I got in the car and drove like mad to Meed Meadows to listen there. Don't ask me why I didn't go to the Holds. They're nearer and they have a good radio. I simply didn't. I drove to Jeff Howard's as if that were the only place on earth to go. Honey, excuse me while I digress. Have you noticed how gorgeous-looking he is in his rough way? Like Gary Cooper, sort of—"

She went on reading: "He's loved me almost from the first, Caroline, though hating me, too, he admits. Gran'dad (who's much better, by the way) is utterly amazed and pleased and wants to know when the courting took place. Althy and Zeke also are pleased, but baffled. But you will understand. We were courting when I was digging up his lawn and he was shooting me in the shoulder; when he was buying my horse to torment me, and I was setting his house afire. That's why we're so mad about each other now and can't wait any longer to be married.

"Let me know if Tuesday at 4 will suit you. At the church. As my only attendant, you'll want a sweet new dress—you'll have money to buy it now because we shan't need any of your salary. Choose something simple, as I'm going to wear Mother's muslin wedding dress rather than Grandmother's satin and lace. Two tailors are working night and day on Jeff to eliminate that mountain look when he dons his cutaway.

"Your same, only infinitely happier, Kate.

"P. S.—Bring Carl Neilson if you still like him and if he wants to come."

Caroline looked up from the letter. "Tuesday at 4," she said, "in our little church in Shelby. You're invited, if you care to go."

"I do," he answered emphatically. "We'll drive up in my car. Have to get you back here before 7. Does this marriage please you?"

"Yes," thoughtfully. "I believe it's the only thing in the world that would tame my sister and make her contented. She's been obsessed with this man ever since their paths crossed. He foreclosed a mortgage on Meed Meadows—the place where we were born and reared. He's a wealthy mountaineer. Coal lands, I believe. Kate's insulted him in a hundred ways, and he's fought back. But they were drawn to each other with a perfectly terrible persistence."

"He's not crude," Caroline defended. "Rather fine and sensitive, I'd say. And a college man. But he drawls rather worse than the Blue Grass people, and now and then he uses a double negative. Oh, there'll be things about him to prick Kate, of course, but she's too much in love to mind."

Young Mr. Neilson looked at the girl he had "discovered." "I approve of mixing strains. Most of you 'southern gentry' inter-marry too much for your own good. It's not productive of creative genius. Take you, for instance. An ideal husband for you, I'd say, would be a chap under 30, just a generation removed from Norway. Somebody who's more interested in music than horses. Somebody who doesn't like southern cooking, doesn't call you 'Honey' and has never bothered to see a Derby run. Somebody who has lots of enthusiasm for the future of the radio and your voice. Me. But I'll give you until June to think it over. I like women with college degrees."

Caroline blushed. "What an unromantic proposal. So cold and practical."

"You'll regret that word 'cold,' little one. We Norsemen have a reputation—but never mind. You'll find out. Eat your chop. You're anemic. I could swear to it. I want you to have a blood count taken at once, then start the right tonic. Anemia's bad for a voice."

"I don't know that I like you, really," Caroline told him spitefully.

"No, I'll have to be an acquired taste. You've never known anybody like me. So ungallant, I suppose you'd call it. That's apt to make a difference. Don't push your custard aside! Eat it!"

Kate and Jeff rode horseback the morning of their wedding day. He had given her Brown Boy as a betrothal gift. In his pocket was her wedding gift. He drew it out, leaned from his horse and put it in her hands.

It was a deed to Meed Meadows, making it Katherine Meed's.

"Oh, Jeff! But it's not necessary now! If it belongs to you, and I belong to you, what difference does it make?"

"There's a difference. The land's always been Meed land. Some day Howards will get it—but younger Howards. Through inheritance, and they'll be part Meed." He smiled shyly.

They took the path through the woods, leading home. "Yes, you're right, Jeff. There's something about having it for my own!" She seized a walnut leaf as they passed and pressed it against her cheek. She shut her eyes, letting her reason and senses join in the awareness of happiness; her horse beneath her, her land about her, her house just beyond.

"People will say, Jeff, that I married you to get my home back. Do you mind?"

"No. I don't mind what they say. I've got you."

"Jeff, tell me something. Are you awfully rich?"

"Worth about a million, my lawyer says. He's conservative."

Kate laughed. "Then I don't mind asking you for something, Jeff. I'd like a comfortable, modern cabin for Althy and Zeke. Gran'dad got poor before he could build it, as he'd planned. Rutherford, their grandchild, lives with them. They're none of them much good for work, Jeff. And there's Gran'dad himself! I'm bringing you a lot of parasites, dear."

"I like 'em all," Jeff Howard said. "We'll have a right good time together." Then, after a quarter-mile of woods path, "I thought your grandfather'd like his old room back. He'd feel more natural there."

Kate gave him a grateful look, rashly mixed with adoration. It went to his head. He drew his horse alongside and demonstrated that a mountaineer can kiss from horseback very effectively when he puts his mind to it.

Ruston Minister Addresses P.-T. A.

CHOUDRANT, La., Dec. 12.—(Special)—An address by Rev. S. E. McFadden of Ruston, presentation of a pageant and the election of Mrs. W. L. Simmons to the office of secretary featured a meeting of the Choudrant Parent-Teacher association at the Choudrant High school auditorium.

Rev. McFadden spoke on the subject, "Child's Moral Development in the Home." He began the address with a Biblical quotation: "Provoke not your children to wrath, lest they be discouraged."

The speaker listed three circumstances as necessary in the home for the moral development of a child:

(1) A moral example or pattern.

(2) Environment essential to character building.

(3) Proper encouragement.

The family attitude toward God is one of the most vital factors in moral development of children, Rev. McFadden said.

Presentation of the pageant, entitled "At the Door of the Inn," was made by a group of high school students.

Election of Mrs. Simmons as secretary was made to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss Pearl Kinman, who is now residing at Shreveport, where she is engaged as a teacher.

The prize for having the most mothers present was won by the eleventh grade.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting.

Oak Ridge P.-T. A. Holds Session

OAK RIDGE, La., Dec. 12.—(Special)—Mrs. C. J. Wasson, president of the Oak Ridge P.-T. A. presided at the December meeting on Tuesday afternoon at the high school auditorium. The attendance was good. An interesting health play which was given by the first and second grades was enjoyed. The usual routine business was transacted. Mrs. R. E. Barham, chairman of the safety campaign, gave an excellent report of her committee. Mrs. J. T. Jordan read the president's message. Mrs. R. B. Wofford conducted the study class, and developed many helpful ideas which will be useful to the association. Upon the roll call of mothers, the coveted dollar went to the first grade. The meeting was then adjourned to meet the first Tuesday in January.

Central P.-T. A. Meeting Held

The Central Grammar school P.-T. A. meeting was held at the school auditorium Wednesday afternoon. The attendance was good.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
Grammont at Catalpa

Seventy-five years ago the first general assembly of the Presbyterian branch, United States, of the Church of Jesus Christ, was organized. During all these years our banner has been aloft and our folk have made contributions to the material and spiritual wealth of the country. Will the members attend divine worship this morning that we may together reflect upon our common heritage? It is a record that thrills and builds. We are speaking to this issue—"Some of the High Points in Our Presbyterian Heritage." At the evening hour our thoughts will be turned to the facts set out in Genesis 45. Joseph and his brethern were reconciled. They became as one, which resulted in Israel being established in Goshen. Prosperity was their lot. Does this history have any bearing on us? If so, what is the significance? The Sabbath school assembles at 9:45 a.m. Without your presence, our goals cannot be reached. "Come thou with us and we will do thee good."

This is a matter vital to the on-going of the First Baptist church and all the causes fostered by it. Sunday is "Loyalty day." The members of the church will be given an opportunity to sign a new enlistment pledge for next year. From 2 to 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon, the deacons and their wives will keep "open house" in the basement of the new building for those to come by to sign their pledge card and have fine fellowship. This is for those who cannot come to either of the morning services. "But What Will You Do, At the End of It All?" a question asked by Jeremiah (Jer. 5:31, Moffat's Translation), will be the basis of the pastor's evening message—especially applicable to young people. Special music will be given under the direction of Mr. Black. There will be baptismal service at the close of the evening service. Visitors and strangers are welcome. Everybody is invited to attend the White Gift service next Friday night in the church auditorium. This will be under the auspices of the Woman's Missionary society. The only service for the third Sunday in Advent will be the celebration of the Holy Eucharist at 7:30 a.m., with the church school assembling at the usual hour of 9:30 a.m. The every member canvass will consume the remainder of the day, with the church canvassers calling upon the membership of Grace church. The canvass is for the purpose of meeting the church budget for the year 1937. The rector will journey to Rayville, where a service will be held in St. David's at 11 a.m. The service will consist of morning prayer and sermon. The church, on the third Sunday in Advent, dwells on the Christian ministry and its great mission, in connection with a retrospect of that of the Baptist, as its precursor. There is a marvelous blending of interests and of subjects, therefore, in the services for this day. As a mere preparative for Christmas, the ministry of John Baptist might well come into view; but again as a preparative for Judgment, it is not less coincident, for its burden was and is "flee from the wrath to come." The collect sums up the spirit of the day, being a condensed statement of the commission of Christ's priesthood. They are not merely ministers of the Word, but "stewards of the mysteries," that is, ministers of the sacraments and other means of grace, for the administration of which, they bear "the keys of the Kingdom." The Holy Gospel is the testimony which our Lord gave to John Baptist, as His faithful steward and forerunner. It is in harmony with the Sunday service that the Ember fasts occur this week, and the following Sunday is the advent time for ordinations. Wednesday, Friday and Saturday are the Ember days. The church is open daily from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Come in, rest and pray.

FIVE NEW WELLS ARE REPORTED

Development In Louisiana Oil Fields Routine During Past Week

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Developments in the Louisiana oil industry during the week ended Friday were routine, it was shown Saturday with the announcement of the list of oil well completions and the issuance of new drilling permits by the state conservation department.

The Texas company's No. 5 Rigolettes, which was originally drilled to a depth of 10,942 feet, has been sidetracked as the result of the failure to recover a stuck reamer at 7,087 feet.

The drillers sidetracked the hole at 7,906 feet.

The field, parish location, name of producing company and the initial daily production of each new well completed during the past week follows in order:

Basile in Acadia parish, Continental Oil company, two wells of 445.20 and 399.72 barrels respectively; Black Bayou in Cameron parish, Shell Petroleum corporation, 273 barrels; Rodessa in Caddo parish, J. Edward Jones, 165 barrels; and Sulphurmine in Calcasieu parish, Union Sulphur company, 500 barrels.

MONROE C. OF C. TO AID SHOPPERS

The Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe, responding to a well defined need that has arisen recently, announced through Secretary S. H. McClary that shoppers can leave their packages at the Chamber, where they can reclaim them when they start for home in their cars.

Mr. McClary stated that his attention has been called to the fact that many out-of-town shoppers are compelled to park their cars far from downtown Monroe stores and that it imposes a burden to carry their bundles with them so far to their cars. He now offers the facilities of the Chamber of Commerce. No charge will be imposed and he hopes that many people will avail themselves of this new community service, which he hopes will make shopping less burdensome.

MONROE C. OF C. TO AID SHOPPERS

The Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe, responding to a well defined need that has arisen recently, announced through Secretary S. H. McClary that shoppers can leave their packages at the Chamber, where they can reclaim them when they start for home in their cars.

Mr. McClary stated that his attention has been called to the fact that many out-of-town shoppers are compelled to park their cars far from downtown Monroe stores and that it imposes a burden to carry their bundles with them so far to their cars. He now offers the facilities of the Chamber of Commerce. No charge will be imposed and he hopes that many people will avail themselves of this new community service, which he hopes will make shopping less burdensome.

Newest Tarzan Thriller Showing At Paramount Today

Weissmuller Again Heads Notable Cast

Maureen O'Sullivan Is Heroine In 'Tarzan Escapes'; Jungle Spectacle

THE best known character of modern fiction, cartoon and screen . . . the most popular adventure hero in all history . . . the idol of untold millions of kiddies of every race, color and creed . . . the delight of hosts of men and women . . . TARZAN . . . is again to unreel his thrilling jungle life in a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture.

This time it is "Tarzan Escapes," and again Johnny Weissmuller is Tarzan and again Maureen O'Sullivan is the heroine. The eagerly-awaited picture continues its engagement here today at the Paramount theater.

With hordes of jungle beasts, with enough thrills for a dozen pictures, and with a brand new romantic idea, the new Edgar Rice Burroughs adventure yarn takes Tarzan and his beloved Jane into the land of the giant bats where perils never before filmed are encountered.

Since her last appearance in a Tarzan picture Miss O'Sullivan has won dramatic triumphs in an unbroken series of hit pictures, including "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," in which she appeared with Norma Shearer and Fredric March; "David Copperfield," "The Thin Man," "Anna Karenina," "The Voice of Bugle Ann" and numerous others.

Prominent in the supporting cast of "Tarzan Escapes" are Benita Hume, recently seen as the malevolent spy in "Suzy," William Henry, Herbert Mundin and John Buckler. Henry, one of the most promising young juveniles on the M-G-M lot, plays the role of Jane's cousin who braves darkest Africa to find her and induce her to return to civilization. Mundin adds considerable hilarity in another of his typical cockney characterizations; Buckler is seen as Major Fry, the explorer, as villainous a character as ever fought his way through an African swamp.

Battles with hostile African natives, an eerie encounter with giant bats, Tarzan's fight to release animals captured for menageries, the rescue of the white party from the wild Ganeloni tribesmen, the mad elephant stampede which saves the scouting party, the escape of Tarzan from a cage in which he has been imprisoned, native tortures, a plunge over a cliff, a perilous adventure in a crocodile-infested river—these are just a few of the many thrill sequences in "Tarzan Escapes."

The picture was given the same spectacular production that marked the two preceding Tarzan adventure dramas, more than a year of extensive location shooting being required to give the atmosphere and backgrounds the details of authenticity.

Cortez Tops Cast Of New Mystery Film

'The Case Of The Black Cat' Is Thrilling Picture At Capitol Today

ONE of the most baffling of all the Erle Stanley Gardner murder mystery dramas, "The Case of the Black Cat," has been picturized by First National, and comes to the Capitol theater today, with Ricardo Cortez and June Travis in the leading roles.

One of the unusual features of the plot of this highly involved drama is that while detectives are trying to solve the supposed murder of one man, the "dead" person himself commits a murder, and still another slaying is perpetrated by a couple to cover up what they believe to be their crime in "killing" the first man.

The crimes are all the outgrowth of a family quarrel over the estate of an eccentric millionaire while he is still alive, and later the disappearance of a million dollars' worth of securities, and diamonds. Three grandchildren are the beneficiaries of an early will, but a later one cuts off one of them without a cent. Provision also is made for the crippled caretaker and his cat.

It is the marks of the muddy paws of a cat on a dead man's chest that ultimately lead to the solution of the crimes by Perry Mason, the astute lawyer-detective, known to every lover of mystery dramas.

A new and compelling Perry Mason unravels the mystery in the person of Ricardo Cortez. New also is June Travis in the role of his smart, wise-cracking secretary, Della Street.

Nedda Harrigan who is the millionaire's nurse and the sweetheart of one of his grandsons, is also one of the suspects. George Rosener is the crippled caretaker whose half-wild cat, Clinker, plays such an important part in the crimes and their solution.

It is the consensus of opinion among readers of murder mysteries that "The Case of the Black Cat" is one of the most sensational thrillers of the present generation.

NEW WILLYS IS SENSATIONAL CAR

Manufacturer Pioneered In Constructing Lowest Priced Automobile

In 1927, the Whippet, a product of Willys-Overland, set a new low price below that of any other car then in the market. This was the initial entry of a Willys built car into a great popular field which had built the motor car industry to its then high production records.

Since that time, the trend has been gradually upward and away from the price limit set by the income of the great 90 per cent of the income earning population of the country.

Five years ago, Willys interest again started development of a type of car which would re-enter this field which became vacated during a period of advancing incomes, and, which strangely enough, was not at once re-entered by any volume manufacturer in the automobile industry.

The current new Willys is the outcome of this development. During a period of four years, production has been limited. This has enabled us to perfect the development of the car, and to so organize manufacturing process as to set the lowest possible manufacturing costs consistent with the quality of product necessary.

Questions confronting the motor car buyer of today, hinge both on price and performance.

The average buyer wants a new car. But an average national income of between $150 and $200 a month does not easily permit of the purchase of a new car.

Current financing of new car purchases permits the use of long time contracts in which the monthly payments may be brought as low as $25.

Time payments on the new Willys can be brought to a point several dollars below this monthly low point, further extending to the buyer of a new car, advantages in budgeting his purchase on a safer and far more convenient basis.

Current developments of the new Willys present advantages in these essentials which are as complete as those of price. The body linese are the products of one of the leading designers of the country, Amos Northup. In securing a styling which is in advance of current design, Mr. Northup has combined with it, exceptional width of seats, front and rear, a depth of cushions, and a visibility over the road that are all highly pleasing.

Road performance is imperative for the modern car must be capable of fast travel with safety. The speed of the new Willys is in excess of 75 miles an hour with a corresponding rapid acceleration which makes it one of the most flexible of all cars in traffic.

Combined with the high road speed, is a factor of safety through the type of four wheel brakes used, that gives immediate control.

With ample speed comes also a demand for proved economy of operation. Here the new Willys is outstanding, not through engineering tests, but as proved by owner records covering all parts of the country.

Fuel economy is evidenced in long time averages of from 30 to 35 miles to the gallon of gas. The motor construction coupled with a unique and exclusive carburetor, contributes to this high average mileage per gallon of fuel.

Extensive figures on operating costs reveal the fact that the owner of a Willys often pays for his car during the first year to eighteen months of operation in savings in gasoline, lubricating oil, and depreciation, over any other form of motor car transportation he has hitherto used.

Illuminating as these figures may prove, they are the result of four years of planning to secure these results.

And with its engineering and manufacturing plans complete, its sales structure in order, and plants ready for production, Willys-Overland Motors, Inc., enters the 1937 market with 1,000 dealers and distributors forming the basis of a sound national and international sales structure.

CHRYSLER SALES INCREASE SEEN

"Our most optimistic expectations for a record business in 1937 promise to be exceeded if the attendance and the buying at the automobile show may be accepted as a criterion," says Joseph W. Frazer, vice-president of the Chrysler sales division of the Chrysler corporation.

"With this year's attendance generally far exceeding any previous shows, the conclusion is inevitable that more people are in the market for new cars. Our actual retail orders confirm this. Not only from Chicago and New York, but from all the other cities where automobile shows have been held, we get very encouraging reports. More people have passed the doors and there have been more sales and live prospects listed. Detroit, Boston, Philadelphia and other large cities had exceptionally fine crowds, and they were buying crowds too.

"Speaking for Chrysler, the reaction of both our dealer body and the public has been that we have the 'hottest' line since our Chrysler 75 swept the country in 1928. In fact, I would say that the 1937 cars are even more of a sensation. And of course our prices are much lower than they were when the 75 was introduced and our product has immeasurably improved as Chrysler engineering has advanced.

"I addressed a large group of dealers from the Chicago region at luncheon recently and their only problem seems to be to get enough cars to take care of their orders—even though we are now running to the limit of our factory capacity and additional factory space, improved factory layout and the addition of a large amount of new and modern machinery have greatly increased our production facilities this season. Furthermore, new machines and methods are enabling us to turn out cars not only faster but with a higher quality of workmanship. We actually are using on our 1937 line some new machines that perform operations never before possible either by machine or hand.

"We set up a quota for 1937 that far exceeded our peak year of 1936 yet it looks as if we are going to increase schedules still further to meet the growing demand. Our November production will exceed our original estimate by several hundred cars and December also will run far over the first schedule."

OLDSMOBILE SALES CONTINUE TO RISE

In addition, the company now has on hand the largest bank of advance orders in the 40 years of its history, Mr. Ralston said.

To answer the rapidly increasing public demand for the new Oldsmobile sixes and eights, production has been stepped up to more than 1,000 cars daily—the highest sustained daily level ever maintained by Oldsmobile.

During the month of December, Oldsmobile production schedules call for more than 25,000 cars, as compared with 18,000 during the same period a year ago, an increase of nearly 40 per cent.

MANY PERSONS IN NEED OF GLASSES

Well Known Optometrists Estimate 15,000 Require Eye Examination

Doctors T. A. Brulte and H. C. Hughes, with offices at 323 DeSiard street, estimate that there are more than 15,000 individuals in Monroe who are in need of adequate optometric services.

"Of these 15,000, many fail to realize the need of an eye examination and a correction, simply because they possess acute vision," they said.

"It is usually not until these needs have long been neglected and the individual is suffering from headaches, eye-aches, digestive trouble and other reflex disturbances, that they finally seek the aid of an optometrist.

"The modern analytical method of optometric examination readily enables an optometrist to determine whether the eyes are the seat of the above-mentioned disturbances and if a correction will remove the symptoms," the doctors declared.

The Graduate Clinic foundation, in which Doctors Brulte and Hughes are active members, holds regular meetings in Monroe and throughout the state. The foundation is a national research organization supported by optometrists in the interests of the conservation of vision. The foundation is responsible for the development of the examination procedure which is used by Doctors Brulte and Hughes in their practice.

LITTLE USE FOR TOOLS NOWADAYS

Plymouth Dealer Compares Modern Necessities With Those Of Old Days

The least noticed part of the new 1937 cars reveals in a nutshell the story of automotive progress since the first "gas-buggies," according to W. L. Ethridge, Jr., manager of the Monroe Automobile and Supply Co., local Plymouth dealer.

"That part is the tool kit," Mr. Ethridge says. "Its present size—compared with the old-fashioned tool box—shows up the difference between the old, unreliable "one-lungers" and the efficient, dependable cars of today.

"Today, these "emergencies" have been almost entirely eliminated, with a corresponding reduction in the tool kit. Tire-changing equipment, a hammer, pliers, two wrenches and a screwdriver are all that the average new-car driver ever needs. Most owners drive thousands of miles without opening the tool kit. Many never even discover where it is located in their cars.

"Tinkering with the carburetor is practically a forgotten art, even for those veteran motorists who can dimly recall when this form of exercise was a necessary part of every motor trip. Spark plugs don't have to be cleaned every few days any more, thanks to the better grades of fuel at every gas station and the more efficient engines today. Selfstarters that lock are practically extinct, and cooling is now so perfect that a boiling radiator is a definite sign there's something wrong.

"Parts which formerly required frequent adjustment or lubrication have been so completely redesigned that little or no attention is required by many of them during the entire life of the car. A specific example of a "self-servicing" feature is the clutch release bearing on new Plymouth models this year. Previously needing lubrication every 6,000 miles, this important part now has a built-in lubricating device that makes further attention unnecessary after the car leaves the factory."

CHEVROLET DEALERS HAVE FINE RECORDS

More than 40 per cent of Chevrolet's 10,000 dealers have been with the company for more than five years, a check-up of company records in connection with Chevrolet's twenty-fifth anniversary revealed this week.

Of these, 2,685 have been with Chevrolet for from five to 10 years; 1,385 have been Chevrolet dealers for from 10 to 15 years; 204 for from 15 to 20 years, and 12 dealers have been distributing Chevrolets for more than 20 years.

During 1936, the company's 25th year as a manufacturer of automobiles, 99.6 per cent of all dealers showed a profit, and their combined profit was greater than during any other year in Chevrolet history, officials declared. Domestic sales for the year, at 1,130,000 also were higher than during any previous year.

"Since the inauguration of our quality dealer program three years ago, Chevrolet dealerships have been increasingly profitable," W. E. Holler, general sales manager, declared. "It is a real testimonial to Chevrolet that such a large percentage of our dealers have been with us through the years."

ECONOMY PROVED FOR STUDEBAKER

Gasoline And Oil Consumption Remarkably Low In Hard Test Run

In the amazingly short period of 4 1-2 days a 1937 Studebaker Dictator six sedan, driven by Ted Ellis for the Pennzoil company, covered the 4,024 mile distance from Los Angeles to the Canadian border and return, using only 1 pint, 15 ounces of motor oil and averaging 20 1-8 miles per gallon of gasoline for the entire trip.

This report was made known yesterday through a statement from Paul G. Hoffman, president of The Studebaker Corporation.

"With the crankcase securely sealed by Los Angeles County officials, the Studebaker was driven over Route 99 to Portland, Oreg., a distance of 1,247 miles, whereupon the Oregon State sealer of weights and measures found the total consumption of motor oil to be merely 3 ounces. Only 1 3-4 pints of motor oil were used in the 2,779 miles covered on the balance of the trip," Mr. Hoffman stated.

"Although covering a range in altitude of 7,000 feet, the temperature of the crankcase never exceeded 150 degrees and water temperature did not go above 170 degrees at any time. The hypoid rear axle gear and transmission needed no lubricant after completing the run of 4,024 miles at sustained high speed."

It is apparent that the remarkably low consumption of fuel and oil was not accomplished by "babying" the car along or driving at the most economical speed. Leaving Los Angeles at 3:00 p.m., on October 20th and returning at 5:00 a.m. on the 25th, the entire trip was made in 110 hours, which means that the car was driven an average of 879 miles each day.

All lubricants used were furnished by the Pennzoil company.

EMPLOYMENT AT PONTIAC GOES UP

Increase In Sales Of Popular Car Necessitates Hiring More Men

Employment at the Pontiac Motor company continues to rise each week and to break all previous records for number of men on the company's payroll.

"On November 14 employment reached a new high of 9,573," said H. J. Klingler, president and general manager. "Never before has this company employed as many people.

"This represents the fifth successive week that our employment has broken the old records, and in each of these weeks the figure has exceeded that of the week before.

"Highest point during 1935 was the last week in December when the payroll figures reached 6,959. During the rush season of the past spring employment got up to 7,612, but not until the middle of October did it pass the 8,000 mark.

"The addition of a new axle plant this fall has accounted for over 600 of this increase while the reopening of our foundry has added almost another 1,200 men to the payroll.

"It is noteworthy that even during the so-called shut-down period in August when we were changing over from 1936 to 1937 model production there never were less than 4,029 men employed.

"With more unfilled orders for new cars on hand than we had at the busiest time last spring and with every effort being made to increase production I fully expect to see our employment total soar to still greater heights."

NEW MARK FOR '37 HUDSON CARS

Acceleration Laurels Added To 40 Performance And Endurance Records

What is believed to be a new mark for automobile stock car acceleration has just been set by a new 1937 Hudson eight when it went from a standstill to 50 miles an hour in 9.4 seconds under official supervision of American Automobile association contest board officials, according to word received from Detroit by Adler's Automobile agency, local representative for Hudson Motor Car company.

All gears were used, and the shifts were made with Hudson's new "selective automatic shift." With this new development, gears are shifted by flicking the gear shifter of Hudson's "electric hand" with a finger of the right hand and lifting the foot from the accelerator. It is not necessary to use the clutch pedal, as the gear changes take place immediately when pressure is applied to the accelerator. The new shift is optional equipment on all Hudsons and Terraplanes.

The 1937 Terraplane six was given a similar acceleration test and went from zero to 50 miles an hour in 10.4 seconds, according to official timing by American Automobile association contest board timers.

In a test starting in high gear, the new Hudson was reported by the American Automobile association observers to have traveled from 10 to 50 miles an hour in 13 seconds. The Terraplane's mark for this high gear test was almost as favorable, as it required but 13.5 seconds to reach the 50-mile-an-hour speed.

The acceleration achievements follow a series of brilliant performance and endurance records recently established on the Bonneville Salt Flats, Utah, by these cars.

Manufacturer Pioneered In Constructing Lowest Priced Automobile

In 1927, the Whippet, a product of Willys-Overland, set a new low price below that of any other car then in the market. This was the initial entry of a Willys built car into a great popular field which had built the motor car industry to its then high production records.

Since that time, the trend has been gradually upward and away from the price limit set by the income of the great 90 per cent of the income earning population of the country.

Five years ago, Willys interest again started development of a type of car which would re-enter this field which became vacated during a period of advancing incomes, and, which strangely enough, was not at once re-entered by any volume manufacturer in the automobile industry.

The current new Willys is the outcome of this development. During a period of four years, production has been limited. This has enabled us to perfect the development of the car, and to so organize manufacturing process as to set the lowest possible manufacturing costs consistent with the quality of product necessary.

Questions confronting the motor car buyer of today, hinge both on price and performance.

The average buyer wants a new car. But an average national income of between $150 and $200 a month does not easily permit of the purchase of a new car.

Current financing of new car purchases permits the use of long time contracts in which the monthly payments may be brought as low as $25.

Time payments on the new Willys can be brought to a point several dollars below this monthly low point, further extending to the buyer of a new car, advantages in budgeting his purchase on a safer and far more convenient basis.

Elements of initial cost, however, are not the sole determining factor.

Current developments of the new Willys present advantages in these essentials which are as complete as those of price. The body linese are the products of one of the leading designers of the country, Amos Northup. In securing a styling which is in advance of current design, Mr. Northup has combined with it, exceptional width of seats, front and rear, a depth of cushions, and a visibility over the road that are all highly pleasing.

Road performance is imperative for the modern car must be capable of fast travel with safety. The speed of the new Willys is in excess of 75 miles an hour with a corresponding rapid acceleration which makes it one of the most flexible of all cars in traffic.

Combined with the high road speed, is a factor of safety through the type of four wheel brakes used, that gives immediate control.

With ample speed comes also a demand for proved economy of operation. Here the new Willys is outstanding, not through engineering tests, but as proved by owner records covering all parts of the country.

Fuel economy is evidenced in long time averages of from 30 to 35 miles to the gallon of gas. The motor construction coupled with a unique and exclusive carburetor, contributes to this high average mileage per gallon of fuel.

Extensive figures on operating costs reveal the fact that the owner of a Willys often pays for his car during the first year to eighteen months of operation in savings in gasoline, lubricating oil, and depreciation, over any other form of motor car transportation he has hitherto used.

Illuminating as these figures may prove, they are the result of four years of planning to secure these results.

And with its engineering and manufacturing plans complete, its sales structure in order, and plants ready for production, Willys-Overland Motors, Inc., enters the 1937 market with 1,000 dealers and distributors forming the basis of a sound national and international sales structure.

CHRYSLER SALES INCREASE SEEN

"Our most optimistic expectations for a record business in 1937 promise to be exceeded if the attendance and the buying at the automobile show may be accepted as a criterion," says Joseph W. Frazer, vice-president of the Chrysler sales division of the Chrysler corporation.

"With this year's attendance generally far exceeding any previous shows, the conclusion is inevitable that more people are in the market for new cars. Our actual retail orders confirm this. Not only from Chicago and New York, but from all the other cities where automobile shows have been held, we get very encouraging reports. More people have passed the doors and there have been more sales and live prospects listed. Detroit, Boston, Philadelphia and other large cities had exceptionally fine crowds, and they were buying crowds too.

"Speaking for Chrysler, the reaction of both our dealer body and the public has been that we have the 'hottest' line since our Chrysler 75 swept the country in 1928. In fact, I would say that the 1937 cars are even more of a sensation. And of course our prices are much lower than they were when the 75 was introduced and our product has immeasurably improved as Chrysler engineering has advanced.

"I addressed a large group of dealers from the Chicago region at luncheon recently and their only problem seems to be to get enough cars to take care of their orders—even though we are now running to the limit of our factory capacity and additional factory space, improved factory layout and the addition of a large amount of new and modern machinery have greatly increased our production facilities this season. Furthermore, new machines and methods are enabling us to turn out cars not only faster but with a higher quality of workmanship. We actually are using on our 1937 line some new machines that perform operations never before possible either by machine or hand.

"We set up a quota for 1937 that far exceeded our peak year of 1936 yet it looks as if we are going to increase schedules still further to meet the growing demand. Our November production will exceed our original estimate by several hundred cars and December also will run far over the first schedule."

OLDSMOBILE SALES CONTINUE TO RISE

Oldsmobile delivered to retail purchasers 5,430 new sixes and eights during the last 10 days of November, it was revealed today by D. E. Ralston, Oldsmobile vice-president and general sales manager.

In addition, the company now has on hand the largest bank of advance orders in the 40 years of its history, Mr. Ralston said.

To answer the rapidly increasing public demand for the new Oldsmobile sixes and eights, production has been stepped up to more than 1,000 cars daily—the highest sustained daily level ever maintained by Oldsmobile.

During the month of December, Oldsmobile production schedules call for more than 25,000 cars, as compared with 18,000 during the same period a year ago, an increase of nearly 40 per cent.

MANY PERSONS IN NEED OF GLASSES

Well Known Optometrists Estimate 15,000 Require Eye Examination

Doctors T. A. Brulte and H. C. Hughes, with offices at 323 DeSiard street, estimate that there are more than 15,000 individuals in Monroe who are in need of adequate optometric services.

"Of these 15,000, many fail to realize the need of an eye examination and a correction, simply because they possess acute vision," they said.

"It is usually not until these needs have long been neglected and the individual is suffering from headaches, eye-aches, digestive trouble and other reflex disturbances, that they finally seek the aid of an optometrist.

"The modern analytical method of optometric examination readily enables an optometrist to determine whether the eyes are the seat of the above-mentioned disturbances and if a correction will remove the symptoms," the doctors declared.

The Graduate Clinic foundation, in which Doctors Brulte and Hughes are active members, holds regular meetings in Monroe and throughout the state. The foundation is a national research organization supported by optometrists in the interests of the conservation of vision. The foundation is responsible for the development of the examination procedure which is used by Doctors Brulte and Hughes in their practice.

Plymouth Dealer Compares Modern Necessities With Those Of Old Days

The least noticed part of the new 1937 cars reveals in a nutshell the story of automotive progress since the first "gas-buggies," according to W. L. Ethridge, Jr., manager of the Monroe Automobile and Supply Co., local Plymouth dealer.

"That part is the tool kit," Mr. Ethridge says. "Its present size—compared with the old-fashioned tool box—shows up the difference between the old, unreliable "one-lungers" and the efficient, dependable cars of today.

"The modern car's small tool kit tells a graphic story of the progress toward a self-servicing automobile," Mr. Ethridge says. "Not many years ago the tool box was one of the most important parts of the car. Motorists setting out on a trip would carry almost as many tools as the average garage kept on its bench. New cars were factory-equipped with an alarming supply, and the owner usually added his own pet devices developed through years of amateur tinkering. The result was a mechanical layout which took up almost as much room as the passengers.

"Grease guns, starting cranks, tire pumps, a dozen wrenches, nuts, bolts, pieces of wire, tow-ropes, special pliers, tire patches, extra fan belts, cement and rubber tire-boots were carried around as standard equipment for emergencies.

"Today, these "emergencies" have been almost entirely eliminated, with a corresponding reduction in the tool kit. Tire-changing equipment, a hammer, pliers, two wrenches and a screwdriver are all that the average new-car driver ever needs. Most owners drive thousands of miles without opening the tool kit. Many never even discover where it is located in their cars.

"Tinkering with the carburetor is practically a forgotten art, even for those veteran motorists who can dimly recall when this form of exercise was a necessary part of every motor trip. Spark plugs don't have to be cleaned every few days any more, thanks to the better grades of fuel at every gas station and the more efficient engines today. Selfstarters that lock are practically extinct, and cooling is now so perfect that a boiling radiator is a definite sign there's something wrong.

"Parts which formerly required frequent adjustment or lubrication have been so completely redesigned that little or no attention is required by many of them during the entire life of the car. A specific example of a "self-servicing" feature is the clutch release bearing on new Plymouth models this year. Previously needing lubrication every 6,000 miles, this important part now has a built-in lubricating device that makes further attention unnecessary after the car leaves the factory."

CHEVROLET DEALERS HAVE FINE RECORDS

More than 40 per cent of Chevrolet's 10,000 dealers have been with the company for more than five years, a check-up of company records in connection with Chevrolet's twenty-fifth anniversary revealed this week.

Of these, 2,685 have been with Chevrolet for from five to 10 years; 1,385 have been Chevrolet dealers for from 10 to 15 years; 204 for from 15 to 20 years, and 12 dealers have been distributing Chevrolets for more than 20 years.

During 1936, the company's 25th year as a manufacturer of automobiles, 99.6 per cent of all dealers showed a profit, and their combined profit was greater than during any other year in Chevrolet history, officials declared. Domestic sales for the year, at 1,130,000 also were higher than during any previous year.

"Since the inauguration of our quality dealer program three years ago, Chevrolet dealerships have been increasingly profitable," W. E. Holler, general sales manager, declared. "It is a real testimonial to Chevrolet that such a large percentage of our dealers have been with us through the years."

Gasoline And Oil Consumption Remarkably Low In Hard Test Run

In the amazingly short period of 4 1-2 days a 1937 Studebaker Dictator six sedan, driven by Ted Ellis for the Pennzoil company, covered the 4,024 mile distance from Los Angeles to the Canadian border and return, using only 1 pint, 15 ounces of motor oil and averaging 20 1-8 miles per gallon of gasoline for the entire trip.

This report was made known yesterday through a statement from Paul G. Hoffman, president of The Studebaker Corporation.

"With the crankcase securely sealed by Los Angeles County officials, the Studebaker was driven over Route 99 to Portland, Oreg., a distance of 1,247 miles, whereupon the Oregon State sealer of weights and measures found the total consumption of motor oil to be merely 3 ounces. Only 1 3-4 pints of motor oil were used in the 2,773 miles covered on the balance of the trip," Mr. Hoffman stated.

"Although covering a range in altitude of 7,000 feet, the temperature of the crankcase never exceeded 150 degrees and water temperature did not go above 170 degrees at any time. The hypoid rear axle gear and transmission needed no lubricant after completing the run of 4,024 miles at sustained high speed."

It is apparent that the remarkably low consumption of fuel and oil was not accomplished by "babying" the car along or driving at the most economical speed. Leaving Los Angeles at 3:00 p.m., on October 20th and returning at 5:00 a.m. on the 25th the entire trip was made in 110 hours, which means that the car was driven an average of 879 miles each day.

All lubricants used were furnished by the Pennzoil company.

Increase In Sales Of Popular Car Necessitates Hiring More Men

Employment at the Pontiac Motor company continues to rise each week and to break all previous records for number of men on the company's payroll.

"On November 14 employment reached a new high of 9,573," said H. J. Klingler, president and general manager. "Never before has this company employed as many people.

"This represents the fifth successive week that our employment has broken the old records, and in each of these weeks the figure has exceeded that of the week before.

"Highest point during 1935 was the last week in December when the payroll figures reached 6,959. During the rush season of the past spring employment got up to 7,612, but not until the middle of October did it pass the 8,000 mark.

"The addition of a new axle plant this fall has accounted for over 600 of this increase while the reopening of our foundry has added almost another 1,200 men to the payroll.

"It is noteworthy that even during the so-called shutdown period in August when we were changing over from 1936 to 1937 model production there never were less than 4,029 men employed.

"With more unfilled orders for new cars on hand than we had at the busiest time last spring and with every effort being made to increase production I fully expect to see our employment total soar to still greater heights."

Acceleration Laurels Added To 40 Performance And Endurance Records

What is believed to be a new mark for automobile stock car acceleration has just been set by a new 1937 Hudson eight when it went from a standstill to 50 miles an hour in 9.4 seconds under official supervision of American Automobile association contest board officials, according to word received from Detroit by Adler's Automobile agency, local representative for Hudson Motor Car company.

All gears were used, and the shifts were made with Hudson's new "selective automatic shift." With this new development, gears are shifted by flicking the gear shifter of Hudson's "electric hand" with a finger of the right hand and lifting the foot from the accelerator. It is not necessary to use the clutch pedal, as the gear changes take place immediately when pressure is applied to the accelerator. The new shift is optional equipment on all Hudsons and Terraplanes.

The 1937 Terraplane six was given a similar acceleration test and went from zero to 50 miles an hour in 10.4 seconds, according to official timing by American Automobile association contest board timers.

In a test starting in high gear, the new Hudson was reported by the American Automobile association observers to have traveled from 10 to 50 miles an hour in 13 seconds. The Terraplane's mark for this high gear test was almost as favorable, as it required but 13.5 seconds to reach the 50-mile-an-hour speed.

The acceleration achievements follow a series of brilliant performance and endurance records recently established on the Bonneville Salt Flats, Utah, by these cars.

IMPROVED MAIL SERVICE SOON

Monroe - Chatham Deliveries Will Be Made By Bus After Jan. 1

On January 1, 1937, improved mail service will be given between Monroe and Chatham, it was announced by Postmaster J. R. Wooten Saturday. Mail from then on will be carried by bus which will leave Monroe at 7 a.m., and will arrive at Chatham at 8 a.m. At the present time mail goes by train and it is a long time in arriving because of poor service between the two places.

Plans for handling the Christmas rush are being formulated and already improved facilities are available to meet the situation. In order to aid those who sought early mailing, the various departments of the postoffice were in operation yesterday afternoon, not closing at noon, as is customary on Saturday. The same plan was also followed in West Monroe.

Tomorrow morning an extra parcel post window will be opened at the Monroe postoffice and will be opened daily until the close of the holidays.

The real big rush of mailing is expected to be reached about the middle of this week, but assurance is given that there will be delays encountered and the public will be given first class service at all times.

IMPROVED MAIL SERVICE SOON

Monroe - Chatham Deliveries Will Be Made By Bus After Jan. 1

On January 1, 1937, improved mail service will be given between Monroe and Chatham, it was announced by Postmaster J. R. Wooten Saturday. Mail from then on will be carried by bus which will leave Monroe at 7 a.m., and will arrive at Chatham at 8 a.m. At the present time mail goes by train and it is a long time in arriving because of poor service between the two places.

Plans for handling the Christmas rush are being formulated and already improved facilities are available to meet the situation. In order to aid those who sought early mailing, the various departments of the postoffice were in operation yesterday afternoon, not closing at noon, as is customary on Saturday. The same plan was also followed in West Monroe.

Tomorrow morning an extra parcel post window will be opened at the Monroe postoffice and will be opened daily until the close of the holidays.

The real big rush of mailing is expected to be reached about the middle of this week, but assurance is given that there will be delays encountered and the public will be given first class service at all times.

FLINT'S SURPRISE

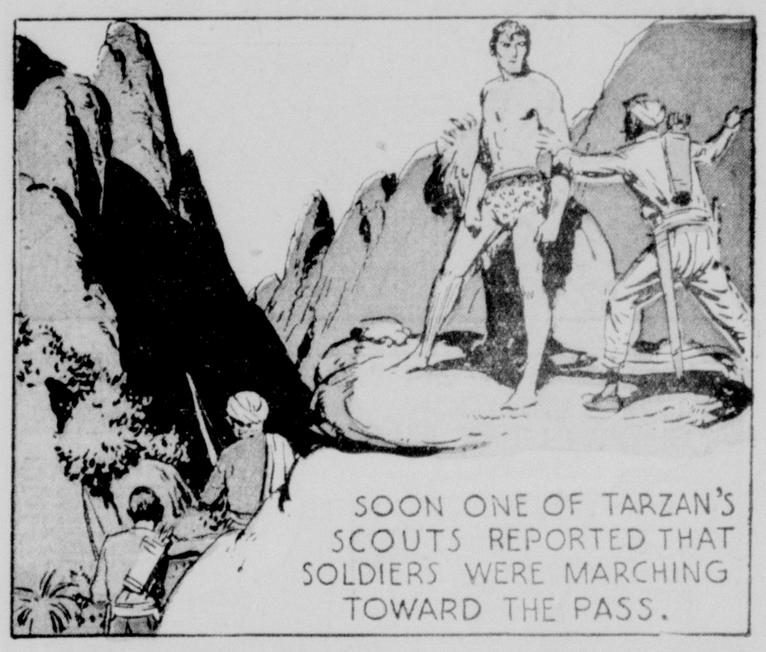
AFTER TARZAN'S DESTRUCTION OF HIS CARAVAN, FLINT ORDERED A NEW FORCE TO THE MOUNTAIN PASS. "EACH SOLDIER MUST CARRY THE SAME SECRET MESSAGE," HE DIRECTED; "SOME WILL GET THROUGH TO MY AGENT."



SOON ONE OF TARZAN'S SCOUTS REPORTED THAT SOLDIERS WERE MARCHING TOWARD THE PASS.

DOWN THE SLOPES, TARZAN AND HIS RAIDERS SWEPT EAGERLY TO THE ATTACK.

WHILE THE CANYON RANG WITH THE CLASH OF ARMS, A NEW WAVE OF SOLDIERS DASHED UP TO AID THEIR COMRADES.

THEN, TO TARZAN'S SURPRISE, HIS ENEMIES CEASED FIGHTING, AND FLED, SOME HOMEWARD, SOME TOWARD THE COAST.

HE WAS EVEN MORE MYSTIFIED WHEN DAYS PASSED AND FLINT MADE NO FURTHER ATTEMPT TO PENETRATE THE PASS.

BUT, ONE MORNING, A MIGHTY ROAR FILLED THE CANYON THE DEFENDERS TREMBLED WITH FEAR OF THE UNKNOWN.

H. FOSTER

NEXT WEEK—DEATH FROM THE SKIES

DEATH for A BROKEN WORD

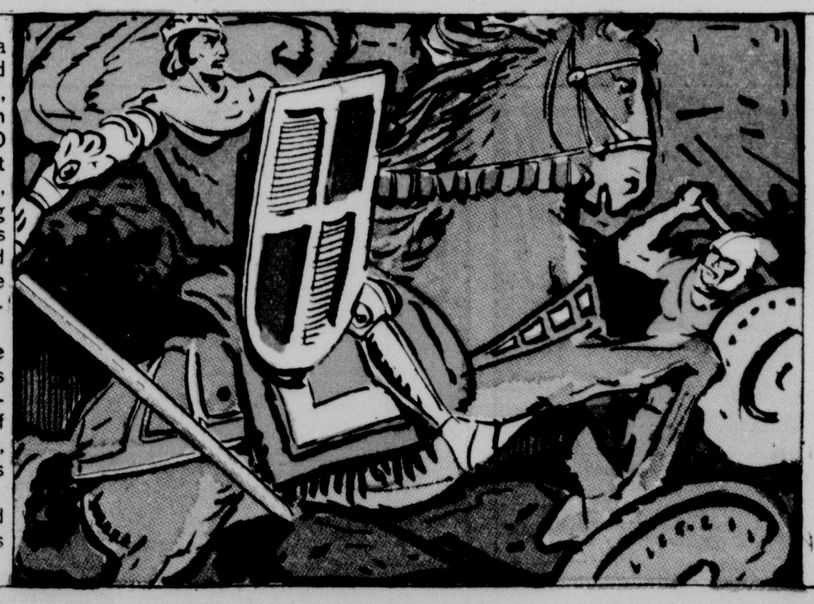
NEARLY 500 years ago, a youthful king of Poland and Hungary broke his word, and paid for his faithlessness with death. Ladislas III was only 20 years old when he and the great Hungarian general, John Hunyadi, marched against the invading Turk, Murad II. For four years previous to 1444, Hunyadi had beaten back the infidels in battle after battle, until he broke the Sultan's power in the Balkans.

The Christian rulers of Europe urged on Hunyadi, and Ladislas accepted leadership in a final effort to drive the Turk out of Europe. But Murad sued for peace, a treaty was signed and the Turks began to retire.

Just then Ladislas received word that a Venetian fleet was on its way to cut off the Turk retreat.



It was too tempting an opportunity to put a final end to the power of the Turkish ruler in Europe, peace or no peace. So Ladislas, against Hunyadi's advice, broke the treaty and marched on Murad's army at the port of Varna, Bulgaria.

Embittered by this deception, the Moslems fought like cornered cats, and on November 10, 1444, Murad crushed his faithless enemies. Ladislas was killed, and Hunyadi narrowly escaped with his life. Most cruel cut of all, the Venetian fleet never showed up!
